MINE LAYOFF DESPITE LEO

Western Mines will proceed with plans to lay off 86 men this weekend despite a statement Thursday by Provincial Mines Minister Leo Nimsick that the mine would show a profit without laying off any employees.

Western Mines president W. G. Jewitt said the layoff was necessary to head off an anticipated loss of $775,000 this year. Nimsick had said the company will show a net profit of $1.2 million without layoffs.

Jewitt said Nimsick's forecast was wrong but the company could not refute the the statement in detail until after he had met with the mines minister to determine what method he had used to arrive at a $1.2 million net profit figure.

Nimsick Thursday said Western Mines should live up to its obligations to the public as well as to its employees because of substantial assistance received from the provincial government in the form of road construction.

Nimsick said the company made $3.5 million in 1974 and could show a profit of $1.2 million even though sales are expected to be lower this year. If sales equal 1974 levels, profits would be higher than $1.2 million with no layoffs, Nimsick said.

He did not explain how the figures were determined.

CONTINGENCY PLAN FOR STRIKE-LOCKOUT

By SUSAN RUTTAN
Times Staff

All Greater Victoria schools will be open only one hour each morning if a strike or lockout hits school district 61, principals were informed today.

District officials met with principals early this afternoon to inform them of contingency plans that have been made in case of a shutdown which could come next week.

Main points of the plan are:

—Students are to continue coming to school at the regular time in the morning. They will receive assignments and then be sent home.

—All special activities held in the schools at noon, in the afternoons and in the evenings will not be held there.

—Parents will be asked not to send food to school with their children, to help keep down litter in the buildings.

Teachers will remain on the job all day. When they are not giving out assignments and marking papers they will attend professional training programs that are now being set up.

"The board will try to give parents advance warning of any strike or lockout," board spokesman Bill Stavdal said today.

However that may not be possible, he added.

Non-teaching staff of the school board, Locals 382 and 947 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, are currently negotiating with the board for a new contract.

Local 382, representing 278 janitors, custodians and tradesmen, has served strike notice on the board, and asked mediator Clark Gilmour to withdraw from the dispute.

And the board has served lockout notice on Local 947, representing 345 clerical staff and teachers' aides.

Stavdal said the board hopes by announcing its contingency plans now to avoid public confusion about which schools are open when.

Virtually all the more than 400 night courses offered by Camosun College in local schools will have to halt if the schools are closed, said Jim Boyd, co-ordinator of community education for the college.

It would be impossible to find alternative facilities for all of them, he said.

The school board was to meet this afternoon with negotiations for CUPE Local 382 to continue bargaining, and will meet negotiators for Local 947 Monday morning.

$100,000 Talk Tour for Dean

WASHINGTON (WP) — Former White House aide and Watergate conspirator John Dean will speak Sunday at the University of Virginia, his first appearance in a six-week college lecture tour certain to gross more than $100,000.

Dean will get $4,000 for the appearance, according to Andrew Purdie, a law student at Virginia and chairman of the university's speaker's bureau, sponsors of the speech.

He will then cover the U.S. from Maine to Oregon, averaging between six and eight appearances a week, according to booking agent Robert Walker.

In addition to his lecture earnings, Dean has received a $300,000 advance for a book about Watergate, and his wife, Maureen, has received an advance of $150,000 for a book on her life and courtship by Dean.

So far organized student protest to Dean's appearances has been scant, Walker said.

However, stirrings of discontent already have greeted announcement of his appearances at Georgetown University and the University of Maryland, both scheduled for Feb. 17.

"The arguments basically deal with the fact that we are helping a Watergate criminal become rich," said Kathy Sherman, chairman of the speaker's committee at Maryland.

Dean's $3,000 fee at Georgetown "represents a tremendous implication that crime does pay," said Jonathan Orloff, a sophomore and organizer of an anti-Dean petition.

Lease Rents Rebated

A lands department spokesman said the government has decided that rents on those lands should never more than double when they are increased every five years.

Rents have always been set at five per cent of market value but skyrocketing land prices in the last two years have meant rents on some parcels have increased as much as four and five fold in the last year.

The government has about 16,000 agreements to lease parcels of Crown land in the province and about 5,000 of those agreements are for recreational-residential use.

The spokesman said about 15 per cent of the recreational leases had rent increases more than double last year and rebates will be sent out to the people who hold the leases.

He said he did not know how much money would be involved in the rebate.

"From now on, when the rents are reviewed every five years, they will never be allowed to double," he said.

The main problem, he said, was with people who lease recreational lots to build summer homes and then retire to those homes.

He cited cases of old age pensioners who retired to homes on leased land and then were informed that their annual rents were to increase four and five fold.

Other leased Crown lands are used for agricultural, grazing, commercial and straight residential purposes.

Sooke Arena Given Go-Ahead

The provincial cabinet has given the green light to the proposed arena for the Sooke area and tenders could go out within three weeks.

MLA Jim Gorst (NDP Esquimalt) said the cabinet this morning amended the arena bylaws so that the Capital Region Board can borrow up to $850,000 and is assured of a grant of one-third of capital costs.

When the vote was passed residents approved the spending of 1.75 mills over a five-year period for recreational purposes.

Following the vote a survey was taken and it was the majority choice that an arena be constructed. The Sooke Community Association donated almost seven acres of land and cleared the site.

The Capital Region had to go to the cabinet for an amending bylaw which now allows the arena to be amortized over a longer period 25 to 30 years if necessary.

The arena has been a controversial issue in the Sooke area for some weeks.

Provinces Exasperated Over Housing Policies

OTTAWA (CP) — Manitoba Urban Affairs Minister Saul Miller said it all in two brief sentences.

Referring to a discussion of the $1.4 billion federal housing budget at a Thursday federal-provincial housing conference, Miller said:

"If a vote had been taken here, it would have been 10 to one against the federal budget.

"However, the one vote has a little more muscle behind it than the other 10."

Miller and other provincial housing ministers vented their exasperation with the housing budget at a conference-closing news conference.

But they made with no visible change in the federal position.

Several ministers said the $100 million increase from last year's budget was far less than hope for.

Some said they would have to cut back on planned increases in their own budgets because the federal portion of shared-cost programs rose less than expected.

Provincial ministers used such words as disappointment and shock to describe their feelings about Federal Urban Affairs Minister Barney Danson's announcement of Ottawa's housing budget earlier in the day.

Ontario Housing Minister Donald Irvine said the federal budget should have been at least $2 billion.

Dealing with the budget attacks, Danson said the provincial ministers seemed to miss the point of recent federal proposals to attract more private money into federal assisted home ownership and rental housing programs.

Private lenders have indicated to him that as much as $1 billion in additional revenue may be poured into these federal programs by private lenders, Danson said.

The federal proposals would allow the government to offer private lenders subsidies covering the difference between the market mortgage rate and the eight per cent rate under the federal programs.

MORTGAGE, PRIME RATES BOTH DIP

The Bank of British Columbia and Toronto-Dominion have reduced their mortgage interest rate to 10.75 per cent effective Saturday. Other banks are expected to follow the downward trend.

Toronto-Dominion cut its conventional mortgage rate to 10.75 from 11.5 per cent while mortgages under the National Housing Act are down to 10.5 per cent from 11 per cent.

Its prime lending rate fell a full point from 10.5 per cent to 9.5 per cent. Its new small business loan rate will be 9.5 per cent and its premium savings deposit rate 7.25 per cent.

Bank of B.C. mortgages are down .25 per cent from 11 per cent. Mortgages under NHA will go out at 10.5 per cent, down from 11 per cent.

Liquor Chief Retires

Veteran civil servant Bill Bruce has resigned as general manager of the B.C. Liquor Administration Branch.

Attorney-General Alex Macdonald announced today he has accepted the resignation with regret and is now seeking a replacement for the liquor chief.

Bruce, 59, has worked for the government since 19.. and has been with the liquor board since 1947.

Despite his early retirement, Bruce has served enough time to receive a full pension and says he has no plans other than to enjoy his retirement.

"It's a totally friendly situation," said Macdonald, adding that Bruce has given full measure of devotion to the Public Service of B.C.

Bruce has helped during the reorganization of the liquor board which will see its functions divided into two parts, with distribution, purchasing and merchandising in Vancouver and licencing remaining in Victoria.

Two managers will therefore be hired to replace the general manager position vacated by Bruce.

No specific date has been set for Bruce's departure

Offices Getting Colder By Hour

The fifth day of a strike by 280 outside workers in the city of Victoria saw picket lines relax at city hall for the second day, allowing inside staff to resume their duties in offices growing colder by the hour.

Pickets from Canadian Union of Public Employees Local 50 have stopped delivery of fuel oil to the central heating plant which supplied city hall and the rest of Centennial Square.

The city, four other municipal jurisdictions, the Capital Regional District and Greater Victoria School District are poised with lockout orders for remaining employees represented by CUPE locals a total of 1,700 inside and outside staff.

Joint action was promised by the municipal employers co-ordinating committee if one or more strikes occurred in the bargaining process. Meidation efforts have so far failed.

Provincial mediation officer Clark Gilmour is still involved with Saanich, where talks were held today, and in Sidney, Esquimalt and the school district. He has filed reports and withdrawn from other situations and lockout notice has expired, leaving municipalities free to act when labor Minister Bill King confirms receipt of the reports.

At City Hall, with only enough fuel left in storage tanks for about an hour's heating, a shutdown of the furnaces serving the entire municipal complex around Centennial Square was ordered at 9 a.m. today.

"It seemed sensible to do this rather than start drawing up sludge as the level dropped," said an official.

Less than an hour earlier there had been a second attempt to replenish the tanks, but as on the previous occasion Wednesday, although

Coal Power For Island

The British Columbia Energy Commission has recommended that a coal-fired thermal plant be constructed as soon as possible on the east coast of Vancouver Island to head off anticipated power shortages on the Island in the 1980s.

(For full report on the B.C. Energy Commission first annual report see Page 3.)

A site is not named but the commission notes that the largest single deposit of coal on the Island is at Comox.

This coal would have to be augmented by shipments of coal from Hat Creek, B.C., the commission said.

The plant would have an average capacity of 480 megawatts, rising eventually to 1,680 megawatts. This would provide most of the anticipated power needs of the Island but additional cables could be laid from the mainland to supplement electricity produced by the thermal plant.

Despite known coal deposits at Comox, and further coal sources being sought at Port McNeill, Vancouver Island will continue to have a shortage of coal, the report says.

The commission urges rapid development of the Hat Creek deposit, located near the B.C. Rail line in south-central B.C.

The coal would be transported by rail to Squamish and then by barge to the east coast of Vancouver Island, the commission said.

Credit Unions to Lend Against Tax Rebates

British Columbia's credit unions will try to thwart ripoffs by corner shop tax rebate firms by making more money available as loans against tax rebates, says B.C. Central Credit Union president A. R. Glen.

In an interview Thursday Glen said charges levied by some of the tax rebate shops were "quite outrageous as much as 50 per cent."

He said the practice should be made illegal by federal legislation which prohibits persons to assign their tax rebates to a loan company.

"In some cases they are taking advantage of people who are desperate or who do not understand what is going on."

Glen said each credit union in B.C. is autonomous but most usually follow suggestions from the central office. B.C. Central has sent a circular to all credit unions urging them to assist people to borrow rather than lose half their cash through a rebate shop.

"Naturally we will do everything we can to assist our members. But in addition we want to assist any others who come and ask for help," he said.

"If it is humanly possible, we will accept them as members and help them rather than see them go to one of those tax rebate places."

Volume of business of rebate shops is expected to be brisk this year because of the delay in tax refunds. Finance Minister Turner said tax refunds could be mailed until tax changes, currently being debated at Ottawa, are approved by Parliament.

Glen said a number of steps are being studied by credit unions to deal with the rebate problem.

As a first step, emergency assistance will be made available where possible both to current members and new members.

Secondly, Canada's credit unions jointly will urge Ottawa to amend legislation to prohibit assigning of tax refunds, thereby putting the refund shops out of business.

Thirdly, the credit unions are studying a plan on the Prairies where counselling and loans are available to low income people who are anticipating tax refunds.

"In many cases, counselling is just as important as a loan," Glen said.

Tankers Collide, Explode

MARCUS HOOK, Pa. (AP) — A United States tanker rammed into a Liberian ship unloading crude oil at a Delaware River refinery early today, setting off explosions and fires that left at least two dead.

Officials said at least 29 others were injured, and that 22 of the 43 persons aboard the Corinthos were unaccounted for.

All aboard the U.S. tanker Edgar M. Queeny were accounted for and reported unhurt. It had struck the Corinthos broadside as it unloaded 100,000 barrels of oil, about 300,000 gallons, at a British Petroleum dock.

The explosions set fire to both ships and shattered glass in homes and other buildings in a 12-block area of this refinery town of 3,500 located 10 miles south of Philadelphia.

"This thing almost blew me right out of my house," said Delaware County Fire Marshal Gerorge Lewis, who lives in Marcus Hook.

Oil spilled into the river and while the coast guard brought in booms to contain it, Marcus Hook Fire Chief Robert Sides said "it will probably burn all day."

Nearly half of the 100,000 barrels of crude oil aboard the Corinthos had been pumped off when the Queeny, a chemical tanker carrying a load of phenol and vinyl acetate and manoeuvring to dock, rammed it amidship.

The 754-foot tanker split behind its centre superstructure and the stern dipped into the riverbed beside the pier.

Six TVs Dangerous

OTTAWA (CP) — Six models of Panasonic color television sets are potentially hazardous if a critical component fails, the health department advised Thursday.

The department said Panasonic models CT-201C, CT-3240, CT-398CA, CT-701C, CT-702C and CT-924C can emit excessive levels of x-rays through the front of the picture tube and screen if the component fails.

Some of these sets can continue to provide an acceptable picture even when the component fails and the health hazard exists. In other sets, picture quality deteriorates or the picture disappears completely on component failure. In either case, excessive levels of x-rays may be emitted.

Panasonic color television sets other than the six named models do not contain the potential danger, the department said.

Set owners with questions should contact the dealer from whom the set was purchased, it added.

Local 50's picket lines had been withdrawn to allow inside workers into the building, a picket remained on the fuel outlet and the delivery driver did not stop.

Striking workers meanwhile had offered their services to help fire chief Eric Simmons, who also is Silver Threads chairman, to find alternative accommodation for pensioners who rely on Silver Threads for meals and activities in the Centennial Square centre.

The centre is one of the city's buildings heated from the single oil-burning plant.

Walker said the CUPE offer had not been taken up and that temporary electric heaters had been moved into the Silver Threads centre instead. Cooking of a hot meal a day is not interrupted because ranges use domestic gas.

Heat in the adjoining jail is also a matter of concern to the city, which moved a number of electric heaters into the building Thursday. A police report said there was sufficient heat Thursday night without need of the electric units.

Despite main heating being turned off in the McPherson Playhouse, the opening performance of the Bastion Theatre group's presentation of the British comedy Butley was to take place as scheduled at 8 p.m. tonight.

Some electric heaters have been installed but the management was advising patrons to dress up in warm clothing, just in case. Pass arrangements for the performers to cross picket lines were made by Local 50 and the actors' union, Equity.

High winds Thursday night caused some damage and littering of Dallas Road with debris, logs and branches, normally cleared by outside workers.

Senior engineering and parks department staff were performing necessary cleanup and barricading today.

CUPE Local 50 president Jim Walker warned the city of Victoria any help accepted from such organizations as the Vancouver Island Right to Work Association to perform tasks normally done by outside staff will be construed as violation of the provincial Labor Code.

The association was reported by Mayor Peter Pollen to have made an offer to help during the strike.

City management personnel are also keeping a wary eye on reported leaks in downtown water mains in the vicinity of Government and Queens where a serious break caused flooding several years ago.

The return of inside workers today enabled a resumption of data processing to issue their paycheques by 4 p.m.—minus their pay for three full working days.

Cheques were also issued this morning to police and firemen, after police union president Constable Patrick Braiden complained Thursday the cheques were purposely held up by the city manager Jim Bramley in an "antagonistic" move.

Police are accustomed to being paid a full two days before month-end in line with a practice endorsed by the city 12 years ago.

Braiden said the police cheques had been sitting on the manager's desk but he had refused to release them until today to avoid discriminating between inside and outside workers, police and fire departments.

Bramley said today he had explained to Braiden in a "very amicable discussion" that the hold-up was strictly an administrative matter."

Bramley said he had given a commitment to certain inside workers that no cheques would be issued before today and that "everyone gets paid together."

Coal Power Urged

a thermal plant on site at Hat Creek, with an original capacity of 1,600 megawatts, rising eventually to 4,880 megawatts.

The two thermal plants (at Hat Creek and on Vancouver Island) will supply most of British Columbia's increased power needs for the rest of this century, the report said.

In addition, further development is recommended on hydropower, including upgrading of the John Hart hydroelectric plant near Campbell River.

Of all B.C. coal deposits, only Hat Creek is large enough to fully support a thermal plant on site, the report said.

Deposits in the East Kootenays are large enough but are basically metallurgical coals more suitable for steel mills than for thermal plants. Much of the East Kootenay coal is destined for export.

A thermal plant requires a 30-year supply of coal capable of firing a 1,600 megawatt project. Comox does not fit this definition but coal supplies could be brought in cheaply from Hat Creek to make up the shortfall.

Comox, Nanaimo and Port McNeil were studied as thermal plant sites in 1974. The recommendation for an east coast port (to reduce shipping costs from Squamish) would rule out the northern village of Port McNeill.

Nanaimo, which was actively campaigning for a nuclear power plant, has indicated it would welcome a coal-fired thermal plant if anti-pollution measures were effective.

The commission made no reference to nuclear power for B.C. and the government has said it will not consider this source until all other types of power have been developed in this province.

NIXON DENIED PAPERS

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — A federal judge ruled today that millions of documents and the White House tapes accumulated during the presidency of Richard Nixon belong to the United States government.

In a lengthy opinion, Judge Charles Richey declared "there is no precedent which compels a finding that the 'presidential materials and tapes' are the personal property of former president Nixon."

"Congress has not sanctioned the personal ownership of 'presidential materials and tapes' generated and retained in the conduct of the office of the president," he added.

Syncrude Crunch Day

Times News Services

The $2 billion Syncrude oil project in Alberta teetered on the brink of collapse today while company officials considered a federal government offer to invest $200-$500 million in the project.

Syncrude Canada Ltd. has said that if it has not found $1 billion in outside investment by today it will abandon the project, designed to unlock some of the world's largest proven oil reserves.

Concessions from Ottawa to keep the project alive will result in the taxpayers paying for the plant, New Democrat T. C. Douglas said today in the Commons.

Describing negotiations with Syncrude as "a poker game with government," Douglas reiterated suggestions that Ottawa take over the whole project.

Alberta government officials and representatives of the Syncrude Canada consortium — Imperial Oil, Gulf Oil Canada and Canada-cities services — held emergency talks into the early morning hours today in Edmonton in an eleventh-hour attempt to save the project.

Energy Minister Donald Macdonald said Thursday that Ottawa would prefer to limit its investment to only about $200 million.

There are a few things you should know about the new rent increase limit

THE RULES:

- Effective January 1, 1975, residential rent increases are limited to 10.6% of the rent presently being charged. This rule applies to any dwelling containing two or more rented units, and will be administered by the Rent Review Commission. The rule also applies to single family dwellings.
- Tenants can legally refuse to pay any rent increase over the 10.6% limit, subject to the exceptions specified in the legislation. Tenants cannot be evicted for non payment of illegal rent increases.
- There must be at least a twelve month interval between one rent increase and the next, and tenants must be given at least three months' notice of any rent increase.

Questions relating to landlord-tenant matters other than rent increases should be directed to the Office of the Rentalsman,
525 Seymour Street, Vancouver, B.C. V6B 3H7
Telephone: 689-0811 Out of town, call collect.

SOME EXCEPTIONS:

- Half a duplex, when the owner lives in the other half (or basement suite, when the owner lives in the remainder of the house) is exempt from the 10.6% limit.
- Certain major renovations may entitle an owner to increase rents over the 10.6% limit. These improvements must have been started since May 3, 1974, and do not include normal maintenance and repairs. Landlords may consult the Rent Review Commission for details, particularly if planning renovations which might justify rent increases.
- Residential premises being rented for the first time on or after January 1, 1974, are exempt from the 10.6% rent increase limit for a period of five years.
- Premises renting for more than $500 per month are exempt from the 10.6% increase limit.
- Mobile home pad rent increases may exceed 10.6%, but only if prior approval is received from the Rent Review Commission.

By LINDA HUGHES
Times Staff

British Columbia's energy needs will nearly triple by the year 2006, according to a massive provincial government report made public Thursday.

To supply those needs, B. C. has adequate amounts of natural gas, coal and electricity but will require increasing supplies of imported oil and gasoline.

The report said "an immediate concern is raised by the electricity requirements forecast which shows an annual growth rate of five per cent, considerably below the nine per cent rate used by the B.C. Energy Board in its 1972 report."

"The difference between these forecasts is of greatest significance in view of the reported $7.6 billion 10-year B.C. Hydro capital expenditure program."

The 341-page document is the first of the B.C. Energy Commission's annual reports on the supply, demand and pricing of energy in the future.

It is an assessment of what energy supplies are likely to be required in the future and, according to the commission, can only be viewed as a "best guess."

Energy needs are expected to grow an average of three per cent annually over the 31-year period with actual demand growing from 586 trillion BTUs (British Thermal Units) in 1973 to 1,535 trillion BTUs in 2006.

Greatest increases in demand will be felt in the commercial sector where energy needs will increase 3.1 to 4.5 per cent annually over the 31 years.

Energy needs for transportation will increase 2.3 to 3.6 per cent annually, for industry 2.6 to 2.8 per cent annually and for residential use 1.9 per cent and 3.9 per cent.

B.C. has sufficient supplies of coal, natural gas and electricity to meet forecast demands but production of crude oil in the province has already started to decline and the report said "it is clear that the province is becoming increasingly dependent on imported crude oil products."

This dependence could be lessened by government policies to encourage the use of natural gas or synthetic natural gas produced from the gasification of coal, according to the report.

A spokesman from the commission said in an interview, however, increased use of other energy forms cannot offset B.C.'s growing dependence of imported oil.

By the turn of the century, oil imports will have to increase about fourfold to keep up with demand, he said.

The report indicates the dependence on crude oil is due in large part to wide use in the province—30 per cent of B.C.'s population lives outside gas-serviced areas—and also because much of heavy industry does not have the option to use natural gas.

Current natural gas supply problems will likely be eliminated in the short run when unconnected reserves are tapped into the Westcoast Transmission system, said the report.

Shortages are likely to return for a brief period before termination of the export agreements in 1989 but after they expire there should be adequate supplies until 2006.

The report states that sufficient resources are available in B.C. to meet electricity requirements throughout the forecast period, either through hydro-electric generation or from coal-fired thermal stations.

At current production levels, B.C. has proven coal reserves to last 1,000 years and, with potential reserves, to last 8,000 years.

Most coal production in B.C. has been to satisfy export demands but other uses of coal, including thermal generation of electricity at Hat Creek and for coal gasification at the same site are expected to become factors before the end of the century.

The report was written without reference to possible sources of nuclear power since government policy has been to postpone entry into the nuclear field until other options have been exploited.

"Should this policy continue," said the report, "it would allow the province to take advantage of advancements in nuclear technology that will occur in the intervening period."

In 1973, refined petroleum products accounted for 51.5 per cent of B.C.'s energy supplies, natural gas 20.4 per cent, coal and coke 1 per cent, electricity 19 per cent and hog fuel 8 per cent.

Industry will continue to be the biggest user of energy in 2006, with transportation second, commercial users third and residential users fourth.

THE REGIONAL BARGAINING GROUP WILL GO DOWN IN HISTORY

BUT IT'S NO FAIRY TALE. The councillors and trustees have decided to bargain with their employees by battle instead of sincere negotiations.

They forced the outside employees of Victoria to go on strike. Then they served lock-out notices to municipal, school board and library employees in Greater Victoria.

The employees wanted to continue bargaining so the public services they supply wouldn't be cut off. But the trustees and councillors said no, they weren't talking any more.

And what were the employees asking for? Fair Wages.

All the inside employees want is the same wages the Provincial Government pays its inside employees.

And the outside workers are only asking that they be paid the same as other employees doing the same kind of work in the community.

It's time to pay fair. Tell the councillors and trustees to talk to their employees and pay fair.

TELL THEM TO PAY FAIR.

Playing Prometheus

Last spring, India exploded an atomic bomb in an underground test and became the sixth nation to join the nuclear club. Canada, which helped build an atomic reactor near Bombay and a nuclear power plant in Rajasthan, suspended all further nuclear aid and threatened to cut off all other economic aid as well. There was strong evidence that the nuclear installations which Canada put up supplied the fissionable material for India's bomb.

Canadian officials were rightly upset. We had provided India with nuclear technology for peaceful purposes. Despite India's vigorous assertions that her atomic weaponry is only a deterrent for purposes of defence, there is no such animal as a peaceful atomic bomb.

External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen expressed the federal government's concern last September when he told the United Nations general assembly: "My government urged the international community to accept the obligation not to contribute to the uncontrolled spread of nuclear explosive capacity and the safeguards required to ensure compliance with that obligation."

Canada intended to "satisfy itself that any country using Canadian-supplied nuclear technology or material will be subject to binding obligations so that the technology or material will not be used in the fabrication of nuclear explosive devices for whatever purpose."

Jump forward to this week. An announcement from Ottawa said a contract has been signed to sell South Korea a Candu nuclear reactor. Not one of the peaceful backwaters of the world, one would say. More like one of the fiercest nations of the "free world." A news report from Seoul, its capital, the same day as the Ottawa announcement provided a few interesting facts in light of the federal government's hurry to flog Candu reactors abroad.

"The leaders of the two halves of the bitterly divided Korean peninsula are talking less about detente these days and more about military conflict. . . . President Park Chung Hee of South Korea has been emphasizing the danger of war . . . the mood of detente in the Korean peninsula has declined steadily . . ."

Is Canada worried? Ah, there are safeguards on the sale of Candu reactors, newer and better than the safeguards that were supposed to prevent what happened in India. South Korea will have to sign a treaty promising not to use the reactor to make bombs and must accept regular on-site inspections.

But can any safeguards, no matter how stringently drafted on paper, ever stop a determined nation from making bombs? Is it not highly probable that a dictator like Park, who imposed a new constitution under martial law two years ago and cracked down heavily on political opponents, would go ahead anyway? Treaties never stopped wars. International finger-wagging didn't stop India from making the bomb, or deter Israel from setting up its own nuclear weapons research.

No wonder Canada sometimes is labelled holier than thou and excessively sanctimonious by other members of the international community. Despite MacEachen's worried words and high ideals last fall, Canadian policy on selling nuclear technology conforms to all the morals of a snake oil salesman.

Peace in Our Time?

George Orwell, where are you when we need you most? Two years ago this week the Vietnam "peace" treaty was signed in Paris, providing for a "ceasefire" in the war-torn Southeast Asian country. U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger was enthusiastic about this accomplishment. It allowed American president Richard Nixon to proclaim an end to the war and victory with honor and bring the boys home. American boys, that is.

Asian "boys" who can't go home continue to die. Last year was the bloodiest ever in the 28 years of continuous fighting in Vietnam, except for 1972, the year before the "truce" was signed. Last year, according to South Vietnamese statistics, 80,714 civilians and soldiers on both sides were killed.

Americans are still involved in Indochina, although there are no longer half a million U.S. troops there. Now, "civilian" pilots fly missions. Battered Cambodia, sucked into the maelstrom with the Nixon-ordered "incursion" of 1970, is the subject of much fearful speculation.

News reports from the capital of this once placid, beautiful country suggest another place and another time — Dien Bien Phu, 1954. Not only the suggestions of imminent defeat bring on that old deja vu. U.S. officials in Cambodia talk of maintaining American commitments to her allies, say that it is impossible to "cut and run" — everything but the old domino theory itself is trotted out.

President Gerald Ford wants nearly $1 billion in military aid for the South Vietnamese and other American allies. Quiet kites are flown in Washington about sending back U.S. forces.

They say those who do not learn from history are doomed to repeat it. Reading the news nowadays seems like an experience out of the early 1960s. Only the date has changed, and the death toll — it's higher.

"... how would it strike you if we sent some military advisers to Vietnam ...?

Fitting Epitaph

Better late than never. This would be a fitting epitaph to the Liberal government in Ottawa who finally decided to abolish the special tax privileges enjoyed by Time and Readers' Digest.

It's only a decade since the Pearson Liberals retreated on the same issue after being spanked by Uncle Sam for being naughty. Now the unthinkable has happened; the Liberals have discovered that nations all have unique cultures or at least should have.

The next question is "Can Canada survive without laundered editions of U.S. Time and U.S. Readers' Digest?" Will Canadians ever find alternatives to Readers' Digests' stories about the Red Peril, the Yellow Hordes, and how frightfully inadequate "our" nuclear capacity is? Will Canadians ever be able to sleep without reading Time's battle casualty counts between "the Allied forces" and the Commies in South-east Asia? Dear readers, only time will tell. — Graham Farstad, Sidney, B.C.

Capital Punishment:

Ever so often another concerned citizen voices his mostly unqualified opinion about the death penalty, advocating either its abolition or what not.

Let's face the facts and be not influenced by personal sentimentality or by biblical quotations of more than 2,000 years ago. We do not want that history endlessly repeats itself. Societies and cultures have been destroyed all along by the decline of government authorities, who were unable to take appropriate measures to keep society a healthy one. Society can be compared with its health to your body. If there is any malignancy, the doctor will recommend to have that threatening cancer removed, or the whole body will eventually perish.

With a murderer it is not to exercise revenge like "an eye for an eye." To refer to such quotations indicates only that the person is unable to think for himself. Here it is only and plainly an action to remove a cancer from the body of society. It is not revenge or punishment. This is done to prevent this cancer eventually destroying our social structure. We also do not need to use outdated methods, like hanging, to accomplish the removal. We are medically and technically adept enough to take care of it cleanly without ado or fuss. This is an operation, not a revenge action, so be humane about it.

Also let the government not add insult to injury by giving out life sentences and burden society with the upkeep estimated at $12,000 a year per inmate. Consider what our government spends in comparison to keep old age pensioners, who paid all their working life for what they now receive, what is only a fraction of the costs to keep a single criminal.

Do you, dear, soft-bellied and mindless compatriot, call that meting out justice? And what, if the murderer is paroled and starts all over again with his criminality? Try to think, if you can. — J. A. W. v. Heyden, 992 Haliburton Road.

Best Musical

I attended the play George M at McPherson playhouse last Friday evening. To me I thought it was the best musical I had ever seen and I am a senior citizen and have attended many plays.

The pace was fast and peppy. The leading man was fantastic. I don't know how his voice held out and the dancing was excellent.

I am sure they spent hours rehearsing and I was very angry at the comments in the "write up" about it.

Let us have more of these excellent performances — clean and cheerful. This is what we need these days — not earthquakes, fires and volcanoes. Life is hard enough. — Mrs. R. Wallace, 414-254 Gorge Road East.

Cattle Go for Feed Made From Wood

By NORMAN GIDNEY

SOOKE — You may have read with a chuckle a recent item in the papers out of Canberra, Australia, which reported on a rather fitting use of the masses of paper generated by governments — feeding it to livestock.

Scientists of the Commonwealth Scientific and Industrial Research Organization, the down-under equivalent of our federally-funded National Research Council, fed ground up reports and old research papers to sheep. And the animals gained weight on the diet.

Their average daily weight gain was 117 grams (about one-quarter of a pound) on a ration of 65 per cent waste paper, 32 per cent linseed oil and three per cent minerals. Another group fed old newspapers and the same ratio of linseed oil (to provide protein) and minerals didn't gain weight as fast.

CSIRO scientists said government waste paper, obviously a higher class of bumf than your ordinary daily paper, was three times more digestible than newsprint.

The idea of eating mutton from sheep raised on waste paper, or a steak from a paper-fattened steer, is not as ridiculous as it seems at first. The day is drawing near when most of the animals which human beings eat for food — from chickens to beef cattle — may be raised on something very similar to the contents of the average waste basket.

And a man who lives in Sooke may very likely play a large part in bringing about what may seem to the skeptical to be a very far-fetched development. Unlike the Australian experiment, however, his idea is to cut out the messy and expensive process of first turning trees into paper, using the paper and gathering the waste, finally feeding to livestock.

Instead, Herb Kalbfleisch, who heads a small research company called Eco-Culture Ltd. in Sooke, proposes to transform wood directly into cattle feed. He would utilize the immense amounts of wood waste available in British Columbia, the sawdust and shavings (known as hog fuel) from sawmills, the slash from logging operations and even whole stands of diseased or decadent timber which can't be used for any other purpose.

It doesn't matter. The patented process developed by him and Seattle research chemist Otto Orth can use almost any type of wood, or for that matter, any type of material composed of cellulose — peanut shells, rice hulls, wheat chaff, straw, corn husks. Obviously, it has wide applications. But in B.C., the cheapest, most plentiful form of cellulose naturally comes from trees.

Kalbfleisch pointed out in an interview that a survey by the provincial Council of Forest Industries found that just in the Vancouver Island-southern mainland region alone, mills are turning out every year 2,474,000 tons of hog fuel, the sawdust, bark and shavings which are the waste by-product of B.C.'s sawmilling industry. Nowadays, it mostly goes up in smoke in beehive burners or is trucked to landfill garbage dumps.

"We've got simply monstrous quantities of waste," said Kalbfleisch. With his process — roughly similar to a pulp mill which "cooks" and "digests" wood chips to make paper — all this wood waste would be turned into productive animal feed. Cost to the farmer and livestock producer would be about $40 a ton, compared with prices double and triple that for hay and feed barley.

Commercial production is not far off. With John Friesen, son of a dairyman well-known in the Abbotsford area, Kalbfleisch formed in mid-1974 a private company called Cel-Chem Industries Ltd. with offices in Burnaby, B.C. Plans are well-advanced for a production plant on 10 acres of land in the Nanaimo Lakes area, about five miles south of Nanaimo.

The site is in the middle of an area where there are five major sawmills, with more not far north (Nanoose Bay) or south (Cowichan Lake). "They are all large producers of hog fuel," said Friesen. As well, it is served by the Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway. Pacific Logging Ltd., the forest industry subsidiary of the CPR which operates on southern Vancouver Island, will supply Cel-Chem with raw materials at first.

There's little question about the large potential market for the product. An article earlier this month in the Western Producer, a weekly farm newspaper published in Saskatoon, drew a large batch of mail from across Canada. The Saskatchewan government's department of northern Saskatchewan is interested and wants more information. The province has an abundant supply of trees which could be used. The Saskatchewan research council, another branch of that province's government, is also interested. From far-off Newfoundland an agriculture department official wrote to Kalbfleisch, pointing out that his process would be ideal for the province.

Newfoundland's small livestock industry is dependent on imports of feed from the mainland — at more than $130 a ton. And in B.C., Friesen said reports in December from Williams Lake indicated ranchers faced high feed bills — $86 a ton for hay and $160 a ton for feed barley.

"It would be a perfect export crop too," said Kalbfleisch, adding that England now imports hay from the eastern provinces at $140 a ton.

The feed made from wood waste should sell at the mill door for between $40 and $50 a ton, according to Friesen. That's a reduction of about 40 per cent over conventional types of feed, said Kalbfleisch. It's rich in carbohydrates, but has to be supplemented with protein. But besides the straight cash saving, Kalbfleisch pointed out "the farmer wins two ways."

First, it frees land on which he would otherwise grow his own forage crop for livestock, such as alfalfa hay, and second, it makes unnecessary a big investment in barns and silos for storage of livestock feed. Instead of storing a whole season's worth of hay, a farmer can buy supplies of cattle feed manufactured from wood — Kalbfleisch proposes to call it by the brand name of Nu-Pro — by the month. Another advantage, the product doesn't spoil from moisture and won't rot.

Livestock will eat the different wood-based feed with no problem, and extensive feed trials comparing cattle fed on standard rations and on the wood cellulose have shown animals fatten well on the wood product, but it takes longer than with grain.

The most recent one, carried out at Washington State University at Pullman, Wash. by Prof. Irv Dyer, showed cattle gained 2.22 pounds a day on a ration of 70 per cent wood cellulose and 30 per cent alfalfa pellets with a protein supplement, "a very satisfactory rate of gain." Animals on 80 per cent corn and 20 per cent alfalfa gained 4.16 pounds daily on the average.

Dyer said he's worked further and gotten the weight gain with wood cellulose up to around 2.75 pounds a day, "about national average for standard fattening rations."

But Kalbfleisch said that the cost of adding each pound of weight with the corn ration was 42 cents and only 28 cents with the wood cellulose.

"We are not as efficient in terms of time, but in terms of cost we are almost twice as efficient as standard rations."

All the feed tests to date were done in Washington state, where Kalbfleisch and partner Otto Orth first developed the process, but one is under way at the University of B.C. A total of 100 head of cattle are being fattened, 90 on regular feed rations. Five are getting 20 per cent wood cellulose plus a supplement and five more are on 40 per cent cellulose.

At the end of the test in June, the animals will be slaughtered and the carcasses examined for the fat-to-protein ration and the amount of weight gain as compared with cattle on regular feed. Kalbfleisch claims that the Washington tests showed less fat and more lean on the animals fed wood cellulose, with the meat graded A1 and A2 with no unusual "woody" taste.

Eventually, Kalbfleisch hopes to make wood cellulose edible for humans. He sees another 10 years of research ahead, refining the process. (He started tinkering after seeing a 1951 U.S. wildlife report on deer which said there was more food value in a tree than in Kentucky blue grass.)

Newspaper clippings of the world food conference, starvation and hunger around the globe are pinned to the wall of his office here. One states that the world has a stockpiled food supply of only a few weeks. Another reports on starvation in Bangladesh.

"What does the United Nations say? Sixty million people are going to die this year? It's not going to get better."

How Process Works

How is high-grade livestock feed manufactured from sawdust? While reluctant to give details of the patented system (the big multi-national forest companies of Canada and the U.S. have also been actively researching the same area) Kalbfleisch said it is similar to what goes on in a pulp mill.

Hog fuel is ground into a fine sawdust, "cooked" with a certain chemical at temperatures as high as 315 degrees Fahrenheit, washed and dried. The chemical and cooking medium are recirculated. Friesen said the plant will operate "virtually pollution-free." No large amounts of fresh water are required, and about the only effluent will be small amounts of steam, he added.

Kalbfleisch said it's been known ever since the turn of the century that many types of wood could be fed to animals if first treated properly. Research in the area was brought about by war-time necessity, and Kalbfleisch said Scandinavian countries, east European nations and Germany worked extensively to improve the digestibility of wood. First attempts involved treating wood with live steam and ammonia at very high temperatures. It was a very costly process.

Untreated wood would be digestible but for the lignin, a tough plastic-like substance, which surrounds the digestible cellulose in a sheath. Lignin gives strength to trees, grass and bushes.

"As long as the lignin remains covering the edible portion of the plant, the goodness of the plant is unavailable to the digestive system of a ruminant animal," said Kalbfleisch. Ruminants chew their cud, like cows, sheep, goats and horses.

Eco-Culture's process, which doesn't use large quantities of water, pressure cookers, acids or alkalis, breaks down and separates the lignin, which itself breaks down into phenols (phenolic resin is used to make plywood) tannins and a form of sugar.

A beneficial side-effect of the product is that the sugar in trees—which runs as high as 15 per cent—can be isolated in a form like molasses, said Kalbfleisch, but at present it's unfit for human consumption.

"It's a question of getting the impurities out. It might be sugar tasting like spruce trees." But he pointed out that the sugar could still be used to distill a cheap form of alcohol on which automobiles could be run.

The New Yorker: Laughter Amid Dark Shadows

By COLMAN McCARTHY
The Washington Post

Word isn't out on the plans of the New Yorker magazine for marking its 50th anniversary next month: Perhaps a party on a royal barge set floating down the river of success, or a decree that the magazine's ancient offices will be abandoned for quarters in Stamford, or an editorial pronouncement on the state of American journalism.

These are fable notions, species of the incredible and variations of the pompous that will never happen. Instead, The New Yorker will observe its 50th year with no grander act than appearing with another issue of the magazine. This is grandness a-plenty, because since 1925 The New Yorker has kept unfailingly to a style of writing, humor, enterprise and integrity that has made it the nation's richest deposit of magazine excellence.

Approximately 175,000 manuscripts, cartoons and other offerings come coursing in every year for consideration. Most get a polite rejecton slip, with the mysterious Roman numeral "I" in the lower left margin. Unlike most other magazines, The New Yorker carries no editorial masthead. The editor-in-chief, William Shawn, seldom grants interviews, less on the grounds that he is unapproachable (occasionally, if Shawn hears that a newspaper reporter is in the building and it is one whose work he admires, the reporter will be invited in for an amiable period of conversation) than on the idea that the content of the magazine speaks well enough for itself. The potential content is such that the magazine has a large bank of material ready to run. If a writer must endure a long wait for his piece to run, it is true also that readers wait: A current definition of an optimist is one who reads The New Yorker each week expecting a story by J. D. Salinger.

But much else is looked for, and found. In recent years, the magazine has been publishing with emphasis on the works of its factual writers. With much the social impact of the "Silent Spring" articles by Rachel Carson or the whole issue essay on Hiroshima by John Hersey, pieces last year on oil supertankers and asbestos combined investigative reporting with a quality often missing from daily journalism: prose lucidity. The social conscience of the magazine has been seen in recent examinations of defoliation in Vietnam, the herbicidal menace in America, occupational diseases, unaccountable corporations, the Justice Department, the Mylai cover-up, uncontrolled nuclear energy, the endangering of whales. All of this might appear to be a tilt toward the literature of catastrophe, and brings to mind the story (told in "Ross and The New Yorker" by Dale Kramer) about the ladies who had stereo-typed The New Yorker as a humor magazine. One said to the other: "I've read that long Hiroshima article from beginning to end, and I just wish you'd tell me what was funny about it."

Some of the mystification is on the premises, as Brendan Gill notes in his forthcoming book "Here At The New Yorker." On the decision of the magazine's editors to devote space to describing the world's unpleasantness, Gill writes: "At times, one heard grumblings, in the corridors of the magazine and out in the world, that Shawn was a masochist, who took pleasure in wailing and beating his breast in exaggerated trepidation over the debased conduct of our national and international affairs . . . (But) better than any other editor of our time, he has been able to measure the distance of our national fall from grace; better than any other, he measures today the difficulty of regaining that grace . . . For more than 20 years, it has been Shawn's fate to edit a humorous magazine that, holding up a mirror to life, everywhere reflects the darkest shadows and yet manages to make us laugh."

To much of the public, the names of writers of the reportorial pieces mean little — Whiteside, Brodeur, Harris, McNulty. Instead, the celebrities of The New Yorker are the bright lights from the past whose work shines on: James Thurber, E. B. White, S. J. Perelman, Wolcott Gibbs, Peter Arno, A. J. Liebling. Some of these are dead or slowing, but today the magazine has several staff writers who rank as the most professional in their field: Herbert Warren Wind on sports, Pauline Kael on films, Michael Arlen on television. Occasionally, a clinker article slips into the magazine — one thinks of "The Greening of America," or Kael's bliss-out on "Last Tango" — but these fall with muffled thuds that are unhearable amid the music from the regular offerings. One measure of the magazine's vigor is that 693 books have been published from articles originally written for its pages.

When the New Yorker began, its original editor — Harold Ross, "who doted on immaculate writing," Shawn said in the Gill book — wrote that it was not intended "for the old lady in Dubuque." It isn't known how the good people of Iowa and elsewhere took that, but it must have been graciously because 80 per cent of the magazine's current circulation of 492,000 is out of the New York area. The image of the magazine as a Manhattan journal of suavity does not hold among some of the country slickers in Dubuque: 117 of them subscribe to The New Yorker. As for the rest of Iowa, the magazine goes to such outbacks as Pottawattamie County (47 subscriptions) and Appanoose (12). Abroad, 4,075 subscribers are in the United Kingdom, 13 in Russia and one in Vatican City.

If the lone Vatican subscriber is the Pope, he more than anyone can relish The New Yorker's efforts to be infallible. A seven-member checking department scrutinizes every fact to be published. This devotion to perfection serves the reader, but it also allows the editors to run about a dozen fillers every week humorously exposing the typos, gaffes and editorial absurdities of other publications. An error of fact in The New Yorker would get more than the price of gold on the collector's market. The price jumped when a misspelled name was found in the recent Christmas poem of Frank Sullivan. The checkers made three calls to get right the name of Loretta Swit, (one t in Swit, not two) but an unmade fourth call might have avoided the mistake. Overall, the magazine's scrupulousness has brought journalism a long way from the Front Page days when the ethic was, if you have to check a story, you might not have a story.

Visitors to The New Yorker's offices are often stunned by the ecology: frazzled furniture, cramped corridors — one cluttered with old water-cooler bottles — and mini-cubbyholes for offices that wouldn't serve as mop closets in the nearby Newsweek or Time buildings. Such conditions — the land use bill due in the new Congress should have an amendment for The New Yorker offices — would do well for an underground sheet. Visitors go away befogged: Were they just at the quarters of a weekly of unmatched style and strength or at the site of an archaeological dig? Confusion persists until the next issue appears; then, nothing else matters except content. Does it hold or not? If so, then another affirmation is made that The New Yorker is not yet a great magazine — it is only the best we have.

Oil For The Lamps Of China

By J. O. RONALL
New York Times

China's role in the world oil economy is changing. For a long time China was considered a country poor in oil, and Oil for the Lamps of China was a major import item and an attractive objective for the international oil companies.

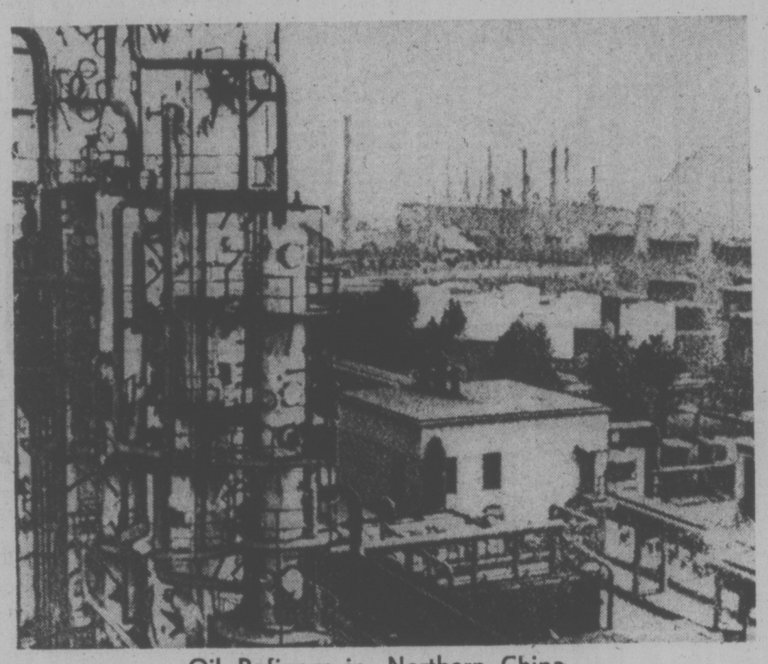
In 1958 China imported 2.5 million tons of petroleum products from the Soviet Union. In 1962 such imports were still 1.9 million tons. Since 1962 no imports have been recorded, and China has become an oil exporter.

When discussing China's oil developments, it must be remembered China publishes almost no meaningful data on its economy. Most figures released are percentages of an unknown absolute figure or refer to some other data not public knowledge.

Consequently, analysts piece together data from different sources, make conjectures and relate this uneven information to the few known facts. Occasionally, results can be cross-checked against newly-emerging sources, but final estimates must always be taken with caution.

China's oil reserves during the 1950s were put at less than six billion metric tons by most industry estimates, and increases in Soviet oil output were planned on the assumption of China's rising import needs.

Meanwhile, industry estimates have been increased to more than 10 billion metric tons albeit with a wide range of estimates: in 1973, Shell estimates China's recoverable oil reserves at only 2.7 billion metric tons, while at the other extreme there reportedly is a U.S. industry estimate that puts the reserves, including offshore deposits, as high as 50 billion metric tons.



Oil Refinery in Northern China

Shell's estimate would place China about 10th in worldwide ranking of reserves; the latter estimate would make it first.

Most U.S. experts assume China's proven reserves to be about 10 billion metric tons. (As a comparison, Saudi Arabia's are set at 22.5 billion.) More accurate estimates may become available as the Chinese authorities seek outside help in development of their oil resources.

China has maintained a policy of precluding foreign participation, although seeking foreign expertise and equipment.

So far, all U.S. and Japanese inquiries on joint development have been declined, and the Chinese are moving to build up their own capability for exploration and development of offshore oil.

So far China's own oil consumption has been low. Reportedly petroleum products account for only seven per cent of the country's total energy production. The country is hardly motorized, particularly since there are no privately owned cars or trucks.

China's energy needs are met about 85 per cent from coal, less than five per cent from hydroelectric sources and the rest (less than 10 per cent) from oil and gas.

However, oil consumption is rising as China expands its use of ships, motorized junks, diesel locomotives, trucks and other oil-using machinery.

In 1973 China began to export oil on a commercial basis by selling one million tons of low-sulphur crude to Japan. Smaller quantities of petroleum products have been shipped to Thailand, Hong Kong, North Korea and North Vietnam.

An interesting political note is contained in recent Chinese offers of crude oil to Germany and Australia. These moves seem to be a reaction to China's realization that its support of the Arab "oil weapon" does not harm the superpowers — the U.S. and the Soviet Union — as much as it does the Western European community, a group that China probably wishes to see strengthened until it could effectively oppose the influence and expansion of the superpowers.

THE NEW MATH JUST DIDN'T ADD UP

TORONTO SUN

A new word is going around in educational circles — "numerate," with its opposite, "innumerate." Just as a person who can't read and write is illiterate, a person who can't handle numbers is innumerate.

What's disturbing about the currency of the word is that innumerates are showing up in droves at universities. The universities of Ottawa and Carleton are considering new courses to teach freshmen students things they should have learned several years ago, such as multiplication of fractions, reduction of fractions to their lowest common denominator, and simple algebra.

Since present-day youngsters are, by all accounts, just as intelligent as those who went before them, the fault must lie in the school system. And it's easy to identify two cases of the rise of innumeracy.

One is the New Math, launched in the schools in the 1960s with vast enthusiasm and too little previous experimentation. This is a conceptual, abstract approach to mathematics which not more than one in 10 schoolchildren can master.

Out of that minority may come a new breed of great mathematicians, but at the expense of the other 90 per cent. The majority learn less about manipulating numbers than students did under the old math, and many of them — with a potential for very respectable achievement — turn against the whole subject.

Another cause of innumeracy is an excessive reaction against the old methods of rote learning by sheer repetition and memorization. This is certainly a poor way to teach children to think for themselves.

But to go from that insight to the abolition of all classroom drill, as some teachers and schools have done, is to overlook the fact that memorization is the only sure way to implant certain basic tools of learning so that they can be used instantly and automatically when needed. The absurd result is that many bright students flounder in Grade 10 algebra because they don't know (among other basics) the multiplication tables.

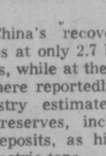
Talk Much, Do Nothing



RUSSELL BAKER

The Ford government's verbal blitzkrieg on the oil problem recalls the story a Middle Western congressman once told me about addressing a soured group of his constituents who were of central European extraction.

Aware that they were unhappy with his performance in Washington, the Congressman, a Democrat, threw them a pulsating stemwinder promising, if re-elected, to cut taxes, end war, lengthen the human life span and make the liver bile flow at the rate of two pints a day.

When he was exhausted by these evocations of the Democratic millenium, he asked for questions, and a man in a lumber jacket arose with one which produced the only cheers of the evening. "Why you Demos talk so much — do so nothing?" he asked.

Talk so much — do so nothing has been the essence of the government's oil policy since the gasoline lines vanished last spring. We have been vociferously assured that the country faces no graver threat than the oil shortage, wherefore President Ford has resolutely ruled out a gasoline tax to cut oil consumption.

President Ford is as stout a ruler-outer as we have had in Washington since Calvin Coolidge. Given a problem, he instinctively rules out government action. One may argue the merits of the Coolidge reflex, but Coolidge himself was admirably consistent in following it.

He did not make speeches sounding like Kennedy, Johnson and Nixon, and then go to the office and act like Coolidge. He ruled out everything flamboyant, including 16-cylinder doomsday speeches. This is where President Ford fails on the oil problem. He has ruled out everything except strong speech declaring that something has to be done.

If the president is the champion ruler-outer, the heavyweight at ruling-in is Secretary Kissinger. Answering questions from Business Week magazine, Kissinger has just refused to rule out war in the oil zones. War, he said, might become an option if the oil nations caused "some strangulation of the industrialized world."

What do the Arabs make of this talk? "Some actual strangulation" is a slippery phrase. Has there not been "some" strangulation already in the United States since the doubling of oil prices? At what point on charts of rising unemployment and ailing business does strangulation become "actual" enough to place war in the ruled-in category.

We can only guess. What is worse, so can the Arabs. Being a scholar of diplomacy, Kissinger must know that nothing is more dangerous in a hostile confrontation than leaving an adversary in doubt about your intentions, yet Kissinger shows them only the poker face.

The Arabs might sensibly reason that Kissinger's vagueness about ruling war in means that he has actually ruled it out, since a diplomat of his skill would take great pains to clarify his intentions in a dangerous situation.

They will have to consider other questions, of course. "For whom," they will ask, "is Kissinger speaking?" Can he be speaking for the president? Surely not, for the president has already shown that he is not sufficiently alarmed about the oil situation to inconvenience the voters with a gasoline tax.

If he is unwilling to tax gas, is he likely to fight a war? Would he rather fight than tax? Presidents have done stranger things, and very recently. The Arabs will know that. They will know the foolishness of counting upon American presidents not to do the ridiculous.

But what of Congress? When ruling war in, Kissinger ignored the fact that Congress would have to approve it, and spoke as if it were something he and the president could settle between them. This would be presidential war as practiced in the days when the president did as he pleased and sent his lawyers to Capitol Hill to announce that if Congress did not like it, it could always try to impeach him.

The Arabs read the papers, too. They will know that Kissinger will not extend such an invitation to Congress these days, must guess that neither he nor the president would make war without the blessing of a Congress that is tired of presidents, Kissingers and wars.

Examining all the available information, the Arabs estimating American intentions can hardly avoid the conclusion that Washington's oil policy remains what it has been for the past year and that Kissinger's warlike murmuring means only that he is still following the basic policy guideline: Talk so much do so nothing.

Have you noticed how many small cars are coming out today that bear no resemblance to anything small?

There's a good reason for this. Big cars make big profits. And simple, practical, unencumbered small cars make small profits.

At Fiat, we learned how to make a living out of small cars a long time ago. And we've spent the last 40 years making sense out of them.

The Fiat 128 below is about 4 feet shorter than the Skylark, the Fury, or the Monarch. But, it gives you just about the same kind of legroom.

Instead of loading it down with all sorts of gadgetry, we've given it things that actually make it perform better.

None of which are even available on the Skylark, Fury, or Monarch.

Last, the Fiat 128 costs hundreds of dollars less than they do.

You see, when the Big Three said these were small cars, they never said they had small prices.

Coal Supplies All Tied Up, Ocean Cement Delays Switch

By AL FORREST
Times Business Editor

Ocean Cement has discovered, to its surprise, that there is a coal shortage in British Columbia, Bamberton plant manager Al Watt said Thursday.

He said all coal currently being mined in B.C. is tied up by contracts and there is no surplus available for new projects.

Ocean Cement plans to convert its Bamberton plant from oil to coal but has temporarily shelved the project.

Feasibility studies will continue but the company was not rushing because of the lack of coal and a long delivery time of up two years for the necessary equipment.

Cost of the project will be $5.2 million.

Watt said the search continues for coal supplies and the company is checking mines in the Rocky Mountains now.

The company was also watching with interest B.C. Hydro's coal-mining project on northern Vancouver Island.

Hydro is drilling for coal between Port Hardy and Port McNeill. First priority for any coal discovered by Hydro would be the new thermal power plant planned for Vancouver Island.

Ocean Cement is hopeful that surplus coal might be available from up-Island but the company was prepared to bring in coal from Alberta if necessary for its plant.

Hydro is planning 113 drill holes totalling 7,000 feet in the first stage of its project. It has not announced where on Vancouver Island it will construct its thermal plant.

Watt said Ocean Cement decided to convert to coal when prices for oil in 1974 appeared to be heading for a 100 per cent increase. These predictions have come true, he said.

However, the company has been surprised to discover there is simply no coal available that is not already committed elsewhere.

The Bamberton plant manufactures 600,000 tons of cement per year, using oil as a fuel.

Meanwhile, the company is assembling land in the Vancouver area for a new $60 million cement manufacturing centre.

The new plant when constructed would have a capacity of 750,000 tons per year.

This total capacity would enable the company to produce more than enough cement for the domestic market and would lead to an aggressive export program, the company said.

It had not yet been decided whether the new Vancouver plant would use coal or natural gas. It was unlikely to use oil because of the high cost.

Air Firms To Merge

VANCOUVER (CP) — John S. Farrell, president of Gestalt International Ltd., has announced agreement in principle has been reached for Gestalt to acquire all the shares of Cross Canada Flights Ltd. of Ottawa.

Farrell said the acquisition is expected to be completed by Feb. 29 and is subject to a formal agreement being executed and the approval of all regulatory bodies.

Cross Canada Flights is engaged in flying, training, charter and repair, maintenance and storage services. Survair Ltd., a Gestalt subsidiary in Ottawa, is engaged in aerial mapping and geophysical exploration in Canada and overseas.

Farrell said the two companies plan to merge their facilities "in order to better serve the aviation community."

Gestalt is the developer and marketer of the patented Gestalt photo-mapper, a high-speed computerized system that automates the production of maps from aerial photographs.

Two Unique Tugs Among New Five

CFB Esquimalt's auxiliary fleet is being upgraded with five new tugs at a total cost of $7,197,699.

Two of the vessels being built at Yarrows Ltd. will be the first of their kind in the area. The contract was let at $5,312,343.

A new fire tug, one of two under construction at Vancouver Shipyards Co. Ltd., will cost $1,604,356 and two new tugs, delivered in 1974 added another $281,000 to the tug-replacement program.

Measuring just under 100 feet, the hulls and superstructure are practically complete but work on the two tugs has stalled until Voith-Schneider propulsion systems are delivered from Germany.

It's these systems that will make the tugs unique in this area.

"A normal ship has a skeg and rudder," Allwood explained, "but a vessel with this type of propulsion system does not."

Instead, Allwood said, propellers are placed about one third of the ship's length back from her bow, around her turning point.

"This makes the vessel very manoeuvrable and gives her very good thrust," Allwood said. "For example, two of these tugs, one at the bow and the other at the stern of the Provider (the navy's large support ship) can pull the ship off the jetty, being able to move laterally (sideways), fore and aft with ease."

In Europe, Allwood said, it has been proven that two such vessels can do the work of three conventional ones.

Powered by two diesel engines from England, the new tugs will have a pull of 17 tons.

The tugs are being built to replace the Heatherton and the Clifton and are to be named the Glendyne and the Glendale.

The fire tug, which is expected to be delivered this spring, while not as revolutionary as the vessels being built at Yarrows, is also more modern than the tug she will be replacing.

She will have Zed-drive twin screw propellers which can be angled for easier manoeuvrability.

To be named Firebrand, she will have a pumping rate of 5,000 gallons of water a minute and a 500 gallon-capacity for foam. Her speed will be 12 knots.

The two tugs delivered in 1974—the Lawrenceville and the Parksville—were built on the mainland by the Vito Steel Boat and Barge Construction Ltd. of Delta. Forty-five feet long, they have a pull of 12 tons and an engine capacity of 375 horsepower.

They replaced the old Lawrenceville which is now at HMCS Chippewa, the naval reserve division in Winnipeg; the Adamsville, which is now at HMCS Discovery, Vancouver's naval reserve division, and the Marysville, now in reserve at Esquimalt.

ACCORD ON TOILETS

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — In 50 clauses and three finely-printed pages of explanation, the U.S. Coast Guard defined the unmentionable Thursday in a way that it hopes will help end a long-standing disagreement with Canada.

With publication of its "marine sanitation devices — clarification procedures and design and construction requirements," the coast guard set out in technical detail and polite jargon the kinds of toilets it will be requiring in future on vessels using the U.S. waters.

Unlike earlier, tentative drafts of the regulations from the Environmental Protection Agency which forbade any sewage discharge altogether, the new version says ships can loose their sewage into American water after it is suitably treated with machinery and chemicals. Therein lies the hope for compromise with Canada.

Since the EPA will "probably" amend its no-discharge standards, the coast guard says, it will not apply those standards to new ships for another year.

After that, it assumes the standard will no longer be in force and all ships will be able to install approved toilet facilities without holding tanks.

To mollify environmentalists, the coast guard tightened up its regulations about the amount of bacteria that would be allowed to remain in treated waste.

Existing ships are generally being given until 1980 to install the kind of toilets approved by the coast guard. New ships must comply with the law by 1977.

Canadian Flag Fleet Urged by Report

By IAIN HUNTER
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Canada must move toward creation of a Canadian flag ocean fleet to maintain its interests in international world trade and ensure the development of its natural resources, industries and ports, according to a report released here Thursday.

The report, by special consultant H. J. Darling, warned the federal government against "a hasty construction and operation of Canadian-flag ships," but stated that changing international trade and shipping conditions require "some Canadian-flag participation."

It stated that Canada's deepsea shipping policy at present is in a state of "helplessness and indecision" in the face of growing national ocean fleets and bilateral shipping deals between such countries as the U.S. and some South American states.

The report called for the centralization of control and administration of international shipping matters under a single authority with effective powers, the announcement of a policy to define Canadian interests in such fields as Arctic shipping and transportation of bulk natural resource cargoes, and a more aggressive Canadian stance in dealing with other countries whose shipping policies affect their trade with Canada.

The central authority should have a minimum plan for the encouragement of Canadian-flag shipping short of operating subsidies or direct capital subsidies beyond those already available for the shipbuilding industry, the report said.

The minimum plan, it stated, should provide credit comparable to that available in other countries and to that now available to foreign purchasers of Canadian ships through the Export Development Corporation.

In return, the report proposed, operators would have to accept a "flag covenant" to keep their ships under the Canadian flag for a set period and give evidence that they have agreements with labor unions for the binding arbitration of disputes.

Transport Minister Jean Marchand, who tabled in the Commons copies of the August, 1974, report, announced that he has established an interdepartmental advisory board to make recommendations on the development of future policies in the area.

The report noted that the negative attitude to international shipping policy in Canada has been due to unrealistic demands for Canadian-flag ships without basis in concrete Canadian interests, and to confidence in what is regarded as a highly competitive international shipping industry.

But, it added, the competitive nature of international shipping is changing, with competition in a free market giving way to competition between large shipping consortiums supported in many cases by national governments and to direct competition from national fleets.

WHAT IS HAPPENING TO OUR WORLD?

WORLD-WIDE PROBLEMS

- THE ENERGY CRISIS

- WIDE-SPREAD POLLUTION
- RACE AND COLOUR
- LAW AND ORDER

PAUL: "In the last days perilous times shall come. For men shall be lovers of their own selves." (II timothy 3:1,2)

JESUS: "Nation shall rise against nation and kingdom against kingdom . . . and upon the earth distress of nations with perplexity . . . Men's hearts failing them for fear, and for looking after those things which are coming on the earth." (Luke 21:10, 25, 26) a natural enough question in view of the troubles in today's world. But no politician or statesman, however clever or of whatever party, really knows what the future has in store for mankind.

WHAT IS THE WORLD COMING TO?

But the Bible knows and always has known! And the Bible has never been wrong. See what the Bible predicted about what is happening in our world.

DANIEL: "And there shall be a time of trouble such as never was" (Daniel 12:1)

AND YOU?

The Bible can tell you not only what is to happen to the world but how you can find peace of mind now and have assurance and hope for the future For Jesus also said "And when these things begin to come to pass then look up and lift up your heads, for your redemption draweth nigh" (Luke 21:28).

Judge Bares Brazil Torture

By MICHAEL ARKUS

RIO DE JANEIRO (Reuter) — A leading judge has alleged that illegal arrests, torture and crimes against human rights have taken place in Brazil.

Brazil's military regime has consistently denied reports published abroad that political prisoners were tortured, and that censorship prevented Brazilian newspapers from publishing such reports.

But Judge Aliomar Baleeiro of the Supreme Federal Tribunal told a legal symposium in Sao Paulo Thursday that serious crimes have been committed.

"These crimes are the illegal arrests, the tortures, the disappearances—if somebody disappears nothing more is found, not even the ashes of his corpse—and the oppression of the freedom of thought," he said.

The judge's remarks were published in most of Brazil's newspapers, showing a further relaxation of censorship as part of President Ernesto Geisel's policy of gradual liberalization.

Lysaneas Maciel, a deputy of the opposition Brazilian Democratic Movement (MDB), has said many persons had disappeared and were prisoners or being tortured.

The families of 22 persons who vanished without trace in the last 18 months believe they were arrested by the secret police. The families are meeting MDB deputies later this week to request a parliamentary inquiry.

Oil Spill Aftermath Shocks Expert

VANCOUVER (CP)—A Canadian environmental expert, sent to Japan to observe the clean-up of a massive oil spill last month, says that not even 8,000 efficient Japanese workers could handle the pollution.

Nick Nicol, senior technician with the environmental emergency branch of the Federal Environmental Protection Service, said 40,000 tons of bunker oil poured into the Inland Sea, a national park area dotted with islands, about 400 miles west of Tokyo.

"The physical situation of the inland sea is so similar to our Strait of Georgia," said Nicol "I came back horrified — it was not as if I did not know what an oil spill could do."

Nicol said in an interview the spill was caused when a storage tank at an oil refinery ruptured on Dec. 18. The refinery was part of a giant petrochemical complex operated by the Mitsubishi Oil Co.

"I was very impressed by what the Japanese were doing to mop up the spill. But even though they are very efficient and energetic, they could not handle it."

He said the ocean clean-up will be finished early in February but the beach clean-up will likely continue all summer. He estimated damages at $100 million, half of that in the fishing and edible seaweed industry alone.

He said that until the spill, the refinery's anti-pollution safeguards were so efficient it was possible to catch prawns in the ocean alongside the complex.

But he said the oil flooded into the harbor so rapidly, five days later it was polluting 10,000 square miles of ocean and coastline.

Nicol, who speaks fluent Japanese and who previously had lived in Japan for almost five years, said chemical dispersants were not used because they were ineffective in the first days of clean-up.

"The oil was too heavy," he said. "The sea was cold, the winds were strong and containment by booms and dispersal by chemicals didn't work. Besides, the fishermen were so afraid that chemicals would pollute the water even worse that they stopped and boarded any boats that were spraying chemicals.

He said clean-up eventually centred on bailing the oil. "One fisherman's wife could fill a 45-gallon drum in 20 minutes using only a bailer to scoop up the oil," he said. "I don't know how the Japanese managed to get so many bailers so fast."

He said the oil slicks ranged from three inches to one foot deep and caused high mortality in fish culture farms.

"All fish operations and markets in the area were closed down," he said. "The shortneck clam, which is a very cheap item of food for lower and middle class families, disappeared from the market.

"The beaches were awful — like layer cakes of sand and oil. In the harbor, the oil was like great floating pancakes. Chocolate mousse was the police name given to the oil — I won't mention the other names," he said.

Not Enough Food—Scientists

NEW YORK (WP) — The world's food supply will not be enough to feed the world's people unless countries mobilize massive amounts of money and technology to attack the shortage head on.

That was the gloomy assessment of four of the leading U.S. food experts speaking here at the American Association for the Advancement of Science, which is holding its 141st annual meeting this week. All four experts came close to despairing that the world could curb its population growth, which would be one way to beat the food shortage.

"There are few encouraging signs of a decreasing rate of population increase," the Rockefeller Foundation's Ralph W. Cummings Jr. said. "There is no physical way that the world can feed indefinitely an unlimited and constantly growing number of people. As the White Queen told Alice in Wonderland, we must run very fast just to stand still."

"Even if somebody could miraculously clamp a lid on population growth rates right now," said Rutgers University's Dr. Robert H. White-Stevens, "there are so many people of childbearing age in the world today that world population is bound to grow from the four billion it is today to six billion by the end of the century."

Almost as bleak were the scientists' forecasts of how technology can help the world overcome its food shortage. As constraints, the scientists cited a scarcity of land, fertilizer, water, know-how and even willingness to help others or accept help from others.

Break-In Warning

Esquimalt police have alerted homeowners following four break-ins in two hours in the Saxe Point Park district Wednesday afternoon.

Sgt. Doug Sproxton, noting all the break-ins occurred in daylight, said residents should pay more attention to people passing through their neighborhoods and acting suspiciously.

He said between $50 and $60 cash was stolen. The culprit in each case entered through a back or side door which was kicked or shoved open.

Sproxton said 97 per cent of all break-ins in the municipality occur at homes where there is no car in the driveway and he suspects juveniles are largely responsible.

Boat Firm Gets Loan

A provincial government loan of $125,000 has been awarded to Thompson Machine Works, boat manufacturers in Parksville, Economic Development Minister Gary Lauk said Wednesday.

The loan will allow employment year-round of 30 people, previously working on a seasonal basis.

The company manufacturers tugs and fishing boats and sidelines in logging equipment for the mid-Vancouver Island area, Lauk said, adding the loan is designed to ensure transportation manufacturing for the province by B.C. concerns.

Recreation Study

A $40,000 study to develop methods for assessing the success of recreational developments in the province has been commissioned by Economic Development Minister Gary Lauk.

The contract has been awarded to the Vancouver firm, Edwin Reid and Associates Ltd., and Simon Fraser University professor Jack Knetch, who will evaluate economic, social and environmental impact of proposed developments.

Alternative methods for the developments will also be considered.

The study will be conducted in conjunction with the department of recreation and conservation to assist decision-makers in organizing their information.

U.K.-U.S. Co-operation Pledged

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford and British Prime Minister Harold Wilson agree that both nations must co-operate as they did in two world wars to meet the serious economic challenges they face.

Wilson, who conferred with Ford Thursday on the first of two days of meetings, said the major threat to the security of both nations was "this new and menacing world economic crisis."

Speaking after his arrival on the windy White House lawn, the silver-haired Wilson said, "We know that the urgency of meeting this challenge is not simply a question of economic mechanisms and economic institutions. It is vital for the economic security, the jobs and the living standards of the millions of families whose interests we are here to protect."

Jeers Greet Extension Of Ford Clemency Plan

Times News Services

TORONTO — President Ford's one-month extension of the clemency program for Vietnam war resisters was greeted with derision here by American exiles who renewed their call for an unconditional amnesty.

"As long as President Ford continues the program we will continue our boycott," said Steve Grossman, a 28-year-old draft evader from Chicago and spokesman for the Toronto American Exiles Association.

The Association and Amex-Canada, an exiles' magazine, said in a joint statement Thursday that the extension of the program "amounts to continued punishment because we exercised our democratic right, indeed, our duty to resist an unjust, illegal war.

"The Ford program a dismal failure. In the light of the program's extension, we are extending our boycott. We again call for universal unconditional amnesty for all draft resisters, deserters, veterans with less than honorable discharges and civilian resisters with antiwar records."

Ford's program, announced last Sept. 16, links a presidential pardon to some form of alternate service and, in the case of draft resisters, the signing of an oath of allegiance.

In extending the clemency program, Ford said that he believed "many of those who could benefit from it are only now learning of its application to their cases."

"This belief," he added, "is based on a significant increase in the number of applications and inquiries over the past few weeks when publicity and communications about the program were greatly expanded."

The surge of interest has come, not from fugitives but from a third category of men and women — draft evaders and deserters who have already been prosecuted, convicted or given less-than-honorable military discharges.

There are about 8,700 civilian offenders in this category and some 100,000 former service personnel.

Ex-Lions Assault Trial Set

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Feb. 26 trial date was set Thursday for two former B.C. Lions football players charged with causing a disturbance in a public place.

Garrett Hunsperger and Bud Magrum are to appear in provincial court in Campbell River to face charges in connection with an incident at a hotel there last May.

Magrum faces an additional charge of common assault.

Hunsperger also was charged with assault causing bodily harm following a disturbance last April at a Prince George Hotel. Trial date on that charge has not been set.

Hunsperger was ordered to pay $16,500 damages and Magrum ordered to pay $3,000 Tuesday in B.C. Supreme Court civil actions which followed two assault incidents.

The Canadian Football League club dropped Hunsperger from its roster Wednesday. Magrum was released at the end of the 1974 season. Both are American citizens.

Lottery Finalists Named

SASKATOON (CP)—Eight candidates were drawn today to become the Western Canada Lottery's next quarter-millionaire.

The eight ticket holders or their representatives will be in Lethbridge Feb. 15 for the final draw which has a $250,000 first prize. Second place is worth $100,000, third place $50,000 and the remaining five will collect $25,000 each.

Also drawn today, in a new twist for the nationally televised final from Lethbridge, were eight other names to be matched with the finalists.

These names will be kept secret until the show goes on the air Feb. 15. The person whose ticket is matched with the quarter-millionaire will win $50,000 with $20,000 for second place and $10,000 for third. The remaining five get $5,000 each.

COCAINE HEARING DELAYED

JASPER, Alta. (CP) — A cocaine trafficking charge against the stepson of B.C. Lieut-Gov. Walter Owen and another man has been adjourned to Feb. 7 for hearing in provincial court here.

Jointly charged are Del Grauer and Edward Greenberg, both from the Sechelt-Gibsons area. The charge was laid last July 28 by local RCMP.

It is the third adjournment for the pair since they were charged and was granted at the request of the Crown.

The two are also charged with possession of marijuana.

CBC Land Bid Details Sought

A CBC offer of $500,000 for a parcel of city-owned property on the west side of Blanshard, between Hillside and Kings, was tabled Thursday by Victoria city council until the broadcasting authority states what its development plans are for the site.

The city has already indicated it is prepared to sell the land to the CBC, but Mayor Peter Pollen has criticized the organization for not providing information regarding the type of building it plans to erect.

Zoning committee chairman Ald. Mike Young noted Thursday that the city has been scrupulous in screening other development proposals for Blanshard, an arterial entrance to the city deserving special treatment, and it should be equally careful on this occasion.

"We wouldn't sell to anyone else without having a peek at what the action is going to be," he said.

"We seem to be carried away with the idea that government agencies can do no wrong, whereas our development experience in this city indicates the converse is actually true."

CBC officials have indicated they are interested in the Victoria property only if the agency is awarded Channel 10, the last remaining channel in the Vancouver-Victoria area, by the Canadian Radio Television Commission.

Words Said Villains In Brain Power Loss

By KIT COLLINS
Times Staff

The most fatal aspect of modern culture is the tendency in the western world to reduce everything to the logic of conversation, according to California psychologist Dr. Robert Ornstein.

"A great mind has come to mean simply that a person has a great mouth," he mourned to silent audience at University of Victoria Thursday.

Concentration on conversation, words, writing and other types of sequential rationale does a very successful job of limiting brain power to half-speed.

Both the rational and the intuitive methods of thought are equally valid, he says, because an entire side of the brain is devoted to each. "How you feel is as valid as how you think."

Espoused in Psychology of Consciousness which has been adopted for classroom use by more than 300 colleges and universities in North America, Ornstein's theory is biologically based on the two sides of a Westerner's brain.

There are two "astonishingly different personalities wrapped up among 200 million nerve fibres in the brain; the left hemisphere specializing in the rational, word-emphasized analysis, and the intuitive right hemisphere which taps over-all appreciation of art or music.

The two sides, says Ornstein, are not in opposition to each other, but the biological basis for two different modes of thinking.

"But people continue with the theory that if I can't say it, it isn't there. It's one of the reasons there's so much garbage written about mysticism — when you try to deal with it, or write about it, there's difficulty."

The mistaken view is "that if you cultivate intuition you somehow start talking like an idiot."

The exemplary Enstein was no great mathematician, or writer, said Ornstein, "but he was great at intuition. He said the picture would come all at once, as a whole view, and later he translated it into sequence."

The great scientific achievement was the combination of boths, say Ornstein, He was in his right mind too.

Truck Lobby Pays $75,000 for Law

WASHINGTON (WP) — The U.S. trucking lobby made almost $75,000 in last-minute campaign contributions to House of Representative successful drive to put heavier trucks on the nation's interstate highways.

The donation included $16,500 for 14 members of a House subcommittee on transmembers last fall during a portation that played an important role in adoption of the measure. The House had rejected it earlier in the year.

The contributions were disclosed in the year-end report of the Truck Operators Nonpartisan Committee (TON), the political arm of the American Trucking Associations Inc.

President Ford signed the highway bill containing the heavier-truck provision into law this month. It permits rigs with gross-weight limits of 80,000 pounds on the interstate system, in contrast to the old maximum of 73,280 pounds.

99 Years In Asylum

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Martha Nelson, who was committed to a state mental hospital in 1875 and spent the next 99 years in state institutions, is dead at 103.

She was committed at the age of four and records on her commitment were destroyed in a fire in 1881.

"We've never been able to find out why she was committed," said Dr. Albert Soforenko, superintendent of Orient State Institute and a reform advocate who brought Miss Nelson to public attention.

The Portrait of a Mad Killer . . .

LOS ANGELES — The "Skid Row Slasher," who has cut the throats of eight men in two months, is a husky blond homosexual in his 20s who may be driven by impotence or hatred of his father, police said today.

He is "a jackal, an animal who preys on weaklings and cripples," but not a vampire a police spokesman said, denying reports the slasher apparently drank the blood of some victims.

"We think he's a sexually weak and deficient person who is being driven to a frenzy to commit these murders as a substitute for the normal heterosexual relationship," said deputy police chief George Beck.

LONDON — The Duke of Norfolk, Premier Duke and Earl Marshal of England who organized Royal Weddings, coronations and investitures, died peacefully in his sleep early today, a spokesman said. He was 66. Norfolk also ranked as Britain's senior Roman Catholic layman.

WINNIPEG — A thalidomide baby here has been awarded a $640,000 cash settlement for deformaties caused by the drug. Robert Smethurst, a Winnipeg lawyer, said it was the largest cash award made by Richardson-Merrell Inc. of Cleveland in a class action involving 72 cases.

GRASS VALLEY, Calif. — Herbert Gibboney, 58, wants to sell one of his eyes for $35,000 to pay for a costly operation for his wife. "I'm desperate," said Gibboney, who placed an advertisement in a local newspaper offering to sell the eye, with the buyer paying the cost of transferring the eye. His wife requires an operation to replace a portion of her jaw which has deteriorated for reasons undetermined by doctors

FLORA, Ill. — Seven-foot two-inch Dan Gerber at last has found a girl his size. This weekend he has a blind date with the tallest woman on earth. Berber, 22, a 225-pound grain elevator worker, read about Sandy Allen, 19, in the Guinness Book of Records. At seven-foot five inches, she is the world's tallest woman.

As fate has it, she lives in Shelbyville, Ind., just a few hours away by car.

"I decided to call her, you know," Gerber says. "She sounded real nice. Of cours we talked about our heights and what size shoes we wear and all this. We've got a lot in common."

"There's not that many men around as tall as I am," says Miss Allen.

Record Loss

LONDON (Reuter) — More ships were lost at sea in 1974 than in any previous peacetime year, the Liverpool Underwriters' Association said Thursday. In all, 194 ocean-going vessels were written off last year, compared with 179 in 1973.

MAN-DAY LOSS DOWN 600,000

Man-days lost because of strikes in 1974 dropped substantially compared to 1972, the last major bargaining year, Labor Minister Bill King said Thursday.

A total of 122 major disputes in 1974 resulted in a loss of 1.5 million man-days compared with 2.1 million man-days lost in 1972.

King said the decrease in days lost came despite a 12 per cent increase in the labor force and a 19 per cent increase in total union membership in B.C.

A total of 84,000 workers were involved in strikes during the past year out of an average work force of 1.06 million.

The improved labor relations climate is "a direct result of the reforms introduced in the Labor Code in the fall of 1973," said King.

But 1975 will again be an "on" year for bargaining with more than 450 contracts covering 235,000 workers up for renewal.

Peak periods will be in June when contracts covering 57,114 employees will expire, in September when contracts covering 41,615 will expire and in December when 70,966 will be bargaining for new contracts.

B.C. Ferry Aid Boost Sought

B.C. should receive federal financial support equalling ferry subsidies to the Maritimes, Transport Minister Bob Strachan said Thursday.

The East Coast gets "lots and lots of money" from the federal government, said Strachan, and B.C. Ferries would like to benefit from the same kind of arrangement.

Strachan will be in Ottawa next week to discuss the matter with federal Transport Minister Jean Marchand.

Figures released by the transport department indicate that federal support for provincial ferry operations will be almost $97 million in the 1974-75 fiscal year.

The figures were contained in a written reply by Marchand to Donald Munro (PC — Esquimalt-Saanich).

The projected total support is $96.84 million, well up from the previous year's total of $64.6 million. The respective totals for 1972-73 and 1971-72 were $44.52 million and $37.83 million.

The breakdown for the current year shows the bulk of support, $83.1 million, going to ferry operations in Newfoundland. This includes $80 million to Canadian National Railways with the balance shared by seven other companies.

Prince Edward Island gets the second-largest share of $12.95 million, $10.55 million of which goes to CNR and the rest to Northumberland Ferries Ltd. of Charlottetown.

Nova Scotia gets $1.34 million, all destined for CNR ferries, while New Brunswick's $282,000, Quebec's $823,000 and Ontario's $126,368 go to private operations.

The cost of repairs and maintenance also are going up — to $13.8 million this year from $5.99 million in 1973-74.

Newfoundland will get $10.7 million in repair and maintenance subsidies this year, P.E.I. $2.45 million and Quebec $650,000.

Strachan will also meet Wednesday with Communications Minister Gerard Pelletier to discuss B.C.'s bid to have Channel 10 set aside for a provincial television station.

Indications from Ottawa have been that cabinet will not agree to B.C's request.

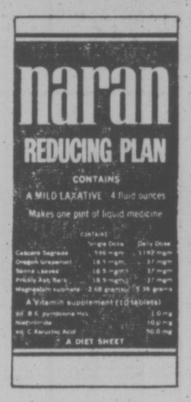
APPRAISERS PROTEST

VANCOUVER (CP) — Port of Vancouver customs appraisers have protested to Prime Minister Trudeau that they are receiving less money than their Montreal counterparts for the same work.

The 38 federal appraisers said in a telegram that "it unfortunately appears that again the French populace of Canada is receiving more favorable treatment."

The workers, who appraise cargo moving through the port, estimate they are getting about $1,500 to $1,600 less than Montreal appraisers. Top rate for Vancouver workers is $13,095 a year.

1 OUT OF EVERY 2 CANADIAN ADULTS ARE OVERWEIGHT!



It's a fact. Today, more people are eating or drinking so many calories that they weigh more than their desirable weight. However, in practical application, good nutrition is simple. It consists of eating a variety of foods in order to provide the many nutrients we all need — but not over-indulging. Following a sensible, wholesome diet is essential. But to help speed the loss of excess weight, Naran has formulated a special weight-control regimen.

The whole plan is included in every package. An exclusive liquid formulation that is taken with grapefruit juice, a vitamin supplement to help maintain good health, and a comprehensive low calorie weekly food menu. Follow label directions and take as needed.

Naran is a simple, easy regimen that can help you lose excess bulky fat quickly before you start on your long-term weight-control diet. If you are not completely satisfied with your first purchase, just return the empty carton for your money back.

The Naran Regimen
1.	Pour liquid into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take 2 tablespoonsful twice a day as needed.
2.	Take one vitamin pill per day as a dietary supplement.
3.	Follow the daily Naran Food Plan Menu.

The Inn Thing

Ye Olde Spat Over Gorge Pub

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

Robin Hood's not-so-merry men appealed to the sheriff Thursday to get tough with an illegal tavern in Sherwood Park, which they claimed was a little too merry for the peace and quiet of the neighborhood.

And they won at least a partial victory.

The "sheriff" in this instance was Victoria city council, which found itself trying to sort out a zoning hassle involving the operators of several Gorge Road motels.

Council abandoned its second attempt to push through a zoning bylaw amendment which would have legitimized an illegal beer parlor operation at the Sherwood Park Motor Hotel, 123 Gorge.

The decision followed strong complaints at a public hearing from the owners of neighboring motels, including the Robin Hood Motel, 136 Gorge.

They demanded to know why the city had tolerated the contravention to motel zoning rules for more than two years, and why it was trying for the second time to sanction the beer parlor operation.

Excessive noise from that establishment, the motel proprietors claimed, continues until the early hours of the morning and has had a detrimental effect on their own business because their clients cannot enjoy a decent night's sleep.

"People have left in considerable numbers after staying for only one night," said Clifford Watt, lawyer for the management of the Oxford Tower Inn, 133 Gorge.

Rolf Ullrich, of Garden City Motels, owners of the Robin Hood motel, estimated the loss of income due to clients checking out earlier than they had intended was about "10 per cent a year or $15,000."

"Why do we have bylaws that are not enforced?" he asked. "Why do some people not have to obey?"

Zoning committee chairman Ald. Mike Young later told reporters the question of what the city can do about the illegal pub operation will now have to be referred to the city solicitor. He declined to say whether the city could or would close it down.

Young said when plans for the Sherwood Park project were first submitted to City Hall they showed a licensed lounge and storage area where the beer parlor is now located.

He said council's two attempts to pass an amendment that would officially recognize the pub's existence — by stating that a motel with 100 or more rooms can have a pub licence — were made to seek "an acceptable way out of the difficulties."

The original bylaw passed last year was later quashed by the B.C. Supreme Court on grounds that the change in zoning rules constituted a rezoning, and that all person potentially affected should have been notified as required under the Municipal Act.

In defending the action, the city had claimed it was only a "minor" change in regulations and therefore full notification was not required.

WINDS GUSTING up to 60 miles per hour toppled top branches of tree from Provincial Museum grounds on to Government Street early today. Provincial public works crew cleared away the debris before it could snarl traffic. Striking Canadian Union of Public Employees outside workers, normally responsible for road obstructions, said the tree was the provincial government's problem, as it came from government property. Winds will continue in the Victoria area over the weekend, and a few flurries of wet snow and rain are also expected. (Bill Halkett photo)

Rebuilding the VGH: How It Could Be Done

How do you replace an old hospital with a new one—on the same property—and not interrupt care of patients?

That's the problem directors at Victoria General Hospital are wrestling with and they examined a model Thursday night which suggested how it could be done.

The property boundaries they worked with include the 5.3 acres on which the present largely obsolete hospital sits, as well as another 3.2 acres across Humboldt, part of the St. Ann's Academy site bought for hospital development about three years ago for almost $1 million.

The new hospital then rises to the south, alongside the old one, in four stages.

First stage is construction of a block or tower straddling the Humboldt street location, with a potential for about 280 beds and linked to the old hospital.

Second stage could see patients from the hospital's A and X wings transferred to the new building, where expanded diagnostic and service facilities could also be located. The two abandoned wings could then be demolished.

In the third stage, part of C wing could come down and a second block or tower built at the corner of the first one, giving the new hospital a capacity between 500 and 600 beds.

The final phase could see most of the old buildings demolished, others retained and refurbished and possibly replacement of the nurses' residence.

The model is not intended to specify size or design of new buildings, Garth Gloeckler, director of general services, told directors. It just illustrates the feasibility of replacement on the property available while keeping the hospital running.

There was no discussion of what replacement might cost or how many years it might be phased over.

The model will be made available to consultants who are currently preparing a master plan proposal for hospital development within the Capital district.

It will also likely be shown to the new regional Hospital and Health Planning Commission, the agency with authority to plan regional hospital construction.

Man Gets 5-Year Sentence For Raping Saanich Woman

Remy Antoine Gatto was sentenced in B.C. Supreme Court today to five years in prison for the rape of a 20-year-old Saanich woman last Sept. 14.

Gatto received the sentence from Mr. Justice J. C. Bouck with no apparent show of emotion although his 25-year-old wife Judithe, who stood by him throughout the trial broke down.

After a two-day trial which ended Jan. 24 an all-male jury found the 28-year-old Saanich man guilty of rape and of breaking into the victim's apartment.

Bouck sentenced Gatto to five years on each count to be served concurrently.

Gatto said he had been drinking heavily after work on Sept. 13 and went to the apartment of his sister-in-law later that evening.

When he found her not at home he went around the side of the apartment building and, he claimed, inadvertently stumbled into a recessed patio outside the victim's ground floor suite. While trying to get out he said he fell through her bedroom window.

He said he heard a woman scream and tried to quiet her by putting his hand over her mouth.

He said he could not recall any of the events that followed until police arrived 10 or 15 minutes later.

The victim testified in the trial Gatto had pounced on her and told her to shut up or he'd kill her.

He then proceeded to rape her, she said.

Bouck said he could not accept Gatto's story, saying it was too far-fetched and inconsistent with other evidence.

"There's no explanation for the attack," the judge said. "Either he has chosen to block out the reason, or what's worse he has shown no remorse for his actions."

Bouck said there must have been some premeditation in the act since the apartment Gatto entered was occupied by a young single, attractive woman.

Turnham had urged the judge consider a number of what he termed mitigating factors.

The lawyer pointed out there were no serious physical or emotional injuries done to the victim and that there was only minimal evidence the rape had occurred.

Turnham noted Gatto had only one prior criminal conviction and that was 10 years ago. He described the man as a "good, hard-working, honest type of individual".

Mrs. Gatto testified she and her husband were married in the Bahamas in 1968 and that the couple have a 3½-year-old boy. They are expecting their second child in early March.

"I will wait for him until he comes home," she told the judge. "Everything is going to be exactly as it was when he left."

Jail Terms Given Purse-Snatchers

Two young purse-snatchers were jailed Thursday on nine counts of robbery with violence.

In county court, Ronald James Kellington, 20, of 2909 Harriet, was sentenced to two years in the penitentiary and Daniel Bruce Lockhart, 18, address not known, to one-year definite in the provincial jail system and six months indeterminate.

The sentences differed because Kellington had a criminal record.

The pair pleaded guilty Jan. 15 to nine purse-snatchings in Oak Bay and Victoria between Dec. 14 and Dec. 31 when they were arrested by city police.

The robberies netted them slightly more than $500. All of the victims were elderly women. Some received minor injuries in the attacks.

Higher Court Trials Set

Two preliminary hearings in Victoria provincial court have ended with orders for higher court trials.

Kendall was charged after the death of Gordon Robert Smith, 21, of 7874 Lochside, following an incident Oct. 12 on the parking lot of the Royal Oak Motel, 4676 Elk Lake.

The hearing before Judge Harold Alder was on an arson charge against John Robert Atkinson, 20, of Vancouver, and Terry Darrow Emerson, 20, of 1195 Trans-Canada Highway. They were charged following the fire Oct. 12 at the Jehovah's Witnesses' Kingdom Hall, 1055 Joan Crescent.

Ask The Times

Q. I have noticed that as we approach the winter solstice the evenings seem to close in more rapidly than the mornings, reaching their earliest about mid-December, while the mornings close in later, reaching their maximum after the solstice or about the first of January. Why is this? One would suppose the evenings and mornings would close in together equally, each reaching their greatest extent Dec. 21, the shortest day. A.C.C.

A. Your question is interpreted to mean that you feel there is morning twilight of duration unequal to evening twilight on a given day. The Dominion Astrophysical Observatory says this is not possible, but depending upon where you reside, or make your observations from, there may be an impression of variation. With a constant horizon — such as at sea — and with perfect atmospheric conditions, it can be shown that the angle of the sun's ascent on a given day is equal to its angle of decline, and the half-way point from day to day represents noon.

SYMPHONY SEAT TO TINDALL

He was nominated at the Tuesday regular board meeting in private session and has consented to serve. The other vacancy is expected to be filled by an appointee from the provincial government.

The master contract with the Victoria Musicians' Association has been approved for the 1975-76 season and a fund has been established for the purchase of musical instruments.

Four anonymous donors have pledged $8,000 — specifically towards new timpani — bringing the funds so far collected for this purpose to $8,250.

Other fund-raising activities already under way will take the form of a Spring Festival and the Silver Anniversary Symphony Ball at the Empress Hotel sponsored by the Women's Committee.

You Can Lead a Horse to Water But . . .

IT WOULD BE NICE TO believe that a transfusion by government of taxpayers' dollars will achieve wonders for the Canadian book and magazine publishing industry. But a certain skepticism lingers, and I can only hope that State Secretary Hugh Faulkner's proposed rescue program won't be money down a rathole.

With a few honorable exceptions, I suspect that publishers will remain incurably timid, slow on the uptake, and lacking in the go-for-broke vitality that marks their American opposite numbers.

These unkind words don't mean that I feel the Canadian publishing industry should be denied reasonable protection from unfair competition. Any domestic industry should be guaranteed a fair chance to cash in on the home market.

But protection carried too far can have an enervating effect. It can sap the will to struggle — to leap in and stir around — and to achieve a better product.

The Canadian reader also has, or should have, rights both positive and negative.

If the government the reader helps finance attempts to vitalize Canadian publishing through increased subsidy shots in the butt and protection pills administered orally, that reader should be able to expect results in the shape of better reading.

On the negative side, he should be spared any misguided attempt by government to force-feed him Canadian books simply because they're Canadian.

State Secretary Faulkner seems to have an inkling of those readers' rights, although I don't recall that he was tactless enough to blat them out in open meeting.

What Faulkner did point out to publishers, authors and book distributors is that the Canadian book world is "pretty heavily subsidized," and that federal protection has its limits.

There would be no enforced quota of Canadian titles on retail bookshelves, for instance, and no attempt to crowd public libraries into boosting their Canadian book lists.

Good for Faulkner! He might have added that sound books by Canadians don't gather dust on our bookstore or library shelves. Witness the hard-earned and well-merited successes of Pierre Berton.

At this point I run out of praise for the state stecretary, who falls victim to delusion. Culture is nice, this misconception suggests. People should have it. So let's mix up a batch and lay it on with a shovel.

The Faulkner version:

Government book sales outlets in post offices and other federal buildings. Adequate representation of Canadian authors on newsstands in airports and railway stations. Canada Council-promoted book reviews and other programs to increase demand for Canadian-written books.

Although a bookstore operator who has toiled to build up a business mightn't appreciate government competition across the street, this all sounds very well. But it scamps one fact that has a vital bearing on publisher success or failure.

This is the saleability of the product — and here we arrive at an area in which the publisher must invest more time, care and money.

I think that we have less than our proportionate share of readable writers in Canada. It's possible that this will always be the case . . . perhaps our national genius doesn't run strongly in that direction.

But whether or no, I suggest that a generous portion of any government subsidy to Canadian book and magazine publishers should be earmarked for the purpose of bringing Canadian writers along.

Not through direct grants — there's no quicker way to ruin a writer than to place unearned money in his hand. What he needs, particularly in the earlier stages of his hard and lonely climb, is professionally sound advice, tough but constructive criticism, and prompt reports on his submissions.

The old adage about leading horses to water still holds. Government can promote and subsidize to a fare-ye-well but the situation is unlikely to change until the publisher takes much more vigorous steps to improve his product.

Life Sentence Verdict In Saanich Shooting

By HOI-YIN DER
Times Staff

Roland Henry Bird, 35, was sentenced to life imprisonment Thursday for the murder of his 34-year-old girlfriend, Marlene Margaret Hutcheon on Sept. 5 in Saanich.

After a three-day trial before Mr. Justice Craig Munroe of the B.C. Supreme Court, the jury of eight men and four women deliberated two hours before delivering the guilty verdict.

Mr. Justice Munroe reminded the jury that even though Bird said he was drunk and could not recall how or by whom his girlfriend was shot, that was not the issue.

The issue was wheher Bird killed Hutcheon, and if he did commit the crime, was it with or without intent. This, the judge said, must be viewed without regard to Bird's failure to remember the incident.

He said there is no Canadian law which excuses crime solely because the accused was drunk or could not remember.

The judge explained each of the three verdicts the jury could deliver.

"If he does an act which he knows will kill, then he is said to have had the intent to kill, and the verdict should be guilty of murder."

The verdict should be manslaughter only if Bird's "drunkenness was so great that he was not capable of forming an intent to commit murder."

The verdict should be one of not guilty if the jury had any reason, to doubt that Bird did kill Hutcheon.

In his summation, defence counsel Dermod Owen-Flood said, there were inadequacies in the prosecution's presentation of the case.

Owen-Flood held up a photograph, taken by police at Bird's home on the day of Hutcheon's death. He said the picture had not been included in the exhibits, even though police photographers had thought it important enough to be taken.

"I only came across it by accident," said Owen-Flood. "It shows signs of excessive drinking."

He also complained about police procedures involving testing of blood samples.

Owen-Flood said that Bird's blood-alcohol content should have been measured. This, he said, would have proven that Bird was very drunk at the time Hutcheon was killed.

"All of this should have been done during investigation, but it was not . . . and it is not fault of this man . . . the onus is on the Crown . . . Now we'll never know, so any doubt must be given to the accused."

Crown counsel Douglas Gray said police tests showed that Hutcheon was shot from a distance of 10 feet, which he suggested defeated the defence's hypothesis that there had been a struggle in which the gun was fired accidentally.

He referred to a telephone call Bird admitted making, although Bird could not remember the conversation itself.

Gray reiterated crucial points in the testimony:

The telephone operator and a Victoria policeman who answered the rechannelled call testified a caller with a male voice had phoned on the day of the shooting.

He had told them "I killed my girlfriend, I've shot myself" and had given his address.

Tires Bald, Inquest Jury Told

Seventy-eight-year-old James Mitchell of Langford told a coroner's jury Thursday night he had been unable to avoid what he believed to be a stationary vehicle parked on Trans-Canada Highway north of Helmcken Jan. 14.

Mitchell, 3203 Willshire, said he was driving north at about 35 to 40 miles an hour when suddenly he saw "a dark stationary car parked in the middle of the road . . . I slammed on the brakes and tried to pass on the right."

He was testifying at an inquest in the death of Mrs. Margaret Cottyn, 36, of 2155 Millstream.

Mitchell said his car struck the Cottyn vehicle, then rolled into a ditch. The Cottyn car collided with a truck in the approaching traffic lane.

A mechanic's report on the condition of Mitchell's car showed the two front tires and one rear tire completely bald. The brakes were in a less than perfect condition.

District Coroner Edmond St. Jorre adjourned the inquest until Feb. 10 when results of blood sample tests will be given in evidence.

Housing Fight Rejected

B.C. Court of Appeal Thursday quickly rejected a bid to quash a North Cowichan bylaw allowing the controversial 1,230-unit housing complex on Mount Tzouhalem.

Proposals for development of the 506-acre site have been the centre of controversy for more than two years.

In contrast to the hundreds who crammed into the North Cowichan municipal hall for 17 hours of public hearings in March 1973, only a few opposing residents were on hand to hear Thursday's verdict which came after only a few minutes deliberation.

Mr. Justice Hugh A. MacLean, president of the three-judge appeal hearing, concluded the "very careful judgment" given in B.C. Supreme Court by Mr. Justice H.C. McKay last January "is not one which should be reversed by this court."

McKay had ruled opponents to the Kingsview project had been given ample opportunity to voice objections and had been given sufficient information.

Victoria lawyer James Gow, counsel for the 96 residents who launched the appeal, argued the council had been unreasonable in approving the land-use contract and had given no thought to what impact such a large development would have on the public purse, schools, municipal services and rural environment.

He contended that, with no planning reports, and in face of such problems no reasonable council would have approved the project.

Duncan lawyer David Williams, representing the council, contended unreasonableness did not constitute grounds for the overturning of a council's action in court.

Citing previous court decisions, Williams contended bylaws were not open to review by the courts as long as a council has acted "honestly and within the limits of their powers."

Asked if councils could act blindly, Williams replied:

BEFORE THE JUDGE

Two 17-year-olds who pleaded guilty to breaking into Claremont Poultry, 783 Claremont, on Dec. 31 were ordered in Victoria provincial court Thursday to provide compensation in the form of 50 hours community service to owner Peter Goddard.

The order was included in a 10-month probation term set by Judge William Ostler after Kirk Metson of 3274 Glasgow and David Russel Cox of 3220 Quadra appeared for sentencing. The pair pleaded guilty Jan. 9.

Police said the youths stole more than eight dozen eggs from the poultry plant. The eggs, valued at $7, were later recovered.

An 18-year-old who damaged two mattresses in Saanich jail Dec. 31 after being arrested on a charge of impaired driving pleaded guilty to mischief.

Ostler fined Michael Bender, of 229 Cadillac, $50, placed him on four months probation, and ordered him to pay $68.73 to Saanich municipality to cover the cost of repairing the mattresses.

A two-year probation term was grudgingly imposed by Ostler on David Andrew Jenson, 18, of no fixed address, who appeared for sentencing on a charge of breaking and entering the Shop Easy store, 230 Cook, on Dec. 15.

Ostler said he was influenced in part by the "earnestness" of defence counsel's application for probation over a jail term and part by the crown's declaration to leave disposition of the case "in the hands of the court."

"I am not persuaded it is in the public interest you should not go to jail," Ostler said, noting Jenson was on probation at the time the offence was committed.

"I feel you should be taught you can't get away . . . with this kind of criminal conduct, and defiance of the court."

As a condition to the probation he ordered the youth attend the Metchosin weekend camp.

"If you don't obey . . . or get into further difficulty with the law," the judge said, ". . . it will be jail."

Ostler also ordered Jenson pay $75 compensation to the store for a plate glass window smashed in the break-in.

★ ★ ★

Eric Glen Hodgson, 17, of 1830 Fern, was placed on one-year probation and ordered to attend the Metchosin weekend camp after appearing for sentencing for car theft.

Police said Hodgson and a juvenile boy stole a car in the city Dec. 23. They were picked up in Saanich the next day.

Second convictions for possession of marijuana proved a costly experience for one man and a jail sentence for another on Wednesday.

Patrick Bruce Radford, 27, of 841 Esquimalt, was sentenced to 20 days in prison after he pleaded guilty to possession of a baggie of marijuana when stopped by police in the 500-block Pandora.

Crown counsel alleged a prior record including a conviction for possession of a narcotic in Victoria last August for which he was placed on one year's probation.

Martin Dieter Burkart, 21, of 210 Dundas, was fined $200 for possession of one joint of marijuana police found on him during a search of his car in the Colony Inn parking lot Tuesday night.

Burkart, who pleaded guilty, admitted a prior conviction for possession of marijuana last Nov. 29.

DOUG PEDEN – EDITOR

No Word On Ginnell

Pat Ginnell's case was resting this morning.

The outcome of a meeting between the Victoria Cougars' coach and the Western Canada Hockey League's committee on referees wouldn't be made known until a report had been filed with league president Ed Chynoweth of Saskatoon.

"I'm waiting myself," said Chynoweth.

Ginnell's meeting in Vancouver on Thursday was with Bill Burton of Lethbridge and Del Wilson of Regina.

The meeting with Ginnell was to "discuss" the aftermath of a recent $1,000 fine and three-game suspension imposed on the Victoria coach.

League governors apparently were upset over some of Ginnell's remarks following the fine and suspension.

Thursday's meeting also was to have dealt with the indefinite suspension of Victoria winger Eric Sanderson.

Chynoweth said this morning he was still awaiting a report from Wilson but that "it's unlikely that anything will be released. It's a league affair."

A Vancouver report said Thursday night that Ginnell was asked to make a public apology to Chynoweth and the league governors for his remarks last week, including the threat that he wouldn't pay the $1,000 fine.

"I don't know what they decided in Vancouver," Chynoweth said. He added, however, that it is possible the suspension of Sanderson will be lifted today, "unless the committee on referees tells me otherwise."

Sanderson has already sat out three games for drawing a match penalty several days ago in a game at Winnipeg.

If the suspension is lifted, Sanderson would be allowed to play in Saturday night's game at Memorial Arena against Winnipeg Clubs.

While the outcome of Vancouver's meeting remained in the dark, more positive results happened on the ice Thursday.

Fred Berry's three goals sparked New Westminster Bruins to an 8-3 victory over the visiting Clubs while in Edmonton, the Oil Kings edged Saskatoon Blades 4-2.

NEW PACT KEEPS JAUCH WITH ESKS

EDMONTON (CP) — Ray Jauch has ended speculation that he will leave his post as head coach of Edmonton Eskimos by agreeing to a four-year contract with the Western Football Conference club.

Jauch, who had one year remaining on a three-year contract, agreed to the new contract Wednesday with club officials although he hasn't actually signed the document. Jauch, who was appointed head coach in 1969 and has transformed the Eskimos from an also-ran into conference champion, will be starting his seventh season as head coach this year.

Super Soccer

GLASGOW (Reuter) — Scotland will introduce a "super" football league next season in a bid to make its soccer more competitive and bring back fans to clubs starved of support and cash.

The future of most of the country's 38 football league clubs hinges on the new set-up.

"It's the most important step for Scottish football since the league was started," says league secretary Thomas Maule.

When the current season ends in April, Scotland's top 10 clubs will form the Super League, the premier division, and play each other four times next term.

The bottom eight clubs in the current First Division, plus the leading six in the second, will make up a new First Division, with the other 14 clubs left to fight it out in next season's Second Division.

"It suits everyone, because every club will be desperately trying to stay or get into the Super League where the crowds will be big and the atmosphere certain to bring out the best in our soccer," says Maule.

The drop in crowds is the biggest problem facing Scottish soccer. A loss of one million fans over the past five seasons has reduced many clubs to part-time status and threatened the survival of those at the bottom of the ladder.

"Above all, the lack of support is reducing our standards," says Jock Stein, manager of Glasgow Celtic which has won the league title for the last nine seasons.

Possibility Exists For Westerners

Saanich Westerners still have an outside chance of finishing in a tie for first place with Vancouver BuzzBombs in the Senior "A" Women's Inter-City Basketball League.

Saanich moved to within four points of BuzzBombs by defeating cross-town rival Victoria Saints 57-34 Thursday night at Reynolds High School. Westerners have two games remaining and BuzzBombs have one.

BuzzBombs, the reigning Canadian champions, clinched at least a tie for the title Wednesday with a 55-26 victory over the University of British Columbia Jayvees while third-place Simon Fraser University topped winless Vancouver Jonos, 77-32.

Mary Coutts dropped 20 points to pace Westerners while Angie Dobie supplied strong support with 14 points.

Scoring Power Keeps Tigers on Win Streak

Scoring power is promising to carry Victoria High to the top in the Inter-High School Girls' Basketball League.

Tigers are not out in front yet, but they are the only undefeated club in the 10-team circuit and they are piling up points faster than any of their rivals.

They were at it again Thursday, blasting Oak Bay Bays 63-24 at Oak Bay to remain two points behind Reynolds Roadrunners in the league's "B" division.

Claremont pulled into a first-place deadlock with Mt. Douglas in "A" division by clipping Parkland Panthers 43-24.

In Thursday's other contest, Dunsmuir Demons had a two-game win streak snapped when they were edged 34-30 by Esquimalt.

Sisters Leslie (22 points) and Shelley (16) Godfrey were the scoring leaders for the Tigers, who have averaged 58.8 points per game and held opponents to an average of 23.5 while chalking up six straight triumphs.

Reynolds, with seven wins in eight starts, has averaged 38.5 points per game while Mt. Douglas has the best scoring mark in "A" division, hitting at a 46-point clip through six games.

Bays Salvage Victory With Last-Gasp Shots

Steve Pescod hauled down a rebound and scored with only three seconds left on the clock to give Oak Bay Bays a 56-54 nod over visiting Victoria Totems in a Greater Victoria High School Boys' Basketball League game Thursday night.

Larry Dalziel scored a basket with 14 seconds remaining to give Bays a 54-54 tie and set the stage for Pescod. Mark Higgins led over-all scoring for Oak Bay with 17 points.

Bays are now unbeaten in seven games.

Forrest Partington, a six-foot-seven rookie, played an outstanding defensive game for Victoria. He held Dalziel, who hammered in 31 points against Mt. Douglas Rams on Tuesday, to a mere nine points while pumping in 12 points for his own squad.

Tim Lampard and Richard Griffin also scored 12 points each for Totems, who had a four-game unbeaten streak snapped by the loss.

Stu Montgomery topped Panthers with 16 points while clubmate Ted Inman added 14. Grant Westmorland fired 25 points to pace Spartans.

In exhibition play this weekend, Abbotsford Panthers, first-ranked in the province, will visit Totems tonight while fifth-ranked North Surrey Spartans will be at Oak Bay High. Both games start at 8:30.

On Saturday, Surrey meets Totems at 7 p.m. and Abbotsford visits Oak Bay at 8:30 p.m.

Conn Smythe Had a Gentler Side

TORONTO (CP) — Conn Smythe will be 80 Saturday, and the little pepperpot who built Maple Leaf Gardens and the hockey teams of a happier Leaf era seems mildly surprised at the idea.

"Only in the last couple of years have I realized I was in my 70s," he said in a recent interview. "If I felt any better, I'd be arrested."

The effervescent Smythe, promoter, race horse magnate, slave-driver and exponent of the school of hard knocks for enemy players, will be honored tonight for a gentler and less-publicized aspect of his long life.

He will be given a birthday party in recognition of his long humanitarian work for the Ontario Society for Crippled Children, for which he raised funds as honorary treasurer for years. More recently, he has been involved in work for the deaf.

While the years and the effects of a Second World War spinal wound have slowed the old warrior somewhat, mentally he has roughly the same outlook as when he coined his most noted managerial dictum for his leafs: "If you can't beat 'em in the alley, you can't beat 'em on the ice."

"Never start a fight unless you are going to win it," he advised the interviewer. "That's why I've not been in so many fights lately. Not sure if I was going to win."

His biggest fight of all, perhaps, was in bucking the great Depression of the 1930s to scratch up $2 million to build the Gardens, soon the showplace of the National Hockey League and still Toronto's top sports palace.

He converted Toronto St. Pats of the NHL into the Maple Leafs, and handed out stock to contractors, carpenters and masons to build the Gardens. The stock later became worth 30 times the original price.

Successful in business — he became a millionaire in the sand and gravel trade — he also was a daring wheeler-dealer in hockey flesh. Early in the Leaf's life, he laid out $35,000 for Frank "King" Clancy, then the highest price ever paid for an NHL player.

In 1947, eyebrows were raised around the league when he peddled off a complete forward line and two defencemen for centre Max Bentley of Chicago Black Hawks. But Leafs won the Stanley Cup and Hawks finished last.

What puzzles him most personally now is that no one in sport asks him for advice from his thick book of experience.

"I sought advice all the time," he says. "Today, I guess, we're all fed too much bull."

Esposito Finds Time a-Wasting

By The Canadian Press

Phil Esposito appears to have run out of time in his race to score 50 goals in 50 games but Bobby Orr has his third three-goal performances of the season and Boston Bruins have ended their three-game winless streak.

Esposito managed only two assists Thursday night while Orr's three goals led the Bruins in a 6-0 victory over California Seals.

Esposito, trying to match or beat Maurice (Rocket) Richard's National Hockey League record pace of 50 goals in 50 games, was left with 46 in 49 games. The Bruins' 50th game comes Saturday night against the Maple Leafs in Toronto.

In other games, Buffalo Sabres beat New York Rangers 6-3, Philadelphia Flyers defeated Toronto 3-1, Detroit Red Wings beat Pittsburgh Penguins 5-2, and Los Angeles Kings beat Washinton Capitals 6-4.

Orr ran his season goal total to 30, the fifth season the star defenceman has reached that plateau, and moved back into second spot in the league scoring race with 86 points, six behind leader Esposito.

Boston goalie Gilles Gilbert had to make only 15 saves for his second shutout of the season.

Ramsay had gone 14 games without scoring until he beat goalie Gilles Villemure in the second period and then put his second goal behind Ed Giacomin who took over the Rangers nets in the third period.

The Rangers' loss, their third in the last four games, dropped them 10 points behind the leading Flyers in the Patrick Division.

At Philadelphia, Reggie Leach's 25th goal of the season broke a 1-1 tie early in the third period and Gary Dornhoefer added an insurance goal on a Flyers power play 10 minutes later.

The win extended the Flyers' unbeaten string to seven games, including six wins.

Four goals by the Kings in the first half of the second period overcame a Washington's 2-1 first-period lead and Los Angeles coasted to victory over the Capitals.

Danny Grant's two goals led Detroit against the Penguins. Grant's second goal of the game, his 29th of the season, snapped a 2-2 tie early in the third period.

KELLY SUSPENDED FOR TWO GAMES

MONTREAL (CP) — Bob Kelly of Pittsburgh Penguins has been suspended for two games, National Hockey League president Clarence Campbell announced Thursday.

The suspension resulted from a match penalty assessed against Kelly by referee Wally Harris for deliberate injury to Keith Magnuson of Chicago Black Hawks during a game Jan. 29, Campbell said in a statement.

Kelly and Magnuson both received minor and major penalties following a fight but the referee banished Kelly from the game after noting that Magnuson was bleeding from the nose and one eye. The Pittsburgh player had tape on one hand around his thumb and little finger, Campbell said.

The injuries sustained were not serious but a new rule "was designed specifically to curtail the practice of wearing tape on the hands or at least to avoid injuring opponents by doing so," he said.

Magnuson received a three-game suspension for s a similar infraction earlier this season.

Russian Captures Singles

Times News Services

Vladimir Kovalev, a 21-year-old Moscow student, became the first Soviet skater ever to win the men's singles Thursday night and gave the Soviet Union its second gold medal at the European figure skating championships in Copenhagen.

Irina Rodnina and Alexander Zaitsev secured the first gold for the Soviet Union on Wednesday, routinely winning the pairs title for the seventh time in a row.

Traffic Jams Suit Parizeau

By The Canadian Press

"On my second goal I managed to score even though I was being pushed around," Parizeau said Thursday night after firing the puck past Chicago Cougars goalie Cam Newton three times to lead the Nordiques to a 5-2 World Hockey Association victory.

On his third goal, Parizeau added, he had to hustle around three Chicago defenders before spotting a clear path to the net.

The Nordiques' win kept them six points ahead of Toronto Toros atop the WHA's Canadian division.

In other games, Toronto Toros beat Indianapolis Racers 3-2, Winnipeg Jets defeated Phoenix Roadrunners 5-3, and Minnesota Fighting Saints defeated Vancouver Blazers 6-3.

Anders Hedberg scored twice in Winnipeg's win over the Roadrunners at Phoenix. Hedberg's second goal on a power play in the third period broke a 3-3 tie.

Don Tannahill scored two unassisted goals to lead Minnesota in the win over Vancouver and into third place in the Western Division.

Tannahill's second unassisted effort gave the Saints, who moved ahead of San Diego by one point in the standings, a 4-0 margin midway through the second period. He also had an assist.

In off-ice activity Thursday, the league announced that general manager Ron Ingram of San Diego Mariners has been suspended for one game and fined $200.

Bud Poile, WHA executive director, said in a news release:

"Ingram's deportment toward referee Brent Casselman and other game officials following the San Diego-Winnipeg game of Jan. 28 was not in the best interests of hockey in general and the WHA in particular."

Swiss Girls Continue World Cup Successes

It was her second downhill victory of the season and continued the Swiss team's run of successes in the last five cup meetings.

Annemarie Moser-Proell of Austria, already comfortably headed for her fifth consecutive title, again had to be content with second place. Switzerland's Marie-Therese Nadig, who last week beat Mrs. Moser-Proell on the pre-Olympic course at Innsbruck, finished third.

Salmon Fishing Not Bad Steelhead Picture Bleak

Salmon fishermen are still hitting it lucky in a number of spots around Vancouver Island but the steelheading picture remains poor except in rivers with some sort of controlled flow.

George Hall reports good fishing for winter chinooks in Finlayson Arm, either trolling with eight ounces of weight and bait or casting with a buzz bomb. The returns have averaged seven to eight pounds but on occasion have tipped the scales to 21 pounds.

Indian and Coles Bays have yielded fair numbers of bluebacks averaging two pounds right on the surface and chinooks to six pounds by trolling as deep as 250 feet with small spoons or minnows and dodger.

Fishermen working out of Deep Cove and travelling up to Sansum Narrows have been picking up chinooks to 14 pounds along Bold Bluff. Buzz-bombing and trolling with minnow or herring strip are the most productive methods.

Action has slowed down since the weekend off Oak Bay but a few chinooks up to 16 pounds are still coming in from the vicinity of Trial Island and Fiddle Reef.

Jack Windle topped all fishermen around Vancouver Island with a 34:08-pounder taken last Saturday off Albert Head. He was using super-strip, approximately 100 feet of line and two pounds of lead at the time and it only took about 20 minutes to land it.

Some of the large boats fishing the Victoria waterfront and making the trip out to Constance Banks have been coming back with chinooks up to 12½ pounds. Hootchies trolled right along the bottom are working best and many limit catches have been reported.

The kelp bed of Pedder Bay is yielding some good catches of chinooks to 18 pounds on hootchies and strip.

Wally Kennedy landed a 26½-pounder at Becher Bay last Saturday but returns have dropped off in the last three days. Perhaps the full moon and clear nights have something to do with it.

★ ★ ★

A few fishermen working the vicinity of Secretary Island with minnows or hootchies (either the green or green and white variety) have been boating chinooks weighing up to 13 pounds.

Further up-Island, spin-fishermen are landing chinooks in the two-to-three pound range while casting stingsildas off the Cowichan Bay wharf.

Waters between Harmac and Gabriola Island are providing excellent catches of chinooks averaging six to eight pounds with the odd one tipping the scales to 25 pounds. The favored method has been to use strip, one pound of weight and about 100 feet of line.

Other good reports were turned in from Northwest and Nanoose Bays.

Action has tapered off at the mouth of Alberni Inlet but some success was noted trolling deep between Denman and Hornby Islands as well as by casting with buzz bombs and stingsildas off the Comox wharf.

Five-to-eight pounders are being hauled in off the Campbell River government wharf and in Quathiaski Cove while spin-fishermen casting off the Kelsey Bay wharf have been going home with larger chinooks up to 20 pounds.

Steelhead anglers are picking up a few fish in the Sooke River, Muir Creek, San Juan River and Harris Creek. A few steelies have also managed to elude the Indian nets in the Cowichan and Koksilah Rivers to be caught by sportsmen further upstream.

Trout fishing has been good in Bear Lake and along dropoffs on the Youbou side of Cowichan Lake.

Fair catches of steelhead have been made in the Campbell, Puntledge and Little Qualicum Rivers, which are all controlled.

Nibbles: Unfortunately, it appears opposition to construction of the Chemainus River dam is about to enter the political arena . . . Provincial liberal leader David Anderson is expected to bring up the entire mess when the legislature reconvenes Feb. 18 . . . But, since rational appeals to both the manicipality of North Cowichan and the provincial cabinet to consider less harmful alternative sources of domestic water have fallen on deaf ears, it seems the only recourse left.

Some interesting statistics on bowhunting were derived from forms turned in for awards to the B.C. Archery Association. . . A total of 61 hunters made 177 kills. . . The average bow draw weight was 56 pounds and the animals were shot at an average 27½ yards . . . Sights were used by 42 of the hunters and instinctive methods of aiming were used by 19 . . . On the average the animals only went 42½ yards before dropping.

FOR MEN ONLY . . .

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Rangers have voted to bar women reporters from their dressing room. Women from the news media covering games involving the Rangers will be able to conduct postgame interviews in areas outside the dressing room, the National Hockey league team said. The team's vote is a result of the admission of women to the dressing rooms for interviews after the NHL All-Star game last week in Montreal.

BOWLER OF WEEK

Solid 668 triple carried Bob McCulloch to victory in men's tenpin division of Times Bowler-of-the-Week contest. Bob fired games of 221, 203 and 244 in Friday Nighters' League at Mayfair Lanes.

Toller Is Tougher In Figure Patterns

Cranston, who had a poor start in compulsory figures during the 1974 world meet at Munich and needed a remarkable performance in free skating to finish third, took an impressive step here Thursday toward his fifth successive national senior men's title.

Showing the benefits of intensive training this season, Cranston seemed to have conquered some of his former problems as he earned top ranking by all seven judges in the compulsory figures discipline of the three-part program at the Canadian figure skating championships.

Formerly an elusive factor on the talented Cranston's repertoire, figures count for 40 per cent in the over-all scoring. Compulsory free skating, scheduled today, accounts for 20 per cent and Saturday's free-skating segment adds the other 40 per cent.

Following Cranston, who is perhaps the finest free skater in the world, were two other skaters from the Toronto Cricket Club — Bob Rubens and Kenneth Polk.

In fourth place was Ted Barton of Vancouver.

The defending champion in senior women's singles also grabbed a solid lead after compulsory figures. Lynn Nightingale, an 18-year-old brunette from Ottawa, was ranked first by five judges and split one first-place vote.

Kim Alletson, 16, of Ottawa was third with Kathy Ostapchuk of Mississauga, Ont., fourth.

Jimmy Szabo of Coquitlam remained on top after two segments of the junior men's singles although he placed fifth in Thursday's compulsory free skating.

Kevin Hicks of Windsor moved up to second with Gary Beacom in third place ahead of Vancouver's Ken Moir. Brian Pockar of Calgary was fifth and Craig Pearce of Vancouver was ninth.

Camille Rebus, a tiny 15-year-old from Edmonton who won the Western Canada crown two weeks ago in Victoria, climbed from fifth to first place in junior women's competition.

Kim Scott of Kamloops, the B.C. champ, was in seventh place.

One championship was decided Thursday when the Thornhill, Ont., sister-brother team of Marie-Ellen and Bernard Souche captured the junior pairs crown.

National novice champions in 1971, the Souches finished with a narrow margin over Karen Newton and Glenn Laframboise of Toronto. Third were Janet and Mark Hominuke of Calgary.

Susan Anderson of Victoria and Jerry Berry of Nanaino were ninth after the compulsory portion of the junior dance event. Joanne Sloman and Greg Ladret of Vancouver were third behind the Ontario combinations of Judie Jeffcoat and Keith Swindlehurst, Debbie and Greg Young.

Leading the senior dance after compulsory patterns were Barbara Berezowski and David Porter of Toronto. Holding down fifth place were Debbie and Randy Burke of Chilliwack.

Nicklaus Coming On

HONOLULU (AP) — Al Geiberger has the lead, but the soft-spoken veteran could be excused for looking over his shoulder going into today's second round in the $220,000 Hawaiian open golf tournament.

"It's my first round of the year in the 60s," Nicklaus said. "At least I've got it going in the right direction."

Geiberger, a former PGA national champion who broke an eight-year victory drought last fall, had a 66, six-under-par on the rain-soaked, 7,154-yard Waialee Country Club course.

Arnold Palmer had a 69. U.S. Open champion Hale Irwin a 73 and Lee Trevino a 75 that left him in danger of missing the cut when the field is trimmed to the low 70 scorers after today's round.

Mat Favorites Delight Crowd

Don Leo Jonathan, Guy Mitchell and Wayne Bridges — the crowd favorites — managed to outgrapple Bulldog Brown, Masa Saito and Buck Ramstead in the feature six-man, tag-team bout of a professional wrestling card Thursday night at Memorial Arena.

In other contests, Ramstead and Bridges fought to a draw, Ormond Mulumba defeated Mr. Seki, Calypso Kid downed Gringo Joe and Sigfried Steinke took two out of three falls against Billy Francis.

Senior 'B' Cagers Test Games Squad

The B.C. basketball team competing in the Canada Winter Games next month in Lethbridge will play the Victoria Senoir "B" men's league all-stars in an exhibition game Sunday at Royal Roads gymnasium.

The B.C. team includes two Victoria high school grads now playing for Simon Fraser University Clansmen, along with a member of the University of Victoria Vikings. The grads are Grant Boland and Dave Kirzinger, both from Oak Bay High, while Lorne Dakin of Terrace is the Viking representative.

Other B.C. players are John Gordon, Dan Chapman, Dean Barkley, Peter Shaughnessy and brothers Mike and Steve Ferguson, all of Simon Fraser, and Bill Berzins of UBC Thunderbirds.

Nucleus of the Senior "B" all-stars will come from league-leading London Boxing Club. The Victoria team will be coached by Dave Wirtanen of LBC.

Tipoff is 2 p.m. There is no admission charge.

AROUND OUR SHORES

At long last the ministry of transport has reacted to boaters' demands and amended its regulations to allow more wearable lifejackets and safety vests aboard pleasure craft.

Although not yet released to the general public, the amendments have already brought a few querries in the trade.

The new regulations allow the old bulky approved lifejackets to be replaced by "personal flotation devices". When tested and approved by the MoT (the tests, done in Ottawa, take roughly six weeks), the PFDs can be used on pleasure boats up to 26 feet.

The cutoff in size is understandably made on the assumption that bigger boats are the ones who head further offshore where rescue, when it is needed, could take much longer in arriving.

On the basis of this assumption, the MoT's easing of regulations which also allows PFDs to be used in open sailing boats up to 40 feet appears a complete anomaly. Who's seen a 40-foot open dinghy around these waters and why would it be safer than, say, a 27-foot Thunderbird?

It appears there are several large open scows sailed on the Great Lakes and this particular easement of the 26-foot cutoff was granted on the request of the commodore of the Britiannia Yacht Club in Ottawa.

Tuned in to the timing of the new regulations, for which, among others, the Canadian Yachting Association has been pushing for seven years, Mustang Sportswear has come up with a new floater jacket and vest that meet the new MoT standards.

The Vancouver company is the first on this coast to produce approved PFDs.

The new jacket and vest won't be on sale until the end of February, making their debut at the Vancouver Boat Show, but Ralph Colban showed me them this week.

The jacket is longer than the normal floater jacket and comes in international orange. The jacket, like the vest, has had its flotation of polyvynal chloride increased to meet the flotation standards.

Bob said the flotation test, one of many carried out in Ottawa, require that a PFD be able to support 15½ pounds of lead or similar deadweight for a prolonged period.

The University of Victoria's thermal float jacket, designed to keep you from dying of exposure for four times longer a period than conventional lifejackets, will also be at the boat show, which runs from Feb. 21 to March 2.

The university has been asked to man an educational booth, outlining what has been learned during its three-year research program on cold water survival.

John Hayward, one of the three professors on the research team, reports the university has been asked to put on three water shows a day, demonstrating the capability of the jacket and what a person should do in cold water to stay alive longer.

CFSA is this year's winner of the Nuts Trophy for dinghy team racing between them and RVYC. It was a close contest, RVYC winning the first five, CFSA the next, a tie-breaker having to be run with CFSA coming out on top.

The Cub fleet, the home-made boats that nearly disappeared when the Thunderbirds replaced them, is beginning to come into its own again.

Two Cubs — Dennis Davis' Frewa and Chris Mobby's Burnt Norton — placed first and second in the first of two races sailed by the Turkey Head Sailing Association last Sunday. About 50 boats competed in the two races and, according to unofficial results, Frewa won another first in the second race.

After the Cubs in the first race came Eric Dowell's Ariel II, Jack Woodward's Puff II and Jack Dewey's Shuttlecock. In the second race Frewa beat out Rod McBride's Lemolo, Bob Van Den Driessche's Noosa, Ariel II and Hugh Porter's Errigal.

SHORT TACKS — Victoria has ample representation at a recent meeting at the Royal Vancouver Yacht Club. CFSA's Dick Sharpe has been re-elected president and two RVYC members are directors. RVFC fleet captain Nigel Scott-Moncrieff is offshore director and George Dufour youth director.

STOCKER SHOCKER

Stockers North Americans unloaded a thrid-period haymaker at Pearkes Arena Thursday night and Lake Cowichan Lakers took that count for only the second time this season in the South Island Big Six Hockey League.

Stockers stunned the league-leaders with a six-goal punch in the final period to chalk up a 10-8 triumph over the Lakers, who had yielded an average of only three goals per game in their previous 30 league contests.

Still 14 points behind the Lakers, the second-place Stockers grabbed a 3-1 lead in the opening session, but were trailing 5-4 going into the final 20 minutes.

Bob Merluk, Gerry Blanchette and Errol Goulden each fired two goals for Stockers, who got single tallies from Brent Patterson, Rugs Pritchard, Gerry Caldwell and Bob Martin.

Counting twice for the Lakers were Rick Boyd, Doug Hanna and Rod Hunter. Other Cowichan tallies were notched by Jim Peterson and Gus Ryan.

Even Basic Protection Doesn't Come Cheaply

How much insurance does a young couple need when they have just bought a $55,000 house and are living on a tight budget?

A typical Victoria couple is conjured up and their needs are outlined, with the assistance of Victoria insurance agents.

So far, Bob and Betty have taken out a basic policy which pays maximums of $40,000 on the house, $20,000 on contents of the house and $100,000 personal liability. The protection covers theft, fire and miscellaneous damage. In addition, the house is insured against earthquakes.

Total cost, so far, is $105 a year in premiums.

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

Second of Two Parts

"I'm living on a pretty tight budget, that's for sure," Bob told the life insurance salesman, and then outlined his financial status in detail.

"It's a vital first step," the insurance man said. "I have to know what you want and, quite frankly, what you can afford, before I can select the plan you need."

"Well, I need something. That's a pretty hefty mortgage — $35,000."

"Yes, that's the key. With a wife at home looking after two small children you need something to cover the mortgage and a little more . . ."

"And not too expensive."

"My wife said to tell you I have a life insurance plan already and what do you think about it."

"How much is it?"

"It's a company plan that pays $5,000. What do you think?"

"What do YOU think?"

"It's not very much."

"No. What you require, I think, is coverage on the $35,000 mortgage, plus $5,000 for expenses connected with burial and winding up your estate plus a margin of at least $10,000 for your wife and family."

"That's $50,000. That's a lot."

"Yes, but it's only $10,000 for your family after the mortgage is paid. I would think that is a minimum program."

"I'm not sure I can afford all that."

"Well, it's not very expensive but you must understand that it is keyed to your mortgage and the coverage declines with the amount of the mortgage. How long does your mortgage run?"

"What? Oh. Oh, yeah.. It's 25 years."

"Then this policy will run for 25 years."

"What will it pay after that?"

"Nothing."

"That's not very much."

Change Coverage

"No, but very likely you will have changed to a different form of insurance long before then. This program will be reviewed every year and you can transfer into a new program when your needs change."

"Like when I win the Olympic lottery?"

"Or when you add to your family."

"No way. We called our first child Sheila and when we had our second child we called it Quits. Haw!"

"Yes, well . . ."

"You guys don't joke around much, do you."

"On occasion. Now, I'm going to recommend very strongly that both you and your wife have a will drawn up. I've seen too many cases where a husband's estate has been held up and the wife has been forced to borrow, sometimes at high interest rates. It's a very unpleasant situation."

"But it's very important."

"Important. Okay. Will you do that?"

"No. Get a lawyer to draw it up. I hope you will do it this week, both of you."

"Okay, will do. I guess that's everything?"

"Yes, but there are a few more things I would like to explain about the policy. As I said, the coverage declines with the mortgage. It is $50,000 in the first year and $49,600 in the second year."

"You mean because I have paid off $400 on my mortgage?"

"Yes."

"Just $400? But I'm paying $350 a month. You mean all the rest is interest?"

"Yes — and property taxes. Now at the end of 10 years the coverage would be $44,000. You stop paying after 20 years so the last five years are free."

"How much coverage do I get in my first free year?"

"The 21st year would be, um, yes, $22,210. But of course you almost certainly will have some other type of life insurance as well by then."

"The premiums for $10,000 declining term are $13.80."

"A year?"

"How much is that a year."

"That comes to $161.60 but payments are monthly."

"That's a lot of money."

"They never change."

"You mean I pay the same but get less?"

"That's true but it gives you protection when you need it — which is now. Later, presumably you will have other resources and additional insurance."

"What happens if I buy this insurance and then go out and jump off a bridge?"

"That's premeditated death and the policy is void. However, any premiums you have paid would be returned to your estate. After two years, suicide is judged not to be premeditated at the time the policy was taken out. The claim is paid in full if the suicide is two years after the policy is taken out."

"Okay. Well, I guess I'll take out the policy. The $50,000. My wife wants something to cover that mortgage. Isn't there something about both the husband and wife having to die before you collect on mortgage insurance?"

No Advantage

"Only if it is a joint policy. There are not many of those around now. There is no real advantage in a joint policy when the husband is the only breadwinner. Obviously, he is the one who should be insured."

"Okay. I guess that's everything. I've certainly spent the bucks today: $89 for fire and theft insurance, $16 for earthquake insurance and — how much . . .?

"No, per year."

"That's $165.60."

"So $165.60 and $89 and $16 . . ."

"That comes to $270.60 per year but the total monthly payments are only, let's see, $22.55 for all that coverage."

"All I can say is, after all this, we better have an earthquake."

Research Centre Seeks Immunities To Flu Epidemic

HOUSTON (UPI) — A Texas research center hopes to determine how influenza spreads and ways people can build immunities to ward off the next worldwide flu epidemic expected in about three years.

Drs. Robert Couch and Julius A. Kasel said the centre at Baylor College of Medicine was funded by the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases to use Houston as a model city to learn how influenza works.

"Houston is not unique in what we know of past epidemics," Couch said. "We believe it will be applicable to other cities and other parts of the world.

"We're trying to find ways of developing and implementing new methods of control of influenza in time to abort or minimize the pandemic of 1978."

Pandemics — geographically widespread epidemics — occur about every 10 to 14 years. The last one in the U.S. occurred in the winter of 1968-69.

$16,000 For Clinic

A total of $16,000 was presented by the Women's Auxiliary of the G. R. Pearkes Clinic for Handicapped Children to the clinic at an annual auxiliary meeting this week.

The auxiliary treasury contained $16,092 at the start of the meeting, most of which was raised in 1974 activities.

Treasurer Annie Huus gave an $8,000 cheque to clinic board of directors president David Hall for use at the clinic.

An added $8,000 was directed to a trust fund for a future clinic project, likely a group home for the handicapped in Saanich.

Auxiliary executive members for 1975 who were introduced and took office were Lynne Demeule as president, Betty Moxon, vice-president, Annie Huus treasurer, Pat Sample recording secretary and Jennifer Allen corresponding secretary.

Guest speaker at the annual meeting was human rights director Kathleen Ruff who emphasized the need for handicapped persons to be integrated into the work force and school system.

Talk to Plants For Loneliness?

NEW YORK (UPI) — Can you help plants by talking to them?

That idea, apparently shared by some people, may have been encouraged by a lie detector expert whose experiments suggest plants have some mysterious sort of awareness of things going on about them.

The controversial research, popularized by a book, was the subject of a symposium at the annual meeting of the American Association for the advancement of science.

Two scientists said they were unable to duplicate the work of Cleve Backster, research director of the Backster Research Foundation at San Diego, Calif., which indicated by electrical voltage changes in leaves that plants perceived the death of brine shrimp in another room.

At a news conference, Dr. Arthur W. Galston, professor of biology at Yale University, said it is known that plants have electrical activity which is affected by environmental influences such as gravity, light and temperature.

But whether there is some sort of communications link which would make plants aware of non-environmental changes is a different matter.

"What we're dealing with is a set of data which purport to show that a certain situation exists in nature," Galston said. Then turning to Backster sitting next to him, he said: "And you are withholding final judgment on whether this is correct or not?

"Absolutely," Backster replied.

Asked if there is any harm in believing that talking to plants does any good, Galston replied: "It probably does some good to the people who talk to the plants. I think they're feeling lonely."

No Credit Sweetness With Bill Collectors

By LYNNE GORDON

At this time of the year, you may be interested in knowing that collection agencies are a big business . . . and business is booming.

Why? Because credit is still easier to get than you may think.

But watch out, once you get it, you may have a tough time making payments. Some consumers are stuck with bills after a sudden illness or unemployment. Others just over extend themselves, not realizing how expensive credit can be.

The credit grantor — the person who gave you an easy loan — may have been all sweetness and light when he was dealing with you but once your payments stop, the honeymoon is over. Now, he may not be the one to get rough with you. He wants to protect his nice-guy image and even deal with you in the future. But he'll turn your delinquent account over to a collection agency and then watch the pressure get heavy.

Believe me, collection agents know all the tricks. They've even worked out the best approach to get their money with psychologists. They know how to rattle you, scare you and hound you.

COLLECTION TRICKS

The methods used can vary from the basic simple ones to more complex. The usual approach is to send out a short written notice followed by a series of blistering telephone attacks. An experienced collector knows how to reduce you to tears with a concise, no-nonsense demand for full payment immediately. Usually before you have a chance to answer, he hangs up the phone and goes on to his next call.

This is his living and he can collect anywhere from 10 per cent to 50 per cent of the amount owed — depending on the size of the bill and how long it's been unpaid.

But his is just one approach. The methods used to track down debtors are endless.

One collector told me he tracked down a man who owned him $10,000, to Mexico. The collector got on the telephone and implied that he was from the Canadian Immigration Office and would report him to the Mexican Authorities for deportation if he didn't pay up. In this case, the man was frightned and did get the money together.

Actually, threats and impersonations are against the law.

Another trick is to extract a small amount, any amount, from the debtor. If a check is written, even for one dollar, the collection agent can track down his bank and make an attempt to freeze the account.

CAVEAT EMPTOR

CONSUMER PROTECTION

But things have changed in the collection field, and now you are more apt to meet a different breed of collection agents — especially since provincial legislation has come in to protect the consumer.

In the past, you might even find cars bearing a huge sign "The ABC Collection Agency" parked outside a debtor's residence or place of business to embarrass him. That's now illegal.

The use of red printing that announced for all to see "FINAL NOTICE BEFORE SUIT" on envelopes sent to the debtor's place of business, is forbidden.

Form letters used by the collection agencies are filed with provincial authorities for acceptance before use. They must not look like legal documents.

You don't have to accept collect calls or collect telegrams. And the agency cannot add any charges to your balance, except those charges you incurred at the time of purchase.

Collectors cannot call you an unreasonable amount of times during the day or night.

They cannot call your wife at home to intimidate her, if it's your bill. Finally, they cannot make abusive or obscene phone calls.

If any of these things happen, report it immediately to the department official or inspector of collection agencies in your provincial consumer protection bureau.

BE REASONABLE

But don't kid yourself, he will try to get you at the office or at home. And he has the right, if you've been ignoring his calls. And he can sue, get a judgment and garnishee your wages.

In the long run, the best way to handle a collection agency is to be honest and lay it on the line. Most agencies will deal with you if you are sincere and ask for some practical arrangements for paying off your debts.

Never try to borrow yourself out of debt. If you are over your head, try a community counselling service for advice. Most provinces have a non-profit credit counselling system. Just don't, confuse this kind of service with a commercial debt pooling service. They often charge substantial entry fees and crippling interest rates. Many commercial debt pooling services, because of their abuse of debtors, have been banned in over half of the states in the U.S.

The best thing to do is try and plan ahead — collect your thoughts and your assets before the collection agency comes around.

The Wonderful World of Animals

By Dr. FRANK MILLER

DEAR DR. MILLER: My husband's very discouraged because he can't train Wolf. He bought this very expensive lightweight sled (he has the optional wheels for it) along with an expensive harness and the whole works, but Wolf won't mush for him. He just stands there wagging his tail until my husband shouts loud enough, and then he quits wagging his tail but he still doesn't go anywhere. Isn't this dog supposed to have an instinct when it comes to pulling a sled? Can anything be done, or is it too late?—S.P.

DEAR S.P.: Your letter is a tough one to answer. It's a bit short on statistics. Too late? Yes, it could be if Wolf is eight or 10 years old. It's too late anyway, probably, unless your husband knows considerably more about dog sledding than you've indicated to this point. There are sledding associations which could give him advice. Possibly some local experts could, too. Ordinarily it's best not to rely on instinct, but to provide some training for the dog. This is best done in company, with other, more experienced, animals. Of course you can't really expect too much from one dog, anyway, unless that's an extremely lightweight sled and a very large dog. Speaking of size, this does have a bearing. A large Malamute or perhaps a St. Bernard, if you're opposed to the team idea, might accomplish something with proper incentive. On the other hand, if you're trying to "mush" a Maltese or other breed with great heart but insufficient substance, forget it. In any event, seeking the local expert should be step one.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Both of my dogs have had a bad time with ingrown toenails but never my cats. I think it is great for the cats, but how come they get off so easy? —D.D.

DEAR D.D.: Cats come equipped with retractable nails which virtually eliminates the ingrown nail problem. They also periodically shed the outer layer of the nail which also limits nail length. Obviously, the nails on a dog's dewclaws cannot be worn down with exercise so care must be taken to keep them trimmed periodically to prevent their becoming ingrown. The curvature of the nail as it grows is one factor which determines how quickly the nail will curve back into its own pad. Because ingrown nails are a painful problem that's preventable, there is little excuse for allowing the condition to occur in the first place and none for allowing it continually to recur.

DEAR DR. MILLER: We don't know what kind of dog Alonzo is, but he already weighs 25 pounds and he's only four months old. He's a surprisingly fussy eater, and has already decided he doesn't like dog food and eats table scraps only. We've balanced it out by giving him a vitamin pill a day, and it's certainly way cheaper than feeding him dog food. Since we eat a lot of chicken, he gets a lot of chicken skin but you warned about feeding him the bones. Is there some way we can fix these bones so they won't hurt him? We hate to throw them out when some nights he needs them to fill up on.—M.D.

DEAR M.D.: You're wise to worry about the chicken bones. They definitely shouldn't be fed to him, though if you boil them you can make soup stock to provide nourishment and considerable flavor. If you're already having problems providing sufficient table scraps, you're certainly likely to have an increasing problem as his stomach — and the rest of him — gets larger. You'll likely end up buying and cooking food for him. The odds are the diet will not be satisfactory from a nutritional standpoint, yet cost would far exceed a good quality dog food which would give him that needed nutrition. During his present critical growing period, and later for that matter, a vitamin pill isn't the answer to balanced nutrition. Begin training Alonzo (rather than vice-versa) now to eat a good dog food. The kibble or meal forms give most for the money. This should be most of his diet during this critical growing period. Chicken skins or other such goodies added to it for flavor should be thoroughly ground and mixed up so he doesn't try to pluck out these morsels and leave the rest. Always incorporate complete commercial dog foods with tasty table treats — otherwise, you're encouraging him to hold out for an unbalanced diet which would really prove most expensive in the long run.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Forecast for Saturday, February 1, 1975

By Sydney Omarr

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Assume responsibility for your actions. One who promises smooth sailing may want you to give up choice of direction. Accent is on partnership, marriage, security. Older person may press, but your best interests will be served.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Finish rather than begin — find better ways to distribute, communicate. Aries, Libra persons may be in picture. Relatives canot do much, despite contacts. This is your ball game — it is up to you to get rid of outmoded procedure.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Get to heart of matters. Deal with Leo. Stress independence, creativity. There is money restriction but th situation is of temporary nature. Significant change is due and you get proverbial "second chance."

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You need aid — from one who has traveled road. Means experienced associate is necessary for success at this time. Aquarian figures prominently. You can skip some details, but overall concept requires careful study.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Highlight versatility. Look for alternatives. Give full rein to intellectual curiosity. Don't be satisfied merely that something occurred — find out why it happened. Accent is on short trip which resolves many questions.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Specifics are more important than usual. Friend, ordinarily impulsive, could now appear to be ultra-conservative. Take one step at a time. Costs, budget, financial potential — these areas are spotlighted. Aquarius, Leo and Scorpio could be in picture.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Cycle is such that your timing improves. Your judgment is on target. You know what to do in connection with obstacles, opposition. Key is to get going; be a self-starter. Accent personality, personal appearance.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You gain support from sources previously considered indifferent if not hostile. Key is to be diplomatic. Bring together persons whose views may appear to conflict. You may get rare peek behind scenes. Family member makes gesture of reconciliation. Accept!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Avoid self-deception. See situation as it actually exists. Friend with "sob story" wants sympathy, not your honest opinion. Know it and refuse to be drawn into foolish dispute. Pisces, Virgo could be involved. You get facts, figures which could lead to profitable venture.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You have more to handle than originally anticipated. Steps now should be slow and sure. Avoid fancy-dan steps. Stick to what you know. Another Capricorn — and a Cancer — could play significant roles.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Faraway places intrigue. Long-range plans are featured. Personal philosophy is tested. What was to have been finished, takes on new life. Relationship is activated. Your past makes "comeback."

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Resourcefulness is highlighted. You find where to go and how to arrive at goal. Member of opposite sex poses a dilemma. You have to decide — whether to remain or go away. Key is to take new approach to age-old problem. You will understand!

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are going through a period of testing — your taste, selectivity and your willingness to mature — these all are coming into focus. October will be a key month. What appears early to be a loss will be a blessing in disguise. Leo, Aquarius play important roles in your life. You are creative, unorthodox, inventive and can be a thorn in the side of any stuffed shirt.

dear abby

Man Hunting Tough

DEAR ABBY: I am an attractive female divorcee who recently retired after a long, distinguished career as a university English professor.

Now that I have a great deal of free time, I would like to find suitable male companionship.

Although I receive numerous offers (the loggers in this town are practically beating my door down), I don't know how to meet men who could appreciate my best qualities, such as the art of conversation.

There must be some other retired women in small towns with similar problems. Have you any suggestions? Idle but Anxious in Idaho.

DEAR ANXIOUS: Enroll in an adult education class and do a lot of listening. Conversation could be considered "dessert," and since man cannot live on dessert alone, are you prepared to provide some meat and potatoes?

DEAR ABBY—I recently visited a friend in his New York apartment. We hadn't seen each other for 15 years. While he was in the kitchen mixing us drinks, I noticed that he had a splendid library. Then I noticed that he had a few books that I also owned.

I don't know what made me do it, but I took those books down from the shelf and turned to the fly leaves, and sure enough, my name was there!

He had borrowed those books from me years ago, and neglected to return them.

I put them back before he returned, and said nothing. Since then my irritation has grown.

Should I now tell him that I want my books back? Irked in Indiana.

DEAR IRKED—Certainly. No wonder your friend has such a "splendid library." He's a "collector."

DEAR ABBY: I just had to write to defend that woman who writes notes to her husband to remind him of things. I've been doing it for years.

First of all, that letter couldn't have been written by my husband because he doesn't believe in communication, and note-writing is a form of communication.

This wooden Indian I'm married to might send up smoke signals if he could find his lighter, but on the other hand, fires within the city limits of Dallas are frowned upon.

Anyway, I say three cheers for that note-writing wife. I sure wish my husband would write me a note once in a while. It would confirm that fact that he's still breathing.—Ignored in Dallas.

DEAR IGNORED—Your problem is far more serious than you realize. The ultimate in humilation, women confide, is not in being belittled, beratted, or even beaten. It's being ignored!

Medical Report

By WALTER ALVARTZ

Recently I found an astounding mass of information from countries all over the world showing that in many places there has been a decided tendency to reduce the number of children born to the average couple. Experts have long warned us that our national population would be more than doubled if the average married couple were to have four or five children. Then the question would be, could we, as a nation, easily double the amount of food available? In India, because the number of people outgrew the amount of food available, every night many people die in the streets.

R. T. Ravenhols and John Chao of the U.S. Bureau of the Census, tell how now there is a decline in "crude birth rates" in countries all over the world. In the U.S. it has dropped from 23.7 to 15.6.

Naturally, if families in a country average two children apiece, the population will remain unchanged. In that way serious problems later can be avoided.

WHAT IS PLEURISY?

Some patients ask me to explain pleurisy. This is an inflammation of the thin membrane covering the lungs and the inner wall of the chest cavity. A part of it can be inflamed in many cases of pneumonia (which is an inflammation of the lung).

Often with pleurisy some fluid forms, and as it heals it may leave a scar easily recognizable on an x-ray film. Rarely, when there is so much fluid that it interferes with the action of the lungs, this fluid must be removed with a hollow needle.

Pleurisy is common with rheumatic fever, rheumatoid arthritis, and systemic lupus erythematosis (related to rheumatoid arthritis). The principal symptom of pleurisy is pain on deep breathing. The patient may say he has a "catch" or a "stitch" on taking a breath. There may be some fever and a cough. On listening with his stethoscope, the doctor may hear a rub. Sometimes if the inflamed spot is low in the chest, the pain may seem to be coming in the upper abdomen.

In mild cases aspirin plus codeine will give relief. Sometimes there will be pleurisy with tuberculosis of the lungs, and then the treatment will be directed against the tuberculosis.

Years ago, I found a good friend of Dr. Walter Freeman, who in his day was one of America's most eminent psychiatrists. In 1968 he published a very interesting and valuable book, "The Psychiatrist," (Grune and Stratton) in which he had the courage to speak of some things which he felt were wrong with modern psychiatric practice.

He relates how, back around 1894, America's then greatest neurologist, Dr. S. Weir Mitchell, at a meeting of psychiatrists, said that he was unhappy about their tendency to live in hospitals, isolated from non-psychiatrist physicians. He thought this was unwise. Some years ago, when I had luncheon with the dean in the professors' dining room of a medical school, he called my attention to the fact that all the psychiatrists were huddled around one table. He said he would be happier to see them being friendly with other specialists.

Dr. Freeman said he agreed with Freud that psychoanalysis is futile in treating psychoses: "And yet, today analysts are taking over the control of some mental hospitals." Startling is the fact that in Freeman's book one can see haw psychiatrists have split up into several subgroups with a surprising number of special journals.

The great British psychiatrist, Dr. William Sargant, has wished that his brethren were more willing to try new methods of treatment.

I have been happy to hear of some analysts who have lately given up the couch and five-year-long treatments, and have adopted treatment with medicines.

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

At the National Championships of 1974, which were held this past December in San Antonio, Texas, a deal arose in which the difference between making the winning opening lead and the losing one was 5730 points! Both sides vulnerable. East deals.

NORTH
♠ A K Q J 10 7
♥ K J 10 3
♣ A J 5

WEST	EAST
♠ 9 4	♠ 6 5 3
♥ 9 8 7 6	♥ A 4 2
♦ 8 3	♦ J 10 4
♣ K 9 8 7 3	♣ Q 10 6 2

SOUTH
♠ 8 2
♥ Q 5
♦ A K Q 9 7 6 5 2
♣ 4

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
Pass	1 ♦	Pass	2 ♠
Pass	4 NT	Pass	5 ♠
Pass	5 NT	Pass	6 ♥
Pass	7 NT	Pass	Pass
Dbl.	Redbl.	Pass	Pass
Pass

Opening lead: Nine of ♠.

When North responded with a five-spade bid in response to South's blackwood call, she made the mistake of counting her void as an ace. South, assuming that North possessed three aces, then asked for kings. When North showed two with her five-heart bid, South decided to bid the grand slam.

East, with a sure trick in hearts, doubled. South, although knowing that "something was rotten in Denmark," redoubled, hoping against hope that West would not find the best opening lead for her side.

Pity poor West. She was on lead, and had nothing to guide her in selecting her choice. Finally she put the spade nine on the table. The trick was won with dummy's ten — and South's eight of spades had just become an entry for the cashing of South's eight diamond winners. North-South thus scored 2930 points for fulfilling the redoubled, vulnerable, grand slam contract.

It is apparent, of course, that a heart lead would have set the contract immediately. But look what a simple lead of the fourth-highest card in West's longest suit, clubs, would have done. The club suit would have become established for the defenders, and declarer would have lost four clubs and one heart. He would then have been down five tricks, for a loss of 2800 points — instead of collecting 2930 points that he actually did collect.

Incidentally, West's opening lead of a spade was not a guess. Technically, when partner doubles a slam contract, he is asking for the lead of the first suit bid by dummy. And since North's first-bid suit was spades, West correctly led a spade.

Had East not doubled, West would probably have led a heart of a club, one of the unbid suits. In this case, there would have been no story to tell.

Drug Offender Must Work In Community

NANAIMO — Judge Stan Wardill has ordered a 20-year-old man to do 20 hours of community work per week as part of his sentence.

It is part of Wardill's continuing plan to introduce a work program for offenders.

Gary Thomas Caswell will do the work supervised by a probation officer, will be on probation for two years and must abstain from restricted drugs that his pre-sentence report said he had been taking.

FUN WITH FIGURES

By J. A. HUNTER

"Something wrong? asked Elsie. "You've been staring at the clock quite a while."

Fred smiled. "I've been figuring out something," he replied. "A few seconds ago the minute hand was right on a minute mark exactly half as much past the 6 o'clock mark as the hour hand was before the six."

What time was that?

(Answer Monday)

Houseplants Need Special Care

Mild weather or frosty weather, both are difficult to cope with when you have many houseplants in a sunporch, greenhouse or on window sills of the home. While automatic heating with thermostat control takes care of temperature it is true, so many other factors are involved, that the amateur still must acquire a sixth and seventh sense of awareness.

One of the first points to learn in growing any kind of plant indoors during winter is —the less daylight available, the less water should be given to the plant's roots.

Coupled with this is the fact that warmer indoor temperature keeps the plant's roots slightly active at a time when poor light reduces its ability to make food from the soil nutrients of the liquids taken in. It follows that no fertilizer shall be given until along in March at earliest.

A complex situation, but one with which the home gardener must cope. The commercial man will use artificial lighting, controlled to the nth degree of balance. He will succeed with his crop because he will give measured amounts of specific feeding to each crop.

For food plants growing in a small greenhouse, January and early February are difficult months. The same applies to pots or boxes on sunroom benches or tables. The low light intensity of these months makes it necessary to wipe the glass each time you go in the greenhouse or porch. I used to say I spent more time taking off the moisture on dull days (roof glass too as much as is accessible) than working with the plants. Yet it paid off in healthy plants.

One soon learns to give less water. This takes time too, for each pot plant must be given the amount it needs by hand, without spilling on bench or floor. This in turn reduces excess humidity which causes moisture to run down the glass sides and roof.

While a certain level of humidity is needed by plants, beyond that level some control must be exercised. With temperatures between 40 and 50 deg. F. (4 to 10 degs. C.) too high humidity results in fungus diseases such as rotting in some form, either of leaves or of stems in the case of lettuce.

In mild spells with overcast days, temperatures should be kept between 4 and 10 degs. C. for the day and between 4 and 7 degs. C. for the night. On sunny days it will rise higher, but still 4 degs. C. night.

With ventilation during the day you can expect lettuce to grow; broad beans and early peas to sprout and grow; green onions, mustard and cress to give fresh pickings. The latter will give faster growth when sown in shallow dishes at home temperatures.

In the same greenhouse or porch you may have cuttings of geraniums and fuchsias taken from outdoor plants last August and September. They should now be growing in three-inch pots, well spaced on shelves or benches to get all the daylight. Don't give more water than is needed to keep them alive, and no fertilizer of any kind. The plants will be stronger for being kept in the suggested range of temperatures than if kept in the greater warmth of the dwelling house.

A small sunroom with glass on three sides is a better growing place now for the plants mentioned. By early March the sunroom is ideal for raising seeds and seedlings of many plants to transplant outdoors. More of this as the season progresses.

R and D Staff Stymied in Try To Meet Dailly

Members of the education department's research and development staff were stymied today in attempts to meet as a group with Education Minister Eileen Dailly.

After the dismissal of their director, Dr. Stanley Knight, the division members have sought a meeting with Dailly and finally arranged an appointment for 8:30 this morning.

But when they arrived, the ministter informed them she would only meet with individuals, not with the group as a whole.

"I make the decisions on how meetings are to be held in my department," Dailly said later.

"I told them I was willing to meet with them on an individual basis . . . on my terms . . . but there is to be no one autonomous group within this department."

Apparently only one member of the group had an opportunity to speak with the minister before her next appointment at 9:30 a.m.

But the eight members of the division refused to discuss any aspect of the meeting with reporters, saying they had been reminded last week their jobs would be in jeopardy if they broke the oath of office to discuss departmental matters in public.

They would not say whether they will seek further meetings with Dailly and the minister said it was up to them to decide what further action they may take.

One member of the division has resigned since Knight's firing two weeks ago but other members of the division, set up by Knight last year, have remained silent on their future plans.

Departmental officials have said the group will continue to function as planned despite the dismissal of their leader, but University of Victoria professor George Pederson had been asked to study the function of the new division within the department as a whole.

Interest Boosted For MFA

VANCOUVER (CP) — Changes in the exchange rates in Switzerland and West Germany will cost the municipal finance authority of British Columbia $625,000 a year.

The sum represents the amount of extra interest and foreign exchange the MFA is paying on two loans. German marks and Swiss francs needed to pay interest and principal now cost more than they did when the loan was floated.

The loss was revealed in a prospectus of a $34.5 million sinking fund debenture issue being floated in the United States by the MFA.

The MFA is composed of all 28 regional districts in the province and was formed in 1970 to borrow funds on behalf of the municipalities.

The borrowed funds, which now will exceed $100 million, are used to repay loans and finance local capital projects.

The city of Vancouver, District of Port Hardy and the villages of Princeton and Tahsis do not participatte in the MFA.

The $625,000 loss at current exchange rates is caused by annual interest payments of $563,000, plus the additional exchange that must be paid on annual payments on the principal of the two loans.

Yates Liquor Store Zoning Approved

A new self-serve liquor store on lower Yates Street, to replace the existing main downtown outlet on Government Street, received rezoning approval from Victoria city council Thursday.

Following a public hearing, where representatives of some neighboring businesses objected to the rezoning application because it would generate traffic problems and attract "undesirable elements," only Ald. Murray Glazier and Ald. Bob Ellis voted against the bylaw.

Glazier told council that without implying criticism of developer Hans Hartwig, who had shown sensitivity in other downtown projects, he felt a liquor store would be "incongruous" in the Old Town area.

"It is the antithesis of the impact we want to place on that very delicate area," where much private and public money had already been invested in rehabilitation of older buildings, he said.

But other council members, including Ald. Mike Young and Ald. Alf Hood, said traffic and parking problms eneountered would only be similar to those prevailing if the liquor store were located elsewhere downtown.

Hood said preclusion of a downtown liquor store entirely would be a "completely archaic" attitude.

Mediator Asked In Parks Fight

PORT ALBERNI—A government mediator has been called in to resolve a dispute between the Port Alberni parks and recreation commission and five parks utility men who were to have gone on strike today.

Both the parks commission and the utility men, members of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, Local 118, agreed to the request for the government mediator, ending the immediate threat of a strike.

B.C. ART PROGRAM FOR LOCAL PUPILS

An audio-visual program on British Columbia art is being offered to local elementary school pupils by the Emily Carr Arts Centre, 207 Government.

Children can come to see a 30-minute program on the life and work of Emily Carr, which will be offered to school groups until April 15.

It will be followed until June 15 by a program on West Coast Indian art.

A federal Local Initiatives Project grant of $18,000 is financing the project, called Project Discovery, which employs five people.

The program is geared for the Grade 4 to 7 group, and 12 schools have already signed up.

$3,000 'TICKET' TO METER MAID

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif. (UPI) — John Keck accepted a parking ticket from metermaid Violet Costanzi, then stuffed it down the back of her blouse. That will cost him $3,000.

A superior court judge deliberated 45 minutes before returning the verdict against Keck, 22, who became embroiled in the dispute with the metermaid in January, 1973.

Costanzi told the jury that she was bruised, battered, humiliated and shamed by Keck.

Keck also must pay the $10 ticket given him for parking in a loading zone.

Vietnam Aid Information At Session

Disbursement of B.C.'s $2 million fund for Vietnam aid will be announced at the beginning of the upcoming legislative session.

Health Minister Dennis Cocke said today the legislative committee set up nearly two years ago to recommend allotment of the fund met last week to finalize their recommendations.

A total of $2.25 million was set aside for aid to Vietnamese children in 1973 but the committee decided that establishment of physical facilities in Vietnam by the B.C. government would not be appropriate and the money was channelled into a trust fund.

At that time $300,000 was distributed to volunteer agencies in Southeast Asia and the committee was told to continue to look for programs which would provide the most effective relief for children affected by the war in Southeast Asia.

Tory Urges $500M Cut in Taxes

OTTAWA (CP) — A $500-million personal income tax break to stimulate the economy and to restrain government spending was proposed Thursday by Progressive Conservative financial critic Sinclair Stevens.

Such additional personal income tax cuts would provide most individual taxpayers with an extra $60 to $150 in 1975, Stevens told the Commons.

The $7.9 billion the government will collect in income taxes in 1974 will increase to $11.3 billion for 1976, he said.

"Let me remind the House that if these big-spending cabinet ministers see that kind of money available, they will think up ways and means of spending it.

"That is why we in the official Opposition say: Cut back that revenue by at least one-half a billion dollars and we will start meaningfully controlling government spending in this country."

His remarks came during debate of an income tax bill that proposes a three-per-cent 1975 tax cut on the heels of a five-per-cent reduction for 1974.

Aimed at helping low-income earners the most, the 1974 cut would mean benefits of between $150 and $500.

Those minimum and maximum figures would rise by another $50 and $250 respectively with the 1975 reduction taken into account.

Stevens said the government can afford easily to return $500 million to the taxpayers.

"The money is there. Right now, the government is sitting on almost $5 billion that they have with the Bank of Canada and that is there on deposit."

Cutting taxes further would "help stimualte the economy, restrain government spending and be anti-inflationary."

INDIAN ACT CHANGES ON WAY

OTTAWA (CP) — Indian Affairs Minister Judd Buchanan said Thursday he hopes to propose changes this year eliminating discriminatory clauses from the Indian Act.

"What is required is that final consultation with the Indian people be completed sometime this year," he told the Commons.

"I hope then that we can go forward with the proposed changes."

These would include amendments to sections depriving Indian women of their status if they marry non-Indians, and forbidding male and female Indians to administer wills of spouses.

Both sections were mentioned in an exchange between Buchanan and John Diefenbaker (PC — Prince Albert).

Reynolds Won't Run

BURNABY (CP) — John Reynolds, 33, MP for Burnaby-Richarmond-Delta, said Thursday he is withdrawing as a candidate for the national leadership of the Progressive Conservative Party.

The job is too tough and time-consuming for a man with a young family and he also disagreed with the official party policy on centralized government, he said.

"Only in decentralized government can people get a fair deal," he said.

Superstars Battle It Out

Twelve of the world's greatest women athletes gained berths in ABC Sports' "The Superstars" finals competition in the preliminaries telecast at mid-January.

The final event, "Ladies Home Jounral Presents The Women Superstars," will be held in Rotonda, Florida, and will be seen Sunday, Feb. 2 at 12:30 p.m. on Channel 4.

The athletes competed in two groups, with the top six point winners from each group advancing to the finals. Heading the money winning list overall was Olympic diver Micki King, who took home $15,800 - $5,800 on points and the $10,000 bonus for taking her Group I title. The Group II victor, pro volleyball's Mary Jo Peppler, amassed $15,500 in the preliminary.

Overall prize money at stake in "Ladies Home Journal Presents The Women Superstars" will be $69,000, including bonuses of $30,000, $10,000 and $5,000 for first, second and third places.

The following are the athletes who qualified for the finals, and their professional specialties, in order of finish:

Group I

Micki King, Olympic Diver; Diane Holum, Speed Skater; Joan Joyce, Softball Player; Kiki Cutter, Skier; Shiela Young, Speed Skater-Cyclist; Laura Blears Ching, Surfer.

Group II

Mary Jo Peppler, Volleyball Player; Karen Logan, Basketball Player; Wyomia Tyus, Olympic Track Runner; Barbara O'Brien, Football Player; Billie Jean King, Tennis Player; Cathy Rigby, Olympic Gymnast.

In the "Ladies Home Journal Presents The Women Superstars" finals, as in the preliminary, each athlete must compete in seven of the ten events, none of which may be her professional specialty.

Tot Ads Go?

OTTAWA (CP) — The CBC hopes to remove advertising from children's programs when the fall television season begins, a corporation spokesman said this week.

Provision for replacing the advertising revenue with public funds is contained in the preliminary 1975-76 CBC estimates, he said.

"We've had no formal approval from treasury board on the estimates yet," he said.

ROBERT BLAKE, who stars as an undercover detective in the new Baretta series, plays a State Trooper fighting impossible odds in the desert in Electra Glide in Blue, on Channel 4 tonight at 9 p.m.

HENRY FONDA stars as the new warden in There Was A Crooked Man, a movie set in the 1880s about a group of convicts in a territorial prison. Lee Grant, Kirk Douglas, Burgess Meredith and Hume Cronyn also have major roles. It's on Channel 8 tonight at 9.

The Sullivan Years

The late Ed Sullivan never said that "somebody up there" liked him better than the many competitive television shows pitted against his over the years. He did say, however, that ever since he first locked horns with a television camera, good luck had tugged at his heels.

Sullivan, who'll be remembered in "The Sullivan Years: A Tribute to Ed," to be hosted by Dick Cavett, Sunday, Feb. 2 at 7:30 p.m. on channels 7 and 12, did, in fact, have a remarkable streak of luck in running his show during the 23 years he appeared on the Network.

Consider that out of the thousands of singers, dancers, other major acts and animals that graced "The Ed Sullivan Show," only two performers — during his first 11 years, anyway — failed to show by air time (that excludes the late Louis Armstrong, who was booked but down with pneumonia in Italy).

One of the missing characters was a chimp from Alaska that had to be taken off a non-pressurized airplane because it was impossible to get an oxygen mask on his face. The other was a trained bear that, at dress rehearsal, saw his reflection in the control-booth glass window, decided there was a rival on the premises and became too disturbed to perform.

Even the elements were good to Sullivan. He constantly courted disaster by staging under-the-stars program. In all cases it rained dismally all day before the performance. In each case the show rehearsed under a tarpaulin amidst the moans and groans and reproachful "I told you so" from the hand-wringers and fingernail biters.

In each case, however, the rains stopped abruptly just before show time and viewers across the country never knew how close they came to getting a raincheck.

One of Sullivan's most spectacular cases of zero-hour salvation occurred when the show originated from the Boston Opera House. The day before the telecast he attended a fun-raising bazaar for the Marist nuns. As he left, one of the sisters, Mary Augustine, said to him: "If anything happens, you call us. We're known as "The Praying Nuns."

That night, around 11 o'clock, Sullivan got a call that a labor problem was imminent. Since the next day was Sunday, no arbitration was scheduled and Sullivan was told to prepare to cancel that night's performance.

That was a heck of a thing to bother the sisters about — but he did. He got Sister Augustine on the phone and told her he was in a jam. Could she help himout?

In the cheeriest voice imaginable she said, "Don't even think about it. We'll pray for you at five."

At 9:00 a.m. Sullivan was called with the good news. "The strike threat is off."

Ten Lost Years

The 1930s—A Decade of Nation-Wide Despair

The economic crash of '29 echoed through the 1930s, and Canadians, like most citizens of the industrialized world, reeled in the throes of the Great Depression.

The '30s were a decade of national despair, an ordeal that seriously challenged the indomitableness of the human spirit and the dignity of man.

Author Barry Broadfoot captured the mood of the era — the pervading aura of futility and the sense of humor begotten by despair — in his oral history of Canada during the depression, the 1973 best-seller Ten Lost Years. Then along came the hit stage version of the book by Toronto Workshop Productions.

Now Ten Lost Years comes to television, as CBC Performance series presents a superb TV adaptation on Sunday, Feb. 2 at 9 p.m., starring Jackie Burrough and the original cast of the George Luscombe-directed stage version.

Dramatic vignettes are skilfully blended with creative choreography and evocative music and song in Ten Lost Years to create a major television experience focusing on Canada and Canadians during the dirty thirties.

Ten Lost Years evokes the mood and mores of the depression years: the hobo jungles; the never-ending search for work; the 'relief' camps; the poverty and hunger, and the indignity of going on the dole; the continuous east-west migration atop boxcars; the Shirley Temple dolls that little girls yearned for but parents couldn't afford; the parched cruelty of the drought-ridden prairies; the sweatshops in which unscrupulous employers exploited the desperate economic situation; and the musrooming medium of radio, the only means of temporary respite from reality most Canadians could afford.

The brutality of the era is there, and the humor, though much of that is grim, too; but most of all there is a the humanity.

Directed for Toronto Workshop by its artistic director George Luscombe and dramatized by Jack Winter and Cedric Smith, Ten Lost Years was translated to television by director John McGreevy (who won acclaim for his dramatizations of historic confrontations on CBC-TV's Man Alive). It is produced for CBC television by Robert Allen.

Introduced on camera by George Luscombe, the one-hour CBC-TV version stars the original cast: Jackie Burrough, Diane Douglass, Peter Faulkner, Francois-Regis Klanfer, Patricia Ludwick, Peter Millard, Dita Paabo, Rich Payne, Ross Skene, and Cedric Smith.

Jackie Burroughs won three Best Actress awards (ACTRA Award, Canadian Film Award, Wilderness Medal), for her work in the title role in the CBC drama Vicky two seasons ago. Her performance in Dulcima, a 1969 CBC-TV drama captured a Canadian Film Award, and in 1967 she starred in "best Canadian film of the year", Don Owens' National Film Board production, Donna and Gail.

Miss Burroughs will make her debut with Canada's Stratford Festival company in 1975, both on tour and at Stratford, as Sylvia in Two Gentlemen of Verona, and Adriana in Comedy of Errors. Recently, she played the stepmother in An Angel Against the Night, which knicked offf CBC-TV's current Performance series last December.

Cedric Smith, composer of the original songs for the stage and television versions of Ten Lost Years, appeared as the balladeer in the recent, acclaimed CBC-TV Opening Night telecast The Freedom of the City, produced by Eric Till.

After viewing the CBC-TV version of Ten Lost Years at a special screening, author Barry Broadfoot commented: "It's a little like coming back to a house you've lived in, to see what the new owners have done with it. The production is very faithful to my book, and I'm delighted."

Untamed Visits Bird Continent

"Untamed World" travels to South America for a look at the diverse bird and animal species found in the wilds of that continent, on Sunday, Feb. 2, at 5 p.m. on Channel 8.

Zoologists commonly refer to South America as the bird continent. None other can boast such variety of species and sheer numbers as this. Out of the nearly 9,000 species of birds known to exist today, over 3,500 live in South America. This amazing variety is largely due to the diversity of its climate and topography. Every variance offers an opportunity for a particular species.

The condor, called the "King of the mountains" by the Indians, is today confined to remote areas of Ecuador and Peru. These amazing birds have life spans of up to 50 or 60 years. Mating does not take place until eight years of age.

West of the Andes, on the Pacific coast, the waters teem with food for fish, which leads to skies filled with birds. This region, the Guano Islands, is the greatest natural aviary in the world. Birds which have settled here for several million years provide the government of Peru with an important natural resource — Guano bird manure, one of the most sought after fertilizers. Each bird leaves approximattely 30 pounds of manure on hese islands each nure on these islands each year. There are some deposits of over 30 feet deep, the accumulation of 25 centuries.

The Vicuna is strangely like a cross between a deer and a sheep. Relative to the llama, alpaca and guanaco, thousands of Vicuna roam a walled-in valley and once a year are rounded up for shearing. The wool of this animal was much-prized by the Incas and reserved as the exclusive fur of the Inca ruler.

The Amazon jungle occupies one third of South America's land mass. Within the jungle, the flood plain of the Parana and Paraquay rivers gives life to a flourishing animal population. Food is so ample that storks and herons can live closely together.

Other animals seen in this episode are snakes, Caiman (a crocodile), Capybaras, the Tapir, the Coati, the Sloth, the Whitetailed deer, the Pudu, the Eagle, Darwin's Rhea (cousin of the African ostrich), and on the Atlantia coast, the elephant seal.

The tip of South America is the summer home of the Penguin. They arrive by the thousands, searching for a place to hatch their eggs. This is Lago, Argentina, the largest glacier on an island sea in the world, with lake water so pure you could use it, like distilled water, to fill a car battery.

Dream Match

Pat Summerall with Vin Scully and Tony Trabert will be the broadcast team when Rod Laver, one of the all-time greats of tennis, and Jimmy Connors, new young tiger of the tennis world, face each other in the Challenge Cup Match, with $100,000 to the winner, at Caesars Palace in Las Vegas, Nev., Sunday, Feb. 2 at 10 a.m. live on Channels 7 and 12.

With the winner's prize the largest ever in the history of tennis, the "dream match" will be a three-of-five-set match with the 12-point tie-breaker in effect.

Frank Chirkinian will produce the Challenge Cup Match and Bob Dailey will direct.

Khan—Wily Private Eye

Gifted Oriental actor Khigh Dhiegh stars as Khan, a wily Asian private investigator who uses as his base of operations an office in San Francisco's Chinatown, in "Khan!" new full-hour detective-adventure series which has its premiere Friday, Feb. 7 at 8 p.m. on Channel 12.

Dhiegh, who had a long stage career before moving into television and motion pictures, is remembered for his recurring role of the villainous Wo Fat in "Hawaii Five-O" on the Network.

As Khan, he now moves to the side of the law and is assisted in his investigations by Irene Yah-Ling Sun as his daughter, Anna, a criminology major studying for her Ph.D., and Evan Kim as his college-educated son, Kim. Together they lend their modern skills to a blend of detection that couples the wisdom of the East with the technology of the West in fast-paced suspenseful cases.

In the premiere episode Khan is thrust into the world of professional football to search for a missing star quarterback accused of murdering his girl friend. Aided by laboratory tests conducted by Anna, Khan determines that the fugitive player, Ed Porter, could not have gripped the murder weapon in the way his fingerprints indicated.

Laurence Heath, who produced "Mission: Impossible" on the Network, is the producer of "Khan!" for the CBS Television Network. Ivan Dixon directed the premiere episode from a script by Edward J. Lakso.

The series is filmed at CBS Studio Centre in Hollywood and on location in San Francisco.

Nana—Lusty Tale of Sex, Debauchery

All five episodes of the BBC production of "Nana" will air on Channel 9 the week of Feb. 3. Adapted for television from the Emile Zola novel, the series portrays the life of a successful courtesan in the mid-19th century Paris.

This is both a lusty tale of sex and debauchery and a tale of human horrors. The characters are so obsessed with sex that they become funny, grotesque and finally pathetic.

There is much frivolity, but there is also brutality. Essentially the story is moral: the characters must pay for the evil they have done.

Katherine Schofield stars as Nana, a woman who delights in using people and is quite willing to be used in return. A former streetwalker, she charms high society when she appears in an operetta: she has cleverly disguised her terrible voice with a transparent costume.

From the moment of her acceptance, she manipulates those around her, attaining power over their lives. Yet for all her viciousness, she is still a coquette; for all her accountability, she is still a child. She merely absorbs, uses and refocuses the greed and hypocrisy that plagues Zola's upper classes. In the end, she and all her playthings have been reduced: while the men might commit suicide or go crazy, she is left literally to rot — dead and disfigured from smallpox.

Channel 9 emphasizes that this is a series for adults. There is considerable nudity, as well as much sexually explicit material. Indeed the whole series — like the characters' whole lives — is about sex. The fact that the programs were produced and directed by the same team that was responsible for the BBC version of "War and Peace" indicates the quality of the series and the production values behind it. Furthermore, audiences around the country have reacted quite favorably, praising in particular the sets, costumes, and performances.

Air times are as follows: Feb. 3, 4, 5 at 10 p.m.; Feb. 7 and 8 at 10:30 p.m. These are not repeats. These are broadcasts of the five different episodes.

An Opera for Everyone

In a rare television operatic performance, Beverly Sills stars in Donizetti's "Daughter of the Regiment" — the Feb. 3 offering of "In Performance at Wolf Trap."

Ms. Sills plays Marie, an orphan found and "adopted" by a regiment of Napoleon's army. She eventually falls in love with a local peasant, and after some misunderstandings, gets the troop's permission to marry. At this moment, her real mother (pretending to be her aunt) stumbles on the scene, claims the girl, and drags her off to be raised as a lady.

The lovers are separated, powerless to act. At home, the mother tries to change her daughter's mind, but finally gives up and allows the lovers to be reunited — just as the unhappy Marie is agreeing to wed a wealthy Duke.

This joyful 19th century opera has enjoyed popularity, especially during wartime. Revivals often featured local patriotic songs added to the score. This version, while it has no additional material, does attempt to relate to its audience by using English, instead of the original French. Indeed, its being on television is an attempt not only to reach an audience but to create one — to attract people to opera who feel excluded from traditional opera houses.

And opera on television works. As Ms. Sills says, "Television is made for opera. It's drama, it's lovely music, it's emotion and passion. And that's what television is supposed to be good at." Since this particular opera was taped in front of a live Wolf Trap audience, the home viewer benefits from both the intimacy that television offers, and the feeling of warmth and flow that a stage production can give.

This opera will be aired Monday, Feb. 3 at 7:30 p.m.

Death Be Not Proud

JANE ALEXANDER and Arthur Hill, as Frances and John Gunther, discover just how much life really means when their son, played by Robby Benson, fights ferociously for every waning minute of his life in "Death Be Not Proud," a movie based on the true story of the too-brief life of young Johnny Gunther.

Death, be not proud, though some have called thee
Mighty and dreadful, for thou art not so . . .
—John Donne

The opening scenes of "Death Be Not Proud," the true story that is the ABC Television Network's "Special Tuesday Movie of the Week" airing Feb. 4 at 8 p.m. on Channel 4, find a growing, happy Johnny Gunther, age 16, having dinner with his wandering father, journalist John Gunther. That Christmas, in 1945, he was to call "the best ten days of my life."

On Thursday, April 25, 1946, a brain tumor was discovered in the skull of Johnny Gunther (Robby Benson), a student at Deerfield Academy in Massachusetts. The headmaster (Ralph Clanton) notified the boy's father (Arthur Hill), who contacted Dr. Tracy Putnam (Linden Chiles), one of the top neurosurgeons in New York, and took Putnam and Johnny's mother (Jane Alexander) to the Deerfield infirmary.

And so began the long and painful process of discovery . . . the discovery of his son by a father who travelled almost constantly . . . . the boy's discovery of his own strength and determination to grasp every moment of life and fight the frustrating battle for more . . . and his parents' discovery that their son could teach them much about their own lives.

Sometimes the operations, or the desperation diet, seemed to be working, and Johnny felt the joy of an unbounded future, kissed a girl (Wendy Phillips), completed his high school requirements, passed the Harvard entrance exams.

The memory of his 17 undaunted years did not.

Hollywood Made Deal To Mention Canada

Canadians are avid moviegoers, flocking to see all the good ones and lining the pockets of feature film producers the world over — except those few in Canada.

On Tuesday, Feb. 4 at 10 p.m., CBC television's Primetime will present a film essay by Peter Rowe on the Great Hollywood Scheme to mention Canada in its movies, stereotyping Canada in the unsuspecting minds of the world for generations to come, and heading off attempts to start a film industry in our own country.

If you went to school in the 40s and 50s and found Hollywood movies more interesting than your history textbook, you'll remember that is was Paul Muni who discovered Canada and Randolp Scott who defeated Sitting Bull and Crazy Horse, built the Canadian Pacific Railway, set off the Yukon Gold Rush and won the Battle of the North Atlantic.

During the Second World War, James Cagney became an RCAF fighter pilot in "Captains of the Clouds" and Sir Laurence Olivier played a French-Canadian trapper who lipped a vicious Nazi U-boat captain and lived.

References to Canada in post-Second World War Hollywood movies came about in a bizarre way. At that time, Canadians were paying out $20 million per year to watch Hollywood movies, since there were virtually none being made at home.

When Hollywood's Motion Picture Association heard of a Canadian move to start a film industry right after the war, it sent its Canadian representative, J. J. Fitzgibbons, to Ottawa with an offer. The offer, made to a federal Cabinet minister, was that Hollywood would make numerous movie references to Canada to help offset the annual $20 million drain supposedly by stimulating American tourism in Canada. The offer was accepted.

To back up his facts, filmmaker Rowe has interviews with Blake Owen-Smith, who actually visited Hollywood movie backlots urging producers to insert mentions of Canada in their productions; and a producer who tried to build a big film studio on Vancouver Island.

The Hollywood deal has just come to light recently.

Racers Pick CTV

CTV's Sports Department has received the Canadian Racing Drivers Association's annual Media Award for Outstanding Coverage of Motor Racing.

Receiving the award, CTV'S Vice President of Sports, Johnny Esaw, commented, "CTV. Sports is particularly delighted to have been selected as the media award winner by the C.R.D.A. for 1974. We have carried a great deal of motor racing and have been associated with racing at Mosport ever since they opened.

"In recent years the response to our racing programs, which have included everything from the Player's 200 to the Indy 500, has been amazing. We are carrying far more racing than ever before, and we still receive requests for more and more.

"We're quite proud of our coverage in 1974 and glad that it is recognized by the C.R.D.A. as the outstanding media coverage for that year."

Soccer No. 1 B.C. Sport

Question: What sport is so inexpensive that all you need to play it is a pair of boots and a ball?

Answer: Soccer.

What international sport is played in over 90 countries? Soccer.

What sport more than any other is played in British Columbia? Soccer.

To most Canadian sports fans, soccer is not up there with hockey, football or baseball. Despite this, soccer flourishes in B.C., which is full of avid soccer enthusiasts.

Soccer is revealed by Sheila Reljic's highly colorful and entertaining film simply entitled, Soccer, to be the number one recreational sport in the province of British Columbia. The film is the third program in the National Film Board's new series Pacificanada, scheduled to be shown on CBC-TV, Wednesday, Feb. 5 from 10:30-11 p.m.

Every weekend from September through the summer, over 33,000 men and boys play soccer on the lower mainland and on Vancouver Island. "The most popular sport in the world" originated in England in the 1800s and was brought to Canada by British immigrants. It has become increasingly popular and successful in B.C., the film points out, because of the climate suitable for year round play and the enthusiasm for the game imported by B.C.'s immigrant population. The Hungarians, the Italians, the Greeks, the English and the Scots all have teams. So do the Canadians.

"Soccer in B.C. is the strongest force tying together more different groups of people, next to religion and politics, that I can think of," says director Sheilah Reljic. "Many give over 30 years of their life to this game in all its aspects and they are the average Canadian lower income silent majority."

The film shows examples of all levels of play — from young school kids being introduced to the game and boys playing in the Vancouver Sun Tournament of soccer champions, the biggest juvenile soccer event of the year, to girls teams and minor and professional teams in action.

The camera also records the rigorous training methods and physical performance tests at Simon Fraser University's Department of Kinesiology and captures the visual beauty of the game.

The Widowing Of Mrs. Holroyd

MRS. HOLROYD

With Frank Converse, Joyce Ebert, Geraldine Fitzgerald, Rex Robbins and other members of New Haven's Long Wharf Theatre, the original cast which gave the play its warmly praised American stage premiere, Theater in America encores last year's highly successful television adaptation of "The Widowing of Mrs. Holroyd." by D. H. Lawrence Wednesday at 9 p.m. on Channel 9.

In "The Widowing of Mrs. Holroyd," D. H. Lawrence draws on the same body of autobiographical material that went into his novel, "Sons and Lovers."

Using the backdrop from his youthful environment, the author paints a devastating portrait of lower middle class morality in the coal regions of pre-World War 1. Britain as it affects the untenable relationship between Holroyd, a coarse, roistering coal miner (patterned after Lawrence's father) and his more genteel, embittered wife (Lawrence's mother). Mrs. Holroyd's own sense of guilt over the escape she seeks in the arms of a younger, more sensitive man (Blackmore) brings about the final tragic consequences in the play.

When, in the third act, an accident in the coal pit kills Holroyd, freeing his wife from further responsibility toward their marriage, Mrs. Holroyd's inner superstitions keep her from seizing her one chance for happiness. She sends her lover, Blackmore, away, convinced that her husband's death could have been caused by her wishing it.

Lawrence wrote "The Widowing of Mrs. Holroyd" in 1914 during the year of his mother's final illness. He has recorded that he did it easily and fast, as a sort of relaxation from the rigors of novel-writing. His short storey, "Odour of Chrysanthemums," provides the basis of the play.

In among his novels, stories, poems, essays and letters, Lawrence wrote seven plays and part of an eighth, but neither he nor the critics took them seriously during his lifetime. And although in recent years Lawrence has gained increased recognition as a playwright, he is best known as one of the most important novelists of the twentieth century. Among his best known works are "Sons and Lovers," "Women in Love," and "Lady Chatterly's Lover."

New Haven's Long Wharf Theatre, under the artistic direction of Arvin Brown, is one of the foremost regional theatres in the United States, and has acquired a reputation for presenting American premiere productions of new British plays.

A Production Breakthrough

ARABS AND ISRAELIS

"Arabs and Israelis" is no ordinary documentary series. Rather than just report, the program creators saw this as a chance to use television for change, to mold public opinion.

In order to persuade viewers, they tried to emphasize the less well known, more moderate Middle Eastern viewpoints. Although these opinions were difficult to find in an increasingly tense Middle East, the production team managed to complete their filming during periods of relative calm, times of hopefulness during which people were willing to speak moderately.

These shows do not attempt to deal head on with the whole Middle East problem: rather, they pinpoint smaller, decidable issues. A program might focus on the suffering of one individual, or on the area of dispute. By resolving these issues, the series hopes to build a foundation of trust and agreement — perhaps a basis for a larger peace.

To underscore their belief that peace is possible, the production staff brought together an Israeli and an Arab as co-producers. Production became more difficult because of this built-in dissension, but the series was assured a sense of immediacy.

The shows are not removed from the problem: they are the outcome of two men working out their own prejudices, removing their own barriers. While these co-producers have become friends through their work, they place a higher value on their obligation to their people; they never would allow each other "unfair advantages." The on-location shooting enhances the feeling of being in the midst of a real problem.

These problems will be broadcast in the U.S. and in the Middle East. They have been offered to all Middle East countries, with Israel, Jordan and possibly Egypt accepting so far. Initial screenings for Arabs and Israelis have gotten enthusiastic responses.

Locally the eight-part series will be seen: Feb. 5 — 11 p.m. (repeat Feb. 9 — 11:10 p.m.); Feb. 16 — 10:30 p.m.; Feb. 23 — 10:30 p.m.; starting Feb. 26, they will regularly appear at 8 p.m. Wednesday evenings, with a repeat Sundays at 10:30 p.m.

Choreographer Returns Home

David Togurl, Vancouver-born choreographer and director, will return to Canada as co-director with Robin Phillips of The Two Gentlemen of Verona and The Comedy of Errors, Stratford's Canadian Tour productions, which open in Winnipeg Feb. 10.

Faces of the City: Vancouver

Faces Of The City, a Channel 9 series, visits Vancouver for its Feb. 6 show featuring citizens of the West Coast. Subject of the interview is Warnett Kennedy.

The series was inspired by the idea of doing on television the type of succinct, in-depth profiles of people for which the author, Studs Terkel has received such recognition in his books.

When Terkel visited Seattle and previewed several of the programs he wrote, "I was thrown for a loop in seeing three sequences of Faces Of The City. Jean Walkinshaw and Wayne Sourbeer have caught with uncanny insight, the underlying feel of the individual at a time when individuality is so rare. What most moved me was their deep sense of compassion. This is poetic documentary in the best sense."

Vignettes in this series are an experiment in film and audio tape technique in which the audio tape of the subpect is made first, then edited to try to capture the essence of each person. Based on the audio tape, the cinematographer then films the subject and builds a visual image which sometimes supports and reinforces, sometimes argues with, but always comments and illuminates upon the spoken words of the subject.

Warnett Kennedy, planner, author, and architect, is a newly elected Alderman to the Vancouver City Council. With his delightful Scottish accent and rolling command of language, he expressed strong opinions on a wide variety of subjects including youth, the work ethic, freeways, high rise buildings, politics, and his marriage.

One of his major concerns is providing for the needs of the city, whether it be Seattle or Vancouver, while protecting the magnificent gift of the environment.

Consequently, there are many vividly contrasting scenes of Vancouver with its waterfront and its mountains and Seattle with its freeways and harbor. The film ends with Kennedy musing "The problem of our age of course is the fouling of our environment ... so many people using it. I don't quite know the answers but I'm so glad that I live in the age which says HALT."

Faces Of The City brings other people's lives a little closer to our own. In the Seattle Times, John Voorhees, TV reviewer summed up the series "... Faces does that thing that TV does best — give us a close-up of real people. Unfortunately TV does it too seldom, which makes FACES all the more valuable."

Harry O Changes Cities

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD — San Diego is a nice place to visit, but you wouldn't want to shoot a television series there.

At least that is the feeling at Warner Bros. which just transferred its "Harry O" detective series from the border city to that celestial ambiguity, Los Angeles.

As of this week, the show's star, David Janssen, will be sleuthing around the nation's third largest city.

The switch in locale will be explained in the context of an episode of the show. Harry O was sent ot Los Angeles on a case and found that his lease on his home in San Diego had run its course, which is reason enough to leave the place.

But the television company had other reasons for pulling out.

"We had run out of real estate down there," Janssen explained. As part owner of the show the star had something to say about the move.

"San Diego doesn't look all that much different from most of the coastal cities in southern California. the downtown section is limited, after all a beach is just a beach.

"San Diego is a beautiful city. There's no mistake about that. But there just wasn't enough diversity of backgrounds for our purposes."

Janssen admitted there were financial considerations. He said it cost more than half as much again to film the show in San Diego as it would in Hollywood-Los Angeles.

Because the city is more than 100 miles (just barely) from Hollywood the company was able to shoot six days a week. Janssen wasn't too pleased by the longer work week.

Moreover, because the town is less than 300 miles from Hollywood, craft unions did not give special considerations to the company as is the case in San Francisco and other areas outside the 300-mile limit.

"Realistically, television is the art of close-ups," Janssen said. "TV isn't as valued pictorially as the movies are. So we lose a lot of grandeur and beauty involved in the scenery.

HAL LINDEN (left) stars as Barney Miller, captain of detectives in a Manhatten precinct, who must cope not only with crime, but with human complexities in his station house and in his home in "Barney Miller," new ABC Television Network comedy series which airs Thursdays at 8 on Channel 4. Abe Vigoda (right) stars in the series as Fish, a veteran member of Barney's staff, who is counting the days to his retirement.

In Search Of Howard

"In Search of Howard Hughes," an unauthorized biography of the elusive and fabled multimillionaire whose movements and activities are shrouded in mystery, will be related by a company of people who had once been his close friends and business associates, for a "Wide World: Special" to be presented Wednesday, Feb. 5 at 11:30 p.m. on Channel 4.

Peter Lawford will host the program, which will contain commentaries on Hughes' past by such former intimates as motion picture director Howard Hawks, Hughes' one-time business associate, Noah Dietrich; Hank Greenspun, publisher of the Las Vegas Sun; actors Pat O'Brien and George Raft and actress Terry Moore.

The biography will incorporate newsreel footage of Hughes during the various phases of his career as chairman of the board of a major Hollywood film studio, his record-breaking achievements as an airplane pilot, and as a powerful business magnate.

Included will be scenes of the aircraft crashes involving Hughes, Hughes' testimony before a Senate investigating committee, and the triumphant ticker tape parade in his honor when New York paid him tribute following his round-the-world record-breaking flight in 1938.

The program is produced by Ron Lyon and Al Ramrus and written by Ramrus. Jack Haley, Jr. is the director for Jack Haley productions.

Johnny Tremain Youthful Hero

The spirit of young America in the turbulent 1770's is graphically portrayed by Hal Stalmaster as "Johnny Tremain," title character of a two-part drama on "The Wonderful World of Disney," Sunday evenings, Feb. 2 and 9, on Channels 5 and 6.

It was the youth of the Colonies who spearheaded the decisive battles of Lexington and Concord in the bid to oust enemy Redcoats from Boston. Alongside Tremain, a silversmith's apprentice with a fragile frame and a fighting heart, were two other patriotic teen-aged Americans, Cilla Lapham and Rab Silsbee, played by Luana Patten and Richard Beymer.

The three young people contributed greatly toward getting Colonists ready for action in the Disney story, adapted from Esther Forbes' historical novel. Johnny serves as courier for Dr. Warren, Samuel Adams and Paul Revere, and becomes one of the "Indians" in the band that swarms aboard a British ship in Boston Harbor for the tea party.

It is Tremain who learns of the British decision to move against Concord to seize the patriots' weapon arsenal. It is Tremain who races with the warning that sends Paul Reveré galloping away on his famous ride. And finally, Johnny joins the poorly-trained but stout-hearted Minutemen in their stands at Lexington and Concord.

Gets Role

Stephen Macht, a newcomer to the Stratford Festival Company, will appear as Claudio in Measure for Measure, Dunois in Saint Joan, Orsino in Twelfth Night and as John Proctor in The Crucible.

Andrew Allan—A Tribute

Canadian broadcasting lost one of its greatest contributors with the death of Andrew Allan a year ao at the age of 66. Last January, CBC Radio broadcast a tribute to the late producer, director, writer, performer and essayist who founded Stage '44, now known as CBC Stage.

Last fall, his autobiography, Andrew Allan: A Self Portrait was published by Macmillan. The first section of the book is taken from scripts he wrote for a 13-week series on CBC-FM, The Commonplace Book of an Earthling. They trace his colorful career, from his birth in Scotland, his coming to Canada, to his days with CBC where he developed Canada's first truly national theatre — radio drama. The second part consists of radio essays he wrote and read for Assignment, Gerussi, and This Country in the Morning.

On Sat., Feb. 1 at 10:03 p.m. EST, Anthology will repeat a portion of its CBC Radio tribute to Andrew Allan. It consists of interview and conversations with broadcaster Bill McNeil, Robertson Davies and others, and excerpts from his autobiography which ran on CBC-FM. He is also heard in a reading of part of For The Time Being by the late W. H. Auden.

MINE LAYOFF DESPITE LEO

Western Mines will proceed with plans to lay off 86 men this weekend despite a statement Thursday by Provincial Mines Minister Leo Nimsick that the mine would show a profit without laying off any employees.

Western Mines president W. G. Jewitt said the layoff was necessary to head off an anticipated loss of $775,000 this year. Nimsick had said the company will show a net profit of $1.2 million without layoffs.

Jewitt said Nimsick's forecast was wrong but the company could not refute the the statement in detail until after he had met with the mines minister to determine what method he had used to arrive at a $1.2 million net profit figure.

Nimsick Thursday said Western Mines should live up to its obligations to the public as well as to its employees because of substantial assistance received from the provincial government in the form of road construction.

Nimsick said the company made $3.5 million in 1974 and could show a profit of $1.2 million even though sales are expected to be lower this year. If sales equal 1974 levels, profits would be higher than $1.2 million with no layoffs, Nimsick said.

He did not explain how the figures were determined.

CONTINGENCY PLAN FOR STRIKE-LOCKOUT

By SUSAN RUTTAN
Times Staff

All Greater Victoria schools will be open only one hour each morning if a strike or lockout hits School district 61, principals were informed today.

District officials met with principals early this afternoon to inform them of contingency plans that have been made in case of a shutdown which could come next week.

Main points of the plan are:

—Students are to continue coming to school at the regular time in the morning. They will receive assignments and then be sent home.

—All special activities held in the schools at noon, in the afternoons and in the evenings will not be held there.

—Parents will be asked not to send food to school with their children, to help keep down litter in the buildings.

Teachers will remain on the job all day. When they are not giving out assignments and marking papers they will attend professional training programs that are now being set up.

"The board will try to give parents advance warning of any strike or lockout," board spokesman Bill Stavdal said today.

However that may not be possible, he added.

Non-teaching staff of the school board, Locals 382 and 947 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, are currently negotiating with the board for a new contract.

Local 382, representing 278 janitors, custodians and tradesmen, has served strike notice on the board, and asked mediator Clark Gilmour to withdraw from the dispute.

And the board has served lockout notice on Local 947, representing 345 clerical staff and teachers' aides.

Stavdal said the board hopes by announcing its contingency plans now to avoid public confusion about which schools are open when.

Virtually all the more than 400 night courses offered by Camosun College in local schools will have to halt if the schools are closed, said Jim Boyd, co-ordinator of community education for the college.

It would be impossible to find alternative facilities for all of them, he said.

The school board was to meet this afternoon with negotiations for CUPE Local 382 to continue bargaining, and will meet negotiators for Local 947 Monday morning.

$100,000 Talk Tour for Dean

WASHINGTON (WP) — Former White House aide and Watergate conspirator John Dean will speak Sunday at the University of Virginia, his first appearance in a six-week college lecture tour certain to gross more than $100,000.

Dean will get $4,000 for the appearance, according to Andrew Purdie, a law student at Virginia and chairman of the university's speaker's bureau, sponsors of the speech.

He will then cover the U.S. from Maine to Oregon, averaging between six and eight appearances a week, according to booking agent Robert Walker.

In addition to his lecture earnings, Dean has received a $300,000 advance for a book about Watergate, and his wife, Maureen, has received an advance of $150,000 for a book on her life and courtship by Dean.

So far organized student protest to Dean's appearances has been scant, Walker said.

However, stirrings of discontent already have greeted announcement of his appearances at Georgetown University and the University of Maryland, both scheduled for Feb. 17.

"The arguments basically deal with the fact that we are helping a Watergate criminal become rich," said Kathy Sherman, chairman of the speaker's committee at Maryland.

Dean's $3,000 fee at Georgetown "represents a tremendous implication that crime does pay," said Jonathan Orloff, a sophomore and organizer of an anti-Dean petition.

Lease Rents Rebated

A lands department spokesman said the government has decided that rents on those lands should never more than double when they are increased every five years.

Rents have always been set at five per cent of market value but skyrocketing land prices in the last two years have meant rents on some parcels have increased as much as four and five fold in the last year.

The government has about 16,000 agreements to lease parcels of Crown land in the province and about 5,000 of those agreements are for recreational-residential use.

The spokesman said about 15 per cent of the recreational leases had rent increases more than double last year and rebates will be sent out to the people who hold the leases.

He said he did not know how much money would be involved in the rebate.

"From now on, when the rents are reviewed every five years, they will never be allowed to double," he said.

The main problem, he said, was with people who lease recreational lots to build summer homes and then retire to those homes.

He cited cases of old age pensioners who retired to homes on leased land and then were informed that their annual rents were to increase four and five fold.

Other leased Crown lands are used for agricultural, grazing, commercial and straight residential purposes.

Offices Colder By Hour

The fifth day of a strike by 280 outside workers in the city of Victoria saw picket lines relax at city hall for the second day, allowing inside staff to resume their duties in offices growing colder by the hour.

Pickets from Canadian Union of Public Employees Local 50 have stopped delivery of fuel oil to the central heating plant which supplied city hall and the rest of Centennial Square and the tank was likely to be empty today.

Supervisory staff meanwhile have turned down thermostats in order to conserve remaining oil stock.

The city, four other municipal jurisdictions, the Capital Regional District and Greater Victoria School District are poised with lockout orders for remaining employees represented by CUPE locals—a total of 1,700 inside and outside staff.

Joint action was promised by the municipal employers co-ordinating committee if one or more strikes occurred in the bargaining process. Meidation efforts have so far failed.

Provincial mediation officer Clark Gilmour is still involved with Saanich, where talks were held today, and in Sidney, Esquimalt and the school district. He has filed reports and withdrawn from other situations and lockout notice has expired, leaving municipalities free to act when labor Minister Bill King confirms receipt of the reports.

At City Hall, with only enough fuel left in storage tanks for about an hour's heating, a shutdown of the furnace serving the entire municipal complex around Centennial Square was ordered at 9 a.m. today.

"It seemed sensible to do this rather than start drawing up sludge as the level dropped," said an official.

Less than an hour earlier there had been a second attempt to replenish the tanks, but as on the prevous occasion Wednesday, although

Coal Power For Island?

The British Columbia Energy Commission has recommended that a coal-fired thermal plant be constructed as soon as possible on the east coast of Vancouver Island to head off anticipated power shortages on the Island in the 1980ls.

(For full report on the B.C. Energy Commission first annual report see Page 3.)

A site is not named but the commission notes that the largest single deposit of coal on the Island is at Comox.

This coal would have to be augmented by shipments of coal from Hat Creek, B.C., the commission said.

The plant would have an average capacity of 480 megawatts, rising eventually to 1,680 megawatts. This would provide most of the anticipated power needs of the Island but additional cables could be laid from the mainland to supplement electricity produced by the thermal plant.

Despite known coal deposits at Comox, and further coal sources being sought at Port McNeill, Vancouver Island will continue to have a short age of coal, the report says.

The commission urges rapid development of the Hat Creek deposit, located near the B.C. Rail in southcentral B.C.

The coal would be transported by rail to Squamish and then by barge to the east coast of Vancouver Island, the commission said.

Provinces Exasperated Over Housing Policies

OTTAWA (CP) — Manitoba Urban Affairs Minister Saul Miller said it all in two brief sentences.

Referring to a discussion of the $1.4 billion federal housing budget at a Thursday federal-provincial housing conference, Miller said:

"If a vote had been taken here, it would have been 10 to one against the federal budget.

"However, the one vote has a little more muscle behind it than the other 10."

Miller and other provincial housing ministers vented their exasperation with the housing budget at a conference-closing news conference.

But they made with no visible change in the federal position.

Several ministers said the $100 million increase from last year's budget was far less than hope for.

Some said they would have to cut back on planned increases in their own budgets because the federal portion of shared-cost programs rose less than expected.

Provincial ministers used such words as disappointment and shock to describe their feelings about Federal Urban Affairs Minister Barney Danson's announcement of Ottawa's housing budget earlier in the day.

Ontario Housing Minister Donald Irvine said the federal budget should have been at least $2 billion.

Dealing with the budget attacks, Danson said the provincial ministers seemed to miss the point of recent federal proposals to attract more private money into federal assisted home ownership and rental housing programs.

Private lenders have indicated to him that as much as $1 billion in additional revenue may be poured into these federal programs by private lenders, Danson said.

The federal proposals would allow the government to offer private lenders subsidies covering the difference between the market mortgage rate and the eight per cent rate under the federal programs.

MORTGAGE, PRIME RATES BOTH DIP

The Bank of British Columbia and Toronto-Dominion have reduced their mortgage interest rate to 10.75 per cent effective Saturday. Other banks are expected to follow the downward trend.

Toronto-Dominion cut its conventional mortgage rate to 10.75 from 11.5 per cent while mortgages under the National Housing Act are down to 10.5 per cent from 11 per cent.

Its prime lending rate fell a full point from 10.5 per cent to 9.5 per cent. Its new small business loan rate will be 9.5 per cent and its premium savings deposit rate 7.25 per cent.

Bank of B.C. mortgages are down .25 per cent from 11 per cent. Mortgages under NHA will go out at 10.5 per cent, down from 11 per cent.

Liquor Chief Retires

Veteran civil servant Bill Bruce has resigned as general manager of the B.C. Liquor Administration Branch.

Attorney-General Alex Macdonald announced today he has accepted the resignation with regret and is now seeking a replacement for the liquor chief.

Bruce, 59, has worked for the government since 1935 and has been with the liquor board since 1947.

Despite his early retirement, Bruce has served enough time to receive a full pension and says he has no plans other than to enjoy his retirement.

"It's a totally friendly situation," said Macdonald, adding that Bruce has given a full measure of devotion to the Public Service of B.C.

Bruce has helped during the reorganization of the liquor board which will see its functions divided into two parts, with distribution, purchasing and merchandising in Vancouver and licencing remaining in Victoria.

Two managers will therefore be hired to replace the general manager position vacated by Bruce.

No specific date has been set for Bruce's departure.

Sooke Arena Given Go-Ahead

The provincial cabinet has given the green light to the proposed arena for the Sooke area and tenders could go out within three weeks.

MLA Jim Gorst (NDP — Esquimalt) said the cabinet this morning amended the arena bylaws so that the Capital Region Board can borrow up to $850,000 and is assured of a grant of one-third of capital costs.

When the vote was passed residents approved the spending of 1.75 mills over a five-year period for recreational purposes.

Following the vote a survey was taken and it was the majority choice that an arena be constructed. The Sooke Community Association donated almost seven acres of land and cleared the site.

The Capital Region had to go to the cabinet for an amending bylaw which now allows the arena to be amortized over a longer period — 25 to 30 years if necessary.

The arena has been a controversial issue in the Sooke area for some weeks.

Credit Unions to Lend Against Tax Rebates

British Columbia's credit unions will try to thwart ripoffs by corner shop tax rebate firms by making more money available as loans against tax rebates, says B.C. Central Credit Union president A. R. Glen.

In an interview Thursday Glen said charges levied by some of the tax rebate shops were "quite outrageous as much as 50 per cent."

He said the practice should be made illegal by federal legislation which prohibits persons to assign their tax rebates to a loan company.

"In some cases they are taking advantage of people who are desperate or who do not understand what is going on."

Glen said each credit union in B.C. is autonomous but most usually follow suggestions from the central office. B.C. Central has sent a circular to all credit unions urging them to assist people to borrow rather than lose half their cash through a rebate shop.

"Naturally we will do everything we can to assist our members. But in addition we want to assist any others who come and ask for help," he said.

"If it is humanly possible, we will accept them as members and help them rather than see them go to one of those tax rebate places."

Volume of business at rebate shops is expected to be brisk this year because of the delay in tax refunds. Finance Minister Turner said no refunds could be mailed until tax changes, currently being debated at Ottawa, are approved by Parliament.

Glen said a number of steps are being studied by credit unions to deal with the rebate problem.

As a first step, emergency assistance will be made available where possible both to current members and new members.

Secondly, Canada's credit unions jointly will urge Ottawa to amend legislation to prohibit assigning of tax refunds, thereby putting the refund shops out of business.

Thirdly, the credit unions are studying a plan on the Prairies where counselling and loans are available to low income people who are anticipating tax refunds.

"In many cases, counselling is just as important as a loan," Glen said.

Two Unique Tugs Among New Five

CFB Esquimalt's auxiliary fleet is being upgraded with five new tugs at a total cost of $7,197,699.

Two of the vessels being built at Yarrows Ltd. will be the first of their kind in the area. The contract was let at $5,312,343.

A new fire tug, one of two under construction at Vancouver Shipyards Co. Ltd., will cost $1,604,356 and two new tugs, delivered in 1974 added another $281,000 to the tug-replacement program.

Measuring just under 100 feet, the hulls and superstructure are practically complete but work on the two tugs has stalled until Voith-Schneider propulsion systems are delivered from Germany.

It's these systems that will make the tugs unique in this area.

"A normal ship has a skeg and rudder," Allwood explained, "but a vessel with this type of propulsion system does not."

Instead, Allwood said, propellers are placed about one third of the ship's length back from her bow, around her turning point.

"This makes the vessel very manoeuvrable and gives her very good thrust," Allwood said. "For example, two of these tugs, one at the bow and the other at the stern of the Provider (the navy's large support ship) can pull the ship off the jetty, being able to move laterally (sideways), fore and aft with ease."

In Europe, Allwood said, it has been proven that two such vessels can do the work of three conventional ones.

Powered by two diesel engines from England, the new tugs will have a pull of 17 tons.

The tugs are being built to replace the Heatherton and the Clifton and are to be named the Glendyne and the Glendale.

The fire tug, which is expected to be delivered this spring, while not as revolutionary as the vessels being built at Yarrows, is also more modern than the tug she will be replacing.

She will have Zed-drive twin screw propellers which can be angled for easier manoeuvrability.

To be named Firebrand, she will have a pumping rate of 5,000 gallons of water a minute and a 500 gallon-capacity for foam. Her speed will be 12 knots.

The two tugs delivered in 1974—the Lawrenceville and the Parksville—were built on the mainland by the Vito Steel Boat and Barge Construction Ltd. of Delta. Forty-five feet long, they have a pull of 12 tons and an engine capacity of 375 horsepower.

They replaced the old Lawrenceville which is now at HMCS Chippewa, the naval reserve division in Winnipeg; the Adamsville, which is now at HMCS Discovery, Vancouver's naval reserve division, and the Marysville, now in reserve at Esquimalt.

ACCORD ON TOILETS

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — In 50 clauses and three finely-printed pages of explanation, the U.S. Coast Guard defined the unmentionable Thursday in a way that it hopes will help end a long-standing disagreement with Canada.

With publication of its "marine sanitation devices — clarification procedures and design and construction requirements," the coast guard set out in technical detail and polite jargon the kinds of toilets it will be requiring in future on vessels using the U.S. waters.

Unlike earlier, tentative drafts of the regulations from the Environmental Protection Agency which forbade any sewage discharge altogether, the new version says ships can loose their sewage into American water after it is suitably treated with machinery and chemicals. Therein lies the hope for compromise with Canada.

Since the EPA will "probably" amend its no-discharge standards, the coast guard says, it will not apply those standards to new ships for another year.

After that, it assumes the standard will no longer be in force and all ships will be able to install approved toilet facilities without holding tanks.

To mollify environmentalists, the coast guard tightened up its regulations about the amount of bacteria that would be allowed to remain in treated waste.

Existing ships are generally being given until 1980 to install the kind of toilets approved by the coast guard. New ships must comply with the law by 1977.

Canadian Flag Fleet Urged by Report

By IAIN HUNTER
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Canada must move toward creation of a Canadian flag ocean fleet to maintain its interests in international world trade and ensure the development of its natural resources industries and ports, according to a report released here Thursday.

The report, by special consultant H. J. Darling, warned the federal government against "a hasty construction and operation of Canadian-flag ships," but stated that changing international trade and shipping conditions require "some Canadian-flag participation."

It stated that Canada's deepsea shipping policy at present is in a state of "helplessness and indecision" in the face of growing national ocean fleets and bilateral shipping deals between such countries as the U.S. and some South American states.

The report called for the centralization of control and administration of international shipping matters under a single authority with effective powers, the announcement of a policy to define Canadian interests in such fields as Arctic shipping and transportation of bulk natural resource cargoes, and a more aggressive Canadian stance in dealing with other countries whose shipping policies affect their trade with Canada.

The central authority should have a minimum plan for the encouragement of Canadian-flag shipping short of operating subsidies or direct capital subsidies beyond those already available for the shipbuilding industry, the report said.

The minimum plan, it stated, should provide credit comparable to that available in other countries and to that now available to foreign purchasers of Canadian ships through the Export Development Corporation.

In return, the report proposed, operators would have to accept a "flag covenant" to keep their ships under the Canadian flag for a set period and give evidence that they have agreements with labor unions for the binding arbitration of disputes.

Transport Minister Jean Marchand, who tabled in the Commons copies of the August, 1974, report, announced that he has established an interdepartmental advisory board to make recommendations on the development of future policies in the area.

The report noted that the negative attitude to international shipping policy in Canada has been due to unrealistic demands for Canadian-flag ships without basis in concrete Canadian interests, and to confidence in what is regarded as a highly competitive international shipping industry.

But, it added, the competitive nature of international shipping is changing, with competition in a free market giving way to competition between large shipping consortiums supported in many cases by national governments and to direct competiton from national fleets.

The Inn Thing

Ye Olde Spat Over Gorge Pub

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

Robin Hood's not-so-merry men appealed to the sheriff Thursday to get tough with an illegal tavern in Sherwood Park, which they claimed was a little too merry for the peace and quiet of the neighborhood.

And they won at least a partial victory.

The "sheriff" in this instance was Victoria city council, which found itself trying to sort out a zoning hassle involving the operators of several Gorge Road motels.

Council abandoned its second attempt to push through a zoning bylaw amendement which would have legitimized an illegal beer parlor operation at the Sherwood Park Motor Hotel, 123 Gorge.

The decision followed strong complaints at a public hearing from the owners of neighboring motels, including the Robin Hood Motel, 136 Gorge.

They demanded to know why the city had tolerated the contravention to motel zoning rules for more than two years, and why it was trying for the second time to sanction the beer parlor operation.

Excessive noise from that establishment, the motel proprietors claimed, continues until the early hours of the morning and has had a detrimental effect on their own business because their clients cannot enjoy a decent night's sleep.

"People have left in considerable numbers after staying for only one night," said Clifford Watt, lawyer for the management of the Oxford Tower Inn, 133 Gorge.

Rolf Ullrich, of Garden City Motels, owners o fthe Robin Hood motel, estimated the loss of income due to clients checking out earlier than they had intended was about "10 per cent a year or $15,000."

"Why do we have bylaws that are not enforced?" he asked. "Why do some people not have to obey?"

Zoning committee chairman Ald. Mike Young later told reporters the question of what the city can do about the illegal pub operation will now have to be referred to the city solicitor. He declined to say whether the city could or would close it down.

Young said when plans for the Sherwood Park project were first submitted to City Hall they showed a licensed lounge and storage area where the beer parlor is now located.

He said council's two attempts to pass an amendment that would officially recognize the pub's existence — by stating that a motel with 100 or more rooms can have a pub licence — were made to seek "an acceptable way out of the difficulties."

The original bylaw passed last year was later quashed by the B.C. Supreme Court on grounds that the change in zoning rules constituted a rezoning, and that all person potentially affected should have been notified as required under the Municipal Act.

In defending the action, the city had claimed it was only a "minor" change in regulations and therefore full notification was not required.

WINDS GUSTING up to 60 miles per hour toppled top branches of a tree from Provincial Museum grounds on to Government Street early today. Provincial public works crew cleared away the debris before it could snarl traffic. Striking Canadian Union of Public Employees outside workers, normally responsible for road obstructions, said the tree was the provincial government's problem, as it came from government property. Winds will continue in the Victoria area over the weekend, and a few flurries of wet snow and rain are also expected. (Bill Halkett photo)

Rebuilding the VGH: How It Could Be Done

How do you replace an old hospital with a new one—on the same property—and not interrupt care of patients?

That's the problem directors at Victoria General Hospital are wrestling with and they examined a model Thursday night which suggested how it could be done.

The property boundaries they worked with include the 5.3 acres on which the present largely obsolete hospital sits, as well as another 3.2 acres across Humboldt, part of the St. Ann's Academy site bought for hospital development about three years ago for almost $1 million.

The new hospital then rises to the south, alongside the old one, in four stages.

First stage is construction of a block or tower straddling the Humboldt street location, with a potential for about 280 beds and linked to the old hospital.

Second stage could see patients from the hospital's A and FX wings transferred to the new building, where expanded diagnostic and service facilities could also be located. The two abandoned wings could then be demolished.

In the third stage, part of C wing could come down and a second block or tower built at the corner of the first one, giving the new hospital a capacity between 500 and 600 beds.

The model is not intended to specify size or design of new buildings, Garth Gloeckler, director of general services, told directors. It just illustrates the feasibility of replacement on the property available while keeping the hospital running.

There was no discussion of what replacement might cost or how many years it might be phased over.

The model will be made available to consultants who are currently preparing a master plan proposal for hospital development within the Capital district.

It will also likely be shown to the new regional Hospital and Health Planning Commission, the agency with authority to plan regional hospital constriction.

Man Gets 5-Year Sentence For Raping Saanich Woman

Remy Antoine Gatto was sentenced in B.C. Supreme Court today to five years in prison for the rape of a 20-year-old Saanich woman last Sept. 14.

Gatto received the sentence from Mr. Justice J. C. Bouck with no apparent show of emotion although his 25-year-old wife Judithe, who stood by him throughout the trial broke down.

After a two-day trial which ended Jan. 24 an all-male jury found the 28-year-old Saanich man guilty of rape and of breaking into the victim's apartment.

Bouck sentenced Gatto to five years on each count to be served concurrently.

Gatto said he had been drinking heavily after work on Sept. 13 and went to the apartment of his sister-in-law later that evening.

When he found her not at home he went around the side of the apartment building and, he claimed, inadvertently stumbled into a recessed patio outside the victim's ground floor suite. While trying to get out he said he fell through her bedroom window.

He said he heard a woman scream and tried to quiet her by putting his hand over her mouth.

He said he could not recall any of the events that followed until police arrived 10 or 15 minutes later.

The victim testified in the trial Gatto had pounced on her and told her to shut up or he'd kill her.

He then proceeded to rape her, she said.

Bouck said he could not accept Gatto's story, saying it was too far-fetched and inconsistent with other evidence.

"There's no explanation for the attack," the judge said. "Either he has chosen to block out the reason, or what's worse he has shown no remorse for his actions."

Bouck said there must have been some premeditation in the act since the apartment Gatto entered was occupied by a young single, attractive woman.

Turnham had urged the judge consider a number of what he termed mitigating factors.

The lawyer pointed out there were no serious physical or emotional injuries done to the victim and that there was only minimal evidence the rape had occurred.

Turnham noted Gatto had only one prior criminal conviction and that was 10 years ago. He described the man as a "good, hard-working, honest type of individual".

Mrs. Gatto testified she and her husband were married in the Bahamas in 1968 and that the couple have a 3½-year-old boy. They are expecting their second child in early March.

"I will wait for him until he comes home," she told the judge. "Everything is going to be exactly as it was when he left."

Higher Court Trials Set

Two preliminary hearings in Victoria provincial court have ended with orders for higher court trials.

Kendall was charged after the death of Gordon Robert Smith, 21, of 7874 Lochside, following an incident Oct. 12 on the parking lot of the Royal Oak Motel, 4676 Elk Lake.

The hearing before Judge Harold Alder was on an arson charge against John Robert Atkinson, 20, of Vancouver, and Terry Darrow Emerson, 20, of 1195 Trans-Canada Highway. They were charged following the fire Oct. 12 at the Jehovah's Witnesses' Kingdom Hall, 1055 Joan Cre- Kingdom Hall, 1055 Joan Crescent.

Jail Terms Given Purse-Snatchers

Two young purse-snatchers were jailed Thursday on nine counts of robbery with violence.

In county court, Ronald James Kellington, 20, of 2909 Harriet, was sentenced to two years in the penitentiary and Daniel Bruce Lockhart, 18, address not known, to one-year definite in the provincial jail system and six months indeterminate.

The sentences differed because Kellington had a criminal record.

The pair pleaded guilty Jan. 15 to nine purse-snatchings in Oak Bay and Victoria between Dec. 14 and Dec. 31 when they were arrested by city police.

The robberies netted them slightly more than $500. All of the victims were elderly women. Some received minor injuries in the attacks.

SYMPHONY SEAT TO TINDALL

He was nominated at the Tuesday regular board meeting in private session and has consented to serve. The other vacancy is expected to be filled by an appointee from the provincial government.

The master contract with the Victoria Musicians' Association has been approved for the 1975-76 season and a fund has been established for the purchase of musical instruments.

Four anonymous donors have pledged $8,000 — specifically towards new timpani — bringing the funds so far collected for this purpose to $8,250.

Other fund-raising activities already underway will take the form of a Spring Festival and the Silver Anniversary Symphony Ball at the Empress Hotel sponsored by the Women's Committee.

Ask The Times

Dec. 21, the shortest day. — A.C.C.

A. Your question is interpreted to mean that you feel there is morning twilight of duration unequal to evening twilight on a given day. The Dominion Astrophysical Observatory says this is not possible, but depending upon where you reside, or make your observations from, there may be an impression of variation. With a constant horizon — such as at sea — and with perfect atmospheric conditions, it can be shown that the angle of the sun's ascent on a given day is equal to its angle of decline, and the half-way point from day to day represents noon.

Q. I have noticed that as we approach the winter solstice the evenings seem to close in more rapidly than the mornings, reaching their earliest about mid-December, while the mornings close in later, reaching their maximum after the solstice or about the first of January. Why is this? One would suppose the evenings and mornings would close in together equally, each reaching their greatest extent

You Can Lead a Horse to Water But . . .

IT WOULD BE NICE TO believe that a transfusion by government of taxpayers' dollars will achieve wonders for the Canadian book and magazine publishing industry. But a certain skepticism lingers, and I can only hope that State Secretary Hugh Faulkner's proposed rescue program won't be money down a rathole.

With a few honorable exceptions, I suspect that publishers will remain incurably timid, slow on the uptake, and lacking in the go-for-broke vitality that marks their American opposite numbers.

These unkind words don't mean that I feel the Canadian publishing industry should be denied reasonable protection from unfair competition. Any domestic industry should be guaranteed a fair chance to cash in on the home market.

But protection carried too far can have an enervating effect. It can sap the will to struggle — to leap in and stir around — and to achieve a better product.

The Canadian reader also has, or should have, rights both positive and negative.

If the government, the reader helps finance attempts to vitalize Canadian publishing through increased subsidy shots in the butt and protection pills administered orally, that reader should be able to expect results in the shape of better reading.

On the negative side, he should be spared any misguided attempt by government to force-feed him Canadian books simply because they're Canadian.

State Secretary Faulkner seems to have an inkling of those readers' rights, although I don't recall that he was tactless enough to blat them out in open meeting.

What Faulkner did point out to publishers, authors and book distributors is that the Canadian book world is "pretty heavily subsidized," and that federal protection has its limits.

There would be no enforced quota of Canadian titles on retail bookshelves, for instance, and no attempt to crowd public libraries into boosting their Canadian book lists.

Good for Faulkner! He might have added that sound books by Canadians don't gather dust on our bookstore or library shelves. Witness the hard-earned and well-merited successes of Pierre Berton.

At this point I run out of praise for the state secretary, who falls victim to delusion. Culture is nice, this misconception suggests. People should have it. So let's mix up a batch and lay it on with a shovel.

The Faulkner version:

Government book sales outlets in post offices and other federal buildings. Adequate representation of Canadian authors on newsstands in airports and railway stations. Canada Council-promoted book reviews and other programs to increase demand for Canadian-written books.

Although a bookstore operator who has toiled to build up a business mightn't appreciate government competition across the street, this all sounds very well. But it scamps one fact that has a vital bearing on publisher success or failure.

This is the saleability of the product — and here we arrive at an area in which the publisher must invest more time, care and money.

I think that we have less than our proportionate share of readable writers in Canada. It's possible that this will always be the case . . . perhaps our national genius doesn't run strongly in that direction.

But whether or no, I suggest that a generous portion of any government subsidy to Canadian book and magazine publishers should be earmarked for the purpose of bringing Canadian writers along.

Not through direct grants there's no quicker way to ruin a writer than to place unearned money in his hand. What he needs, particularly in the earlier stages of his hard and lonely climb, is professionally sound advice, tough but constructive criticism, and prompt reports on his submissions.

The old adage about leading horses to water still holds. Government can promote and subsidize to a fare-ye-well, but the situation is unlikely to change until the publisher takes much more vigorous steps to improve his product.

MINE LAYOFF DESPITE LEO

Western Mines will proceed with plans to lay off 86 men this weekend despite a statement Thursday by Provincial Mines Minister Leo Nimsick that the mine would show a profit without laying off any employees.

Western Mines president W. G. Jewitt said the layoff was necessary to head off an anticipated loss of $775,000 this year. Nimsick had said the company will show a net profit of $1.2 million without layoffs.

Jewitt said Nimsick's forecast was wrong but the company could not refute the the statement in detail until after he had met with the mines minister to determine what method he had used to arrive at a $1.2 million net profit figure.

Nimsick Thursday said Western Mines should live up to its obligations to the public as well as to its employees because of substantial assistance received from the provincial government in the form of road construction.

Nimsick said the company made $3.5 million in 1974 and could show a profit of $1.2 million even though sales are expected to be lower this year. If sales equal 1974 levels, profits would be higher than $1.2 million with no layoffs, Nimsick said.

He did not explain how the figures were determined.

CONTINGENCY PLAN FOR STRIKE-LOCKOUT

By SUSAN RUTTAN
Times Staff

All Greater Victoria schools will be open only one hour each morning if a strike or lockout hits school district 61, principals were informed today.

District officials met with principals early this afternoon to inform them of contingency plans that have been made in case of a shutdown which could come next week.

Main points of the plan are:

—Students are to continue coming to school at the regular time in the morning. They will receive assignments and then be sent home.

—All special activities held in the schools at noon, in the afternoons and in the evenings will not be held there.

—Parents will be asked not to send food to school with their children, to help keep down litter in the buildings.

Teachers will remain on the job all day. When they are not giving out assignments and marking papers they will attend professional training programs that are now being set up.

"The board will try to give parents advance warning of any strike or lockout," board spokesman Bill Stavdal said today.

However that may not be possible, he added.

Non-teaching staff of the school board, Locals 382 and 947 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, are currently negotiating with the board for a new contract.

Local 382, representing 278 janitors, custodians and tradesmen, has served strike notice on the board, and asked mediator Clark Gilmour to withdraw from the dispute.

And the board has served lockout notice on Local 947, representing 345 clerical staff and teachers' aides.

Stavdal said the board hopes by announcing its contingency plans now to avoid public confusion about which schools are open when.

Virtually all the more than 400 night courses offered by Camosun College in local schools will have to halt if the schools are closed, said Jim Boyd, co-ordinator of community education for the college.

It would be impossible to find alternative facilities for all of them, he said.

The school board was to meet this afternoon with negotiations for CUPE Local 382 to continue bargaining, and will meet negotiators for Local 947 Monday morning.

$100,000 Talk Tour for Dean

WASHINGTON (WP) — Former White House aide and Watergate conspirator John Dean will speak Sunday at the University of Virginia, his first appearance in a six-week college lecture tour certain to gross more than $100,000.

Dean will get $4,000 for the appearance, according to Andrew Purdie, a law student at Virginia and chairman of the university's speaker's bureau, sponsors of the speech.

He will then cover the U.S. from Maine to Oregon, averaging between six and eight appearances a week, according to booking agent Robert Walker.

In addition to his lecture earnings, Dean has received a $300,000 advance for a book about Watergate, and his wife, Maureen, has received an advance of $150,000 for a book on her life and courtship by Dean.

So far organized student protest to Dean's appearances has been scant, Walker said.

However, stirrings of discontent already have greeted announcement of his appearances at Georgetown University and the University of Maryland, both scheduled for Feb. 17.

"The arguments basically deal with the fact that we are helping a Watergate criminal become rich," said Kathy Sherman, chairman of the speaker's committee at Maryland.

Dean's $3,000 fee at Georgetown "represents a tremendous implication that crime does pay," said Jonathan Orloff, a sophomore and organizer of an anti-Dean petition.

Lease Rents Rebated

People who suffered huge increases in rent on leased Crown recreational land will soon be receivin rebates from the provincial government.

A lands department spokesman said the government has decided that rents on those lands should never more than double when they are increased every five years.

Rents have always been set at five per cent of market value but skyrocketing land prices in the last two years have meant rents on some parcels have increased as much as four and five fold in the last year.

The government has about 16,000 agreements to lease parcels of Crown land in the province and about 5,000 of those agreements are for recreational-residential use.

The spokesman said about 15 per cent of the recreational leases had rent increases more than double last year and rebates will be sent out to the people who hold the leases.

He said he did not know how much money would be involved in the rebate.

"From now on, when the rents are reviewed every five years, they will never be allowed to double," he said.

The main problem, he said, was with people who lease recreational lots to build summer homes and then retire to those homes.

He cited cases of old age pensioners who retired to homes on leased land and then were informed that their annual rents were to increase four and five fold.

Other leased Crown lands are used for agricultural, grazing, commercial and straight residential purposes.

Offices Getting Colder By Hour

The fifth day of a strike by 280 outside workers in the city of Victoria saw picket lines relax at city hall for the second day, allowing inside staff to resume their duties in offices growing colder by the hour.

Pickets from Canadian Union of Public Employees Local 50 have stopped delivery of fuel oil to the central heating plant which supplied city hall and the rest of Centennial Square.

The city, four other municipal jurisdictions, the Capital Regional District and Greater Victoria School District are poised with lockout orders for remaining employees represented by CUPE locals—a total of 1,700 inside and outside staff.

Joint action was promised by the municipal employers co-ordinating committee if one or more strikes occurred in the bargaining process. Meidation efforts have so far failed.

Provincial mediation officer Clark Gilmour is still involved with Saanich, where talks were held today, and in Sidney, Esquimalt and the school district. He has filed reports and withdrawn from other situations and lockout notice has expired, leaving municipalities free to act when labor Minister Bill King confirms receipt of the reports.

At City Hall, with only enough fuel left in storage tanks for about an hour's heating, a shutdown of the furnace serving the entire municipal complex around Centennial Square was ordered at 9 a.m. today.

"It seemed sensible to do this rather than start drawing up sludge as the level dropped," said an official.

Less than an hour earlier there had been a second attempt to replenish the tanks, but as on the previous occasion Wednesday, although

Coal Power For Island

The British Columbia Energy Commission has recommended that a coal-fired thermal plant be constructed as soon as possible on the east coast of Vancouver Island to head off anticipated power shortages on the Island in the 1980s.

(For full report on the B.C. Energy Commission first annual report see Page 3.)

A site is not named but the commission notes that the largest single deposit of coal on the Island is at Comox.

This coal would have to be augmented by shipments of coal from Hat Creek, B.C., the commission said.

The plant would have an average capacity of 480 megawatts, rising eventually to 1,680 megawatts. This would provide most of the anticipated power needs of the Island but additional cables could be laid from the mainland to supplement electricity produced by the thermal plant.

Despite known coal deposits at Comox, and further coal sources being sought at Port McNeill, Vancouver Island will continue to have a shortage of coal, the report says.

The commission urges rapid development of the Hat Creek deposit, located near the B.C. Rail line in south-central B.C.

The coal would be transported by rail to Squamish and then by barge to the east coast of Vancouver Island, the commission said.

Provinces Exasperated Over Housing Policies

OTTAWA (CP) — Manitoba Urban Affairs Minister Saul Miller said it all in two brief sentences.

Referring to a discussion of the $1.4 billion federal housing budget at a Thursday federal-provincial housing conference, Miller said:

"If a vote had been taken here, it would have been 10-to one against the feueral budget.

"However, the one vote has a little more muscle behind it than the other 10."

Miller and other provincial housing ministers vented their exasperation with the housing budget at a conference-closing news conference.

But they made with no visible change in the federal position.

Several ministers said the $100 million increase from last year's budget was far less than hope for.

Some said they would have to cut back on planned increases in their own budgets because the federal portion of shared-cost programs rose less than expected.

Provincial ministers used such words as disappointment and shock to describe their feelings about Federal Urban Affairs Minister Barney Danson's announcement of Ottawa's housing budget earlier in the day.

Ontario Housing Minister Donald Irvine said the federal budget should have been at least $2 billion.

Dealing with the budget attacks, Danson said the provincial ministers seemed to miss the point of recent federal proposals to attract more private money into federal assisted home ownership and rental housing programs.

Private lenders have indicated to him that as much as $1 billion in additional revenue may be poured into these federal programs by private lenders, Danson said.

The federal proposals would allow the government to offer private lenders subsidies covering the difference between the market mortgage rate and the eight per cent rate under the federal programs.

MORTGAGE, PRIME RATES BOTH DIP

The Bank of British Columbia and Toronto-Dominion have reduced their mortgage interest rate to 10.75 per cent effective Saturday. Other banks are expected to follow the downward trend.

Toronto-Dominion cut its conventional mortgage rate to 10.75 from 11.5 per cent while mortgages under the National Housing Act are down to 10.5 per cent from 11 per cent.

Its prime lending rate fell a full point from 10.5 per cent to 9.5 per cent. Its new small business loan rate will be 9.5 per cent and its premium savings deposit rate 7.25 per cent.

Liquor Chief Retires

Veteran civil servant Bill Bruce has resigned as general manager of the B.C. Liquor Administration Branch.

Attorney-General Alex Macdonald announced today he has accepted the resignation with regret and is now seeking a replacement for the liquor chief.

Bruce, 59, has worked for the government since 1935 and has been with the liquor board since 1947.

Despite his early retirement, Bruce has served enough time to receive a full pension and says he has no plans other than to enjoy his retirement.

"It's a totally friendly situation," said Macdonald, adding that Bruce has given a full measure of devotion to the Public Service of B.C.

Bruce has helped during the reorganization of the liquor board which will see its functions divided into two parts, with distribution, purchasing and merchandising in Vancouver and licencing remaining in Victoria.

Two managers will therefore be hired to replace the general manager position vacated by Bruce.

No specific date has been set for Bruce's departure.

Sooke Arena Given Go-Ahead

The provincial cabinet has given the green light to the proposed arena for the Sooke area and tenders could go out within three weeks.

MLA Jim Gorst (NDP — Esquimalt) said the cabinet this morning amended the arena bylaws so that the Capital Region Board can borrow up to $850,000 and is assured of a grant of one-third of capital costs.

When the vote was passed residents approved the spending of 1.75 mills over a five-year period for recreational purposes.

Following the vote a survey was taken and it was the majority choice that an arena be constructed. The Sooke Community Association donated almost seven acres of land and cleared the site.

The Capital Region had to go to the cabinet for an amending bylaw which now allows the arena to be amortized over a longer period 25 to 30 years if necessary.

Credit Unions to Lend Against Tax Rebates

British Columbia's credit unions will try to thwart ripoffs by corner shop tax rebate firms by making more money available as loans against tax rebates, says B.C. Central Credit Union president A. R. Glen.

In an interview Thursday Glen said charges levied by some of the tax rebate shops were "quite outrageous — as much as 50 per cent."

He said the practice should be made illegal by federal legislation which prohibits persons to assign their tax rebates to a loan company.

"In some cases they are taking advantage of people who are desperate or who do not understand what is going on."

Glen said each credit union in B.C. is autonomous but most usually follow suggestions from the central office. B.C. Central has sent a circular to all credit unions urging them to assist people to borrow rather than lose half their cash through a rebate shop.

"Naturally we will do everything we can to assist our members. But in addition we want to assist any others who come and ask for help," he said.

"If it is humanly possible, we will accept them as members and help them rather than see them go to one of those tax rebate places."

Volume of business at rebate shops is expected to be brisk this year because of the delay in tax refunds. Finance Minister Turner said no refunds could be mailed until tax changes currently being debated at Ottawa, are approved by Parliament.

Glen said a number of steps are being studied by credit unions to deal with the rebate problem.

As a first step, emergency assistance will be made available where possible both to current members and new members.

Secondly, Canada's credit unions jointly will urge Ottawa to amend legislation to prohibit assigning of tax refunds, thereby putting the refund shops out of business.

Thirdly, the credit unions are studying a plan on the Prairies where counselling and loans are available to low income people who are anticipating tax refunds.

"In many cases, counselling is just as important as a loan," Glen said.
